DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

AT ONE period in his life E. B. Wright, R. F. D. #4, Roanoke, Virginia, was a nervous wreck. His mind would go blank in the midst of a conversation and he would forget what he was talking about. It was most embarrassing

One day he went to see a doctor who told him that forgetting what he was talking about was nothing unusual. He then drew a circle as to why and how a person's mind would work. He said if one were talking about something and suddenly thought of a forgotten appointment, and the telephone rang at the same moment he looked up and saw a man standing there who had been waiting for him, that one's mind simply would be running around in a circle. To all this Mr. Wright responded, "Doctor, you are using very good psychology but I still think I am losing my mind."

CARNEGIE

The doctor replied that if he would listen he would be surprised how quickly he would recover, but if he did not listen that he would be surprised how quickly he would go to the insane asylum or the grave. That just about scared him to death, so he said he would listen.

The doctor started him walking two miles the first day and increased it one mile a day until he was walking ten miles a day. Then he started him to trot until he could trot ten miles a day. This sounded ridiculous but Mr. Wright was desperate. To his surprise, his business got along better without him than with him and he gained fifteen pounds within a few weeks. Moreover that cancerous stomach he thought he had proved to be nothing at all. Now, completely well, he says he does not worry one bit.

As you know, I am seeking re-election to your county governing body, The Board of Revenue and Control, from District Number Two. I humbly request your vote and support. I will be grateful to you for any consideration shown me in the coming primary election of May 4th.

I am thankful for the opportunity of serving you as a member of your county governing body. Chilton County is now enjoying its best financial condition in its entire history. This has been greatly due to the close cooperation between the board members and its chairman. When I became a member of your board in 1951 the county did not have the fine road building equipment which it now has. All of the new equipment purchased was purchased through competitive bidding and paid for in cash, thus stretching your tax dollar as far as possible. Your County Engineer is doing a wonderful job in maintaining, widening and constructing your county roads. Today the roads in our county are in better condition than they have been in many, many years. I pledge to you that I will continue to cooperate with other board members, the county engineer, and all other county officials in the carrying out of our county unit system which has placed Chilton County at the top in road maintenance and construction.

Due to the efficient management of your county business the county was able financially to come under the Social Security Act and give Social Security coverage to all county employees. Countp employees will now have security in their old age. The county has also been able to give salary increases to all county employees. County employees years. County employees are to be commended on the fine work they are doing all over the county.

I also pledge my continued cooperation with the agricultural agencies, the County Health Department, and the other departments of our county. I am running a clean campaign for clean government. If re-elected to serve you on your Board of Revenue and Control from District Number Two, I will continue, as in the past, to keep all of the taxpayers interests in mind and will not favor any special group or groups for their own selfish interest.

Again, I humbly request your vote for clean, honest, efficient county government.

Sincerely
A. H. (HAROLD) SMITH.

"I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her commodious harbors and her ample fertile fields and boundless forests, and it was not there; in her rich mines and her vast world commerce, and it was not there; in her democratic Congress and her matchless constitution, and it was not there. Not until I went into the churches of America and heard her pulpits flame with righteousness did I understand the secret of her genius and power. America is great because she is good, and if America ceases to be good, America will cease to be great." President Dwight Eisenhower.

J. S. (BUSTER) SANDERS

J. S. (Buster) Sanders Writes To Voters

Early last week I qualified as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County. "This I did," not only on my personal assumption that I was qualified to ask you to entrust me with the important office, but in addition to my own ideas of my qualification, I am happy to say that my action in this was equally prompted through the solicitation of citizens of this county whose stations in life would convince any honorable man that he was qualified to do what they were asking of him.

"I of course have not experienced law enforcement work as policeman, deputy sheriff or any such work, but it having been my pleasure to work with people all my adult life and raising children of my own, and my interest in Chilton County from a free Democratic standpoint, I feel that I can serve you as sheriff in a highly satisfactory manner to you which of course would be a pleasure to me.

I am sure that as Sheriff of Chilton County I could and would render you a service in law enforcement, cooperation and good will that would repay you for the trust and confidence I ask of you.

I well know that no public official who cannot humble himself at any and all times, let it be in success or defeat is not qualified to serve as sheriff. This I am sure I can do.

I have also learned in early adult life that no man betrays the trust of his fellow man or even shirks his duty, can do so without injury to himself as well as to his neighbor.

It is my desire to serve you as sheriff in a manner so impartial that no trace of neglect, politics or prejudice may be charged against me.

It of course is my fond hope that I see you in person and answer any questions you may wish to ask.

Thanking you most sincerely for your every word or act of encouragement and asking you each for your vote in the coming primary.

Respectfully
J. S. (Buster) SANDERS.

Make Your Plans Now For Summer Grazing Pasture

Auburn, Ala.—During most summers clover-grazing permanent pasture does not furnish enough grazing in hot, dry periods.

So to be sure you have plenty of high quality grazing all through warm weather, act now, says API Extension Agronomist D. R. Harbor. He advises all farmers to provide about one-half acre of supplementary summer grazing crops for each animal unit.

"If you don't have this much land in summer crops such as lespedeza sericea, kudzu, or alfalfa, he explains, "plant annual lespedeza during the next two weeks. Using either the Kobe, Korean, or common variety, plant around 25 pounds of seed per acre on a well prepared seedbed. Or broadcast seed on stands of small grain. Fertilize the crop with 300 pounds of 0-16-8 or 0-14-14 per acre."

Fish For Black Bass When The Water Warms

Auburn, Ala.—Studies show that more bass are caught in the early warm months than at any other time of the year.

"As soon as the water begins to warm up," advises Earl Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist, "fish hard for black bass. These fish, which hibernate in the winter, go on a feeding spree as soon as the water temperature reaches 55 to 60 degrees. And since food dish—young bluegills and minnows—are usually few in during early spring, your lure should net you a mess

"Late morning and early noon are the best times fo spring bass fishing. Bass w bably range near the surface water to around four feet de the shoreline."

Nursery School

A nursery school is a day school whose program and surroundings are planned for children too young to go to kindergarten.

Good health and hygenic surroundings for the growing child are very important. Once the child enters school, the responsibility of molding the mind and character falls heavily on the teacher. But, as in many instances where mothers are working, the very young child is frequently left with an older child or a neighbor. Thus the importance of a good nursery school can be seen.

The children are taught simple things such as the hardness of wood, the range of colors in paints and the feel and shaping of clay. While there is much overlapping of interests, skills and materials, there is no distinct line between a nursery school and kindergarten. The chief differences lie within the children themselves.

In deciding on a nursery school, there are several things to consider. Age four has been determined as the proper age for a child to be taken from the home and placed in school. A nursery school protects the child's health and provides equipment and play materials that help a child's whole body and whole self to grow and develop.

The character and skill of the teachers in understanding the growing child are important. Parents are considered as well as the children because of the unitp between the two. The good teacher, realizing that human feelings are important, expresses feeling herself and encourages the expression of feeling in children.

Nursery school can be important in the development of a child.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

We put Julius Smith into a service station last week when he belongs in a mercantile store. In his political story concerning his race for the office of Tax Assessor we stated that he operated a service station at Maplesville. You can bet your last gallon of gasoline that that isn't so. He's in the mercantile business with his very likable and popular wife, Antionette. Julius came into the office the day after the paper came out to see what had happened and we are just trying to get him back where he belongs before he catches fire.

And speaking of service stations, do we see a price war going on right here in Clanton on gasoline? That we haven't seen in many a moon. Signs on the street say that gasoline is selling for 25 cents per gallon. And we would be caught with a tank full. And our's is that expensive stuff.

Lot of politicians in town the past few days. Dave Yarbrough was in with a group of his local friends. And by-the-way, Charlie Breedlove was with him. Charlie was once a resident and has many friends here. Looking mighty good too. They have been treating him pretty good down in Autauga county.

Got us a new Used Car Dealer down in south Clanton. It's Chilton Motors. Emmett Blankenship and H. C. Lightsey are the operators. Their Announcing add is in this issue of Chilton County News. Also a few bargains in used cars. The boys will be glad if you will go down and welcome them into the business life of Chilton County.

A very old family friend, Miles C. Allgood, was in to visit us the past week. He is a candidate for State Treasurer. He is a former State Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries and also a former member of Congress. His home is at Mentone, Alabama.

Notice in our favorite newspaper where the VFW at Maplesville have a wrestling bout tonight. J. C. Rucker is Post Commander, and he predicts a good crowd and a better show. He invites all sport fans in the East side of the county to come over and enjoy a good show with them tonight.

A colored church congregation had met to pray for rain to release a long dry spell. The preacher looked severely at his flock and said: "Brothers and Sisters, you knows why we is here. Now what I want to know is—where is your umbrellas."

Said the judge: "I wish to commend you two drunk drivers for running into each other instead of some innocent person. If this thing can be encouraged, I think we may have hit upon the solution of a serious problem."

A teacher sent a note home because she felt that an unruly boy was undermining the discipline of the whole room. "Your boy is the brightest one in the whole room, but the most mischievous. "What shall I do to him?" "Do what you please," came the reply. "I'm having my troubles at home with his father."

GOOD NEWS FOR ARMY VOLUNTEERS

Volunteers for the United States Army are now able to enlist for service in the Infantry, Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, or one of many specific branches of service, according to an announcement made today by M-Sgt. J. W. Gibbens, Station Commander of the Chilton County area.

A recent change to Army Regulations allows volunteers (including men with prior service) to choose assignment to any one of the following branches of the army—Armor, Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Infantry, Adjetant General's Corps, Army Medical Service, Chemical Corps, Military Police Corps, Ordnance Corps, Quartermaster Corps, Signal Corps and Transportation Corps.

Prior to the change in Regulations volunteers were enlisted as "United States Army, Unassigned" and were allocated to the various branches by the Department of Army according to the needs of the Service.

This change does not affect men inducted into the Army through the Selective Service System but applies only to voluntary enlistments.

WELFARE DEPT. TO HAVE RADIO PROGRAM FRIDAY

Chilton County's public welfare board members have served the people of Chilton County for a total of 18 years. This fact was revealed today by Janice Freeland, Welfare Director.

Board members are appointed by the court of county commissioners to serve for six-year over-lapping terms. Each represents a commissioner's district and acts as the people's representative to the welfare departments and the department's representative to the people of their own communities.

Mr. Mallie White is chairman of the Chilton County Welfare Board. He was elected to this post in Oct 1952. Board members also elect their own secretary, who is Mrs. Joe Mullins. Meetings are held quarterly.

The work of the Chilton County Welfare Board will be the theme of a radio program Friday, March 19, at 2:00 p.m. on Radio Station WKLF. Listen for further details about the duties and responsibility of the Welfare Board Members.

PITCHING FOR CHRIST

This coming Saturday night, March 20th, 7:30, at the Maplesville Baptist Church, we are having a special service for the interest of Young People, but we invite everyone to attend. The speaker will be a former major league baseball pitcher, Bro. George Jeffcoat, who is now a first year student at the New Orleans Seminary.

Jeffcoat has played with Brooklyn, Boston Braves, Nashville, Indianapolis, Tulsa, and Shreveport. He set two records which still stand in the Southern Association while with Nashville, striking out 18 batters in one game and winning six Dixie Series games, while losing only two.

"Since the first moment that I accepted Christ there has been nothing but the peace and joy in my heart that all mankind can look forward to, that can be found only in Him," is the testimony of one one-time Brooklyn Dodger and Boston Braves pitcher.

RED CROSS FUNDS SHOULD BE TURNED IN AT PROBATE OFFICE

Mrs. Esco asks that all workers please cooperate and see that this is done immediately. The total raised to date is well over the fifty-per cent mark and growing steadily.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY APPOINTS INFORMATION COMMITTEE

Mrs. Hugh Jones of Clanton, Chilton county commander for the American Cancer Society, has announced the appointment of an Information Committee to help in the education work of the Cancer Society in this county.

Committee members include: Mrs. Ruth Hudson, Clanton, radio and TV chairman; Mrs. Ed Clark, Clanton, newspaper chairman; Mrs. John D. Mullins, Clanton, women's club representative; Ralph Morrison, Clanton, men's clubs representative; Dr. G. M. Taylor, county health officer; Mrs. O. F. Woods, Clanton, county health nurse; Dr. Joe Hall Johnson, Clanton, local Medical Society representative; Mrs. Mary Louise Wells, Clanton, home demonstration agent; Miss Faye Wooley, Clanton, county welfare; Miss Louise Foshee, Clanton schools representative; Dick Arnold Clanton, business and industry chairman.

Because lives can be saved by using knowledge already in the possession of the medical profession, the American Cancer Society tries to make sure through its education program that American people learn enough about cancer to seek timely and regular medical examinations.

In addition to its education program, the American Cancer Society also supports research projects at five Alabama institutions. Grants totaling $604,768.98 have been allocated to these institutions since the program was begun in 1945. The five research centers are Southern Research Institute, Medical College of Alabama and the Tumor Registry, all in Birmingham; Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, and the Carver Foundation, Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee. Funds for research grants are raised during the American Cancer Society's annual Cancer Crusade in April.

KOREAN WAR VETERANS WARNED OF DEADLINE

According to Bob Fullen, Chilton County Veterans Service officer, the Veterans Administration has announced that spring school terms starting early in 1954 will mark the last enrollment opportunity under the Korean GI Bill for thousands of Korean veterans. Fullen stated that the reason for this is that the cutoff date of August 20, 1954, applies to Korean veterans separated from service on or before August 20, 1952. The cutoff date comes before next fall's school term gets underway; therefore, with the exception of the summer session, the school term starting early in 1954 will offer many veterans their last opportunity to get started under the Korean GI Bill. If you were discharged after August 20, 1952, you have two years from date of separation to begin your GI training. The fact that you must actually be in training on or before August 20, 1954. You may be permitted to interrupt your course becauses of summer vacation or for other reasons beyond your control or for any circumstances that the Veterans Administration deems to be excusable. Don't miss out on this all important benefit by overlooking the deadline or cut-off date August 20, 1954 if you were discharged on or before Aug. 20, 1952.

Workers should strive to increase their productive powers steadily—just as they try to increase their wages steadily.

People continue to tell us they are surprised by the wonderful results from advertising in Chilton County News. We knew it all the time.

A NEW HOSPITAL

We're sure every citizen in Chilton County will be glad to learn that work on the new hospital will soon be underway. We have waited a long time for this new addition to Chilton County progress and it will be a "white feather" in the cap of a number of local citizens who have worked hard, and tirelessly, on the project.

First on the long list to be commended is the Hospital Committee, of which F. Leo Thompson is Chairman. He and members of the Committee have served well.

Our Probate Judge M. D. (Dave) Tingle has cooperated with the Committee one hundred per cent as has our Congressman Armistead Selden.

And let us not forget the little man who is paying the taxes that is making the new hospital possible. After all he should come in for the lions share of the praise—he is being hit where it hurts most.

But foolishness aside we think that all who have taken a part in this undertaking for Chilton County are to be commended. One could not have functioned without the other and we believe there will be enough glory to go around.

SHERIFF NO POLITICIAN

Our local Sheriff is surely no politician. Recently, in fact last week, he upset the best laid plans of numerous bootleggers in the county.

We heard one citizen down the street say the bootleggers must have thought the sheriff was "politicing" and did'nt have time to be capturing bootleggers and therefore caught them with "their pints down."

In any case according to the jail records a block was thrown into these operations in the county last week and several dealers in this neck of the woods are getting their mail at county jail now

LIGHT UPON A DARK PROBLEM

In the nationwide wave of hysteria relative to alleged communistic teaching in textbooks, which unhappily has engulfed Alabama, few constructive suggestions have been advanced. To this statement, however, there is one outstanding exception. The state of New York apparently has hit upon a plan which works.

Under this plan, back in 1952, the Board of Regents was authorized to appoint a commission to search through textbooks used in the state's public school system for subversive material. Such investigations, however, were to be made only upon the receipt of a complaint of an individual or a group.

Despite a recurrent hue and cry by groups that charged local boards of education with exposing pupils to disloyal teaching aids, the three-member commission has never found it necessary to meet. As authorized, the commission will investigate any complaint submitted and if a text is found subversive, will issue a certificate disapproving its use in the public schools and send the certificate to local boards of education. If this action were taken, the board would order that any further contract by a public school to buy a banned book would be null and void, and any teacher or other official who used such a book would "be guilty of a misdemeanor."

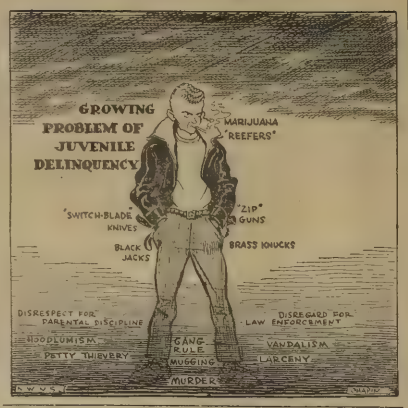
Furthermore, it was provided that any legitimate protest of a schoolbook not only would be submitted to the commission but also to a public hearing.

The jurisdiction of the commission extends only to texts used in the subjects of civics, economics, English, history, languages and literature.

In commenting upon the establishment of this commission the New York Times stated editorially as follow.

"What has happened? Exactly nothing, except that the allegations which must indeed have been so wild and unfounded that their originators did not think they could stand the light of a fair hearing, seem to have died down, in the State of New York at least. The commission is still there, ready to receive complaints from citizens acting in good faith. But the fact that it has had no case to handle in the nearly two years of its existence is at least prima facie evidence that our textbooks are not precisely revolutionary in content. Maybe the formation of the commission induced some of the people who had been making the charges to read the books they were complaining about. Other states might lessen the pressures on their own educational systems by following the action of the New York Board of Regents."—Alabama School Journal.

WHO IS TO BLAME?



Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

By Armstear Soldonnn n nn nnn

Last week the House passed several bills of importance. Legislation approved and sent to the Senate included increased highway construction aid, federal assistance for a broadened hospital construction program, excise tax reduction, and authorization for Federal-local action in attacking problems of upstream soil and water conservation.

--Excise Tax Reduction--

The bill passed by the House last Wednesday to reduce and revise our excise tax laws will affect nearly all of us. This legislation, overwhelmingly approved by a vote of 411 to 3, places a 10 per cent excise tax ceiling on most items taxed. These tax revisions will reduce federal revenues by an estimated $1 billion.

The 10 per cent ceiling, effective April 11, will cover transportation long distance telephone calls, jewelry, furs, cosmetics, admission tickets, luggage, club dues, photography equipment, light bulbs and tubes, pens, mechanical pencils, cigarette lighters, sporting goods, and firearms.

At the same time, the House bill postponed for one year reductions in the excise tax rates scheduled for April 1 on distilled spirits, beer and wine, gasoline, cigarettes, and automobiles.

A democratic motion to recommit the measure with instructions to aid a provision for an outright exemption from taxes of all admissions of 50 cents or less failed by a close vote.

--Other Legislation--

Passed by voice vote were three other bills of importance. The first was a measure which authorizes federal-aid funds in the amount of $60 million for the assistance to the States for the construction of diagnostic or treatment centers, for hospitals for the chronically ill and impaired, for rehabilitation facilities, and for nursing homes. This assistance, an expansion of the Hill-Burton hospital construction program, is to be made through grants to public and non-profit agencies.

The second legislation of importance passed by voice vote was a measure authorizing an appropriation of $600 million in Federal aid highway construction funds for fiscal 1945 and fiscal 1957. These funds to be allocated to the states on a matching basis, constitute an increase of 39 per cent over present allocations. Of the total, $270 million to be used for Federal aid primary highway systems; $180 million for projects on secondary road systems; and $150 million for primary systems in urban areas. Part of the latter amount will also be used for approved extension on secondary systems without urbanareas.

The final measure passed by the House last week provides the legislative authority and direction for cooperative Federal-local action in attacking the problems of upstream soil and water conservation and flood prevention. This bill also set out the policies, the framework, and the standards under which such action can be initiated.

--Bill Of Interest to Veterans--

The house Committee on Veterans Affairs of which I am a member, recently approved a bill to extend to June 30, 1955, direct home loans to veterans. he Veterans Administration's present authority for making these loans expires on June 30 of this year. The bill reported out of the Veterans Affairs Committee extends the loan-making authority for one year and authorizes a maximum $100 million to be added to the "revolving fund" which bill, loans will still be limited to $10,000 per veteran and will continue to be available only to those veterans who are unable to borrow money from private lending agencies at 4 and one-half per cent interest. It is hoped the loan extension bill will be voted on by the full House in the near future.

--Selden Resolution Reported--

More committee action of interest was the decision of the House Judiciary Committee on March 9 to report favorably a resolution I introduced in the House earlier in the session. The purpose of this resolution is to give the consent of Congress to the establishment of a permanent boundary line between the States of Alabama and Florida in the vicinity of the Perdido River. Over a period of several years, under the force of winds, waves, and currents, the mouth of the Perdido River has shifted and so the boundary line as fixed in the State constitutions between Florida and Alabama in regard to that particular locality has likewise shifted. My resolution gives the consent of Congress to a permanent boundary line between the two states described by longitude and latitude which has already been agreed upon by the legislatures of both Alabama and Florida. This resolution has been placed on the Union Calendar of the House and should come up for consideration in the near future.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

The Alcoholic

There are different types of drinkers. The neurotic type usually takes to alcohol to overcome the feeling of frustrations and inhibitions. The social drinker can imbibe without being dependent on the need for continued drinking to build his morale and confidence, and the chronic or regular drinker is one who uses alcohol daily or frequently in conjunction with meals.

True alcoholism can be considered a public health problem, for persons falling within this category have lost all control and will drink at the expense of family, career and friends.

What can be done for the true alcoholic? Very little without the patient's deep-rooted and sincere wish to help himself. While there are certain drugs which cause severe nausea when even one drink is taken, these are only temporary controls.

The true alcoholic cannot be helped with threats of exposure or shame. Even pity won't help, for there is no remorse as great as in the alcoholic who has a few days of sobriety. But the urge to drink is too strong, and he drinks so that he may forget his responsibilities.

The alcoholic who is convinced first of his need to help himself can be guided to a life of normal living. This can be accomplished through psychiatric care. Once he understands this, he will know that one drink will be his undoing. The true alcoholic cannot stop with one drink. Religion is an important factor in controlling alcoholism, for through it the susceptible person is helped to a better understanding of himself. That is why Alcoholics Anonymous, the organization composed of reformed alcoholics, is successful. While this group has members of many faiths, its one goal, applicable to all, is to avoid that first drink.

Alcoholism has no respect for race, creed or class. Persons are affected in all walks of life and in their respective ways, turn to drink to escape the realities of existence. The emotionally mature person does not attempt to run away from the problems and complexities of daily life. He accepts them as a part of purposeful living.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

If every man practiced what he preached there wouldn't be anyone to preach to.

I know a fella down town who could have saved a lot of wear and tear on his windows if he had used newspaper advertising instead; folks could still see in, too.

Heard a fella say the other day who heard a fella say, that the dust over in Korea was so thick the airplanes had to land five feet off the ground. Surely this guy had the elements mixed up, that was snow.

Fellow came up to me the other day and introduced a gentleman who was, naturally, running for a public office. He began with, "I just thought I'd bring him around and introduce him to the folks who did the printing." This was all well and good and it was my privilege to meet the fella, but the fact still remains that I didn't do his printing for him. I don't know, maybe he figured I wouldn't remember. Might not have either, but he slipped up and gave me one of his cards. Bet he tells that to all the printers.

Just driving home and noticed something that struck me as rather amusing. That's the way people drive. I'm not knocking them this time, it's just that everyone, no matter how mild mannered or friendly, when they get in a car, drive like every one else is out to get them. They growl and snarl at every traffic jam like they were regular "Old Scrooges," when they really aren't in a hurry at all, just human nature I guess. Noticed that this "Battle of the wheel" is usually worse right around dinner time when everyone is going home to eat. It isn't that they think they're out to get them, it must be their dinner they're worried about.

This is no reflection on butchers as a whole, or butchers as butchers either for that matter, but I just met a fella the other day that didn't know the front of a hog from the rear. Now I don't know the same thing but I also don't get paid for being a butcher. The only thing I can butcher is the English language and apparently that's all he was really accomplished in.

It isn't hard to tell that we folks need some administration with the improvement of roads, rural and otherwise, in mind. Alabamians are so unaccustomed to old roads to drive on that they drive slow in the fast lane of a four lane highway. Wonder how they'd fair on a Turnpike.

Some things we hear around town, but haven't seen yet are the rumors or mentioning of a full time instructor for the local park and play ground. There are, naturally, views both pro and con and my opinion is this: We spent the money to build the park and haven't developed it as it should have been to be called a park or playground. Not many folks would disagree with the belief that any improvement, whether it be instructor or construction will be advantageous to both young and old alike and will surely give us something more to prove Clanton is a good place to visit and a better place to live. Anything worth having costs in some way or other and this would be no exception, especially the "worth having" part.

Isn't it funny how interested some folks are in you right about this time of this year. Makes you feel kinda important doesn't it?

Heard a lady say that the best way she had found for keeping out unwanted salesmen was this; Seems she had an enormous acreage around her home and had the whole thing fenced in. She'd tie a broken rope on a large stake right inside the front gate and then around someplace would be an old bone or something. Any indication that there was a dog on the premises. The catch to the whole thing and the salesman stopper was the psychological effect it had. She didn't even have a dog and she hadn't said she did, she just pushed their imagination a little and the picture of a ferocious dog running around loose in that big yard was just too much for them and they pushed on to the next house.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Aren't The People Awake? ?

Yes, I believe the people are awake. Why? Because their decisions in the last election has proven so True enough, there are still a few of us selfish individuals who still exist. We are always 100 per cent behind any program that will profit us, but on the contrary, we are just as cooperative to yell first and loudest if we don't get "our backs scratched first."

In last week's issue of this paper I was pleased to read the opening paragraphs of an article headed, Let The People Wake Up, but became very disappointed before I had finished, for this writer through his closing paragraphs in a very forward and selfish manner attacked the very things that he set out in his first paragraph to be for. Certainly, Collins Chapel is a very proud community, and rightly so, for they, through their unselfish efforts have made it a better place to live, not just for Collins Chapel, but for Chilton County— yes, you and I.

Is it not true that Chilton County has shown great progress throughout recent years? Would it be unfair to the voters to say that each and every one that voted had not played an important part through their careful selection of their board member? Certainly the writer of last week's article, through his attack of two of our present board members, tended to attack the integrity of every voter that helped elect these two very worthy men. Is this really a problem of waking, or is it a proper time to say to the voters of their county that their wise decisions in the past is also their key to wisdom for the future.

As I am not a resident of Chilton County, but a voter in Chilton Co., you may except or decline this letter as you best see fit. (Remembering that I haven,t a back to scratch"), but your county has shown progress through your wise decision last election.

Therefore, is it not wise to prosper in the future through your experience of the past?

Yes, I know the mass of the people are awake, but I am not sure about some individuals.

My deepest respect to the voters; You Are Awake.

Exercise your privelege again in May and Chilton County will continue to grow and prosper.

Higest regards,
Charles P. Jones
Pensacola, Florida

Everyone needs to be planning for a garden this year. Prizes will be given as always. First prize twenty-five dollars; second prize fifteen dollars; third prize, ten dollar. It is also time for us to start thinking about our flowers and yards for this year. There will be the prizes for the yards as same as the gardens. Yards are judged by the neatness, the most attractive arrangement of flowers, and how outdoor buildings are kept.

Venable, the song leader, Mrs. Homer Melton gave the story of the song, "My Hope Is Built on Nothing Less," and led the group in singing it. Mrs. S. A. Jones gave the devotional, being taken from Matthew 16:20-24.

The secretary, Mrs. Lessie Lowery, called the roll, each member answered by naming "My Favorite Magazine."

The Demonstration was given by Mrs. Mary Louise Wells on "Flowers and vegetables gardening." It was very interesting to all the members present and the visitors. The visitors were Mrs. Hubert Smith and Mrs. Charles Mims. After the business session, the hostess served a delicious salad plate, assisted by Mrs. Homer Melton.

Leaders Of Home Demonstration Clubs Attended Leadership School Recently

Child care and Family Life Leaders from eleven Home Demonstration Clubs in the County atended the Leadership School at the Canton City Hall on March 9. Miss Elta Majors, Child Care and Family Life Specialist of the Extension Service, led a most interesting discussion on "Family Problems Work Them Out For Yourself."

Miss Majors brought out the fact that the most difficult of all human problems are those of personal adjustments that involve relationship with others. No person lives for himself alone. Happily, our lives are entangled with the lives of others. We need these human entanglements, for they high-light life and form a basis for all values. Mostly they are pleasant. Only occasionally do they go awry; but when they do, life may seem very difficult. These upsets in human relationships that inevitably come to all of us are real problems to be solved. Fortunately, we all have within us great capacities, or strengths, for meeting life's difficulties. These strengths are: danger, failure, pain, sorrow, blame, and disappointment.

Miss Majors and the leaders discussed how the following steps may be a pattern for organized thinking out a problem: face the problem, look for the cause, set goals, use imagination, consider what to do, plan how to do it, check the plan with goals, plan for the follow-up, and give the plan time to work.

At the April Home Demonstration Club meetings the leaders will give the demonstration to their Club members. The following ladies representing their Clubs at the Leadership School were: Mrs. L. Venable and Mrs. R. R. Young, Alabama Mills; Mrs. L. L. Traywick, Baker; Mrs. J. O. McGee and Mrs. E. I. Pierce, Bethsalem; Mrs. V. C. McKee and Mrs. C. J. Williams, Fairview; Mrs. R. R. Smiley, Friendship; Mrs. S. W. Cox, Jemison; Mrs. F. C. Gibson, Macedonia; Mrs. C. O. Jones and Mrs. Reese Wells, Mt. Carmel; Mrs. J. J. DeLoach, Jr. and Mrs. Odell Jones, Mt. Pisgah; Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Poplar Springs; and Mrs. F. M. Guy, Thomas Jr.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Ladonya Tucker Mailloux

The one-year-old has discovered the joy of brushing her teeth, that is to say, she enjoys not so much the actual brushing as the delightful taste of the toothpaste—with or without miracle chlorophyll. Several times a day she goes to the bathroom and keeps pointing up at her toothbrush until somebody gets it down for her.

The other afternoon when I was busy in the kitchen, I heard the one-year-old in the bathroom making sounds of impatience and called to the seven-year-old to ask what was goin on.

"The baby is pointing to her tooth brush," came the reply. "She wants somebody to get it down and butter it with toothpaste for her."

The one-year-old was completely happy after her tooth brush had been properly "buttered."

Speaking of teeth, the children's periodic visits to the dentist have been slightly less of an ordeal recently.

Our dentist, an understanding soul, has been letting the seven-year-old and the five-year-old go into the back room at his office and play with the false teeth he makes. It sounds gruesome, but the children love it.

The next door neighbor was giving her already spotless kitchen a cleaning when we stopped by for a visit the other morning, and we were particularly interested in the treatment she gave the drawers of her stove.

After she had dusted the drawers thoroughly, she lined each one with a bright, desk-size blotter.

"The blotters absorb any moisture left after drying the pots and pans I store in the drawers," she explained, "and they also deaden the clatter of the utensils when they are being put away."

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family often makes cookies for her children and their friends, dozens of cookies at a time.

Her favorite cookie recipe calls for chopped pecans. Chopping such a large quantity of pecans used to be a big job for her until she tried putting the nuts in a clean dish towel and rolling them with a rolling pin Now it's no trouble at all.

It must have been a mother with imagination who sewed tiny bells on her little girl's dress instead of buttons. The child skipped down the sidewalk past our house this morning. Every time she skipped the bells on her dress tinkled, and every time the bells tinkled, the little girl laughed.

Substituting bells for buttons on toddler's clothes would probably be a good idea, too. The jingling bells would help mothers keep track of the whereabouts of the youthful explorers.

Here's a recipe for the pecan cookies our neighbor down the street often makes:

Blend well 3-4 cup shortening, 1-4 cup butter or margerine, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup confectioner's sugar and 1 1-2 tablespoons vanilla. Slowly fold in 2 cups sifted flour and 1 cup chopped pecans. Chill dough in refrigerator. Shape into small finger-sized rolls and bake in slow oven (325 degrees) on a slightly greased cookie sheet for 20-25 minutes. Cool and roll in confectioner's sugar.

After washing pigskin gloves, lay them flat on a dry white towel, and keep them out of the sun.

A 500-pullet flock should produce a crop of eggs worth $4,000 or more.

"THE GAUNLET"
By Mrs. C. J. Carlisle

"The Gaunlet" by James Street.

The Gaunlet is the story of a young minister who at last found the truth. London Wingo chose a career in the ministry the way he might have chosen law, medicine, or business, and it was not until much later when faced with the choice between uprightness and success, that his faith became evident.

London is a student at a theological seminary, struggling to reconcile his desires for learning with his financial worries. He applies for a church in Linden, Missouri, and, accepted by the deacons there, feels that he has found security for his family. He does not realize that in return for this security the people of Linden expect him to conform to their practices and ideas.

The struggles of London and his wife' Kathie, to keep both their church and their spiritual integrity, rise to a powerful climax in Kathie's illness. London realizes he must choose between Linden and the people who have made Kathie's life there unhappy and a rich metropolitan parish where he might escape to a happier and more profitable life.

GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT
By Laura Z. Hobson

Philip Green, a newspaper feature writer, was given an assignment. Write five articles about antisemitism that would interest a reading public of approximately three million people. How could he make such articles different, readable, and above all, a benefit to mankind?

After much thought, Philip Green decided that the best way to get authentic material of any interest and importance was to pretend that he himself was a Jew. How this affects his family, his friends, his work, and others around him makes a plot of great interest and importance to all of us.

This story carries you swiftly and movingly to a climax that will help you to a better understanding of yourself and others.

Mrs. W. B. Crowe, Jr. AAUW, Library Chairman.

Library: Two very note-worthy books are recent purchases. These are Triumph and Tragedy and Rue in the Ashes. Triumph and Tragedy is Winston Churchill's last and perhaps most important book of memoirs of the war. Sometime ago the Book-of-the-Month offered the set of six books to any one who would become a member. I do not know if this is still good but it is certainly a magnificent gift offer. "Churchill is a natural dramatist and makes history both intelligible and alive."

The second book, Fire in the Ashes, is considered the most important and enlightening book about Europe and how it affects the future of America.

Use New Sugar Bait To Kill Houseflies

Auburn, Ala.—Today many housewives refuse to surrender to old stand-by insecticides such as DDT, chlordane and toxaphene.

But a new poison bait has now been developed that will eradicate this troublesome pest, says APL extension Entomologist W. A. Ruffin. When used in a dry sugar bait, malathion is a very effective fly killer. This phosphate compound can be obtained from most insecticide dealers.

"To make the bait," Ruffin explains, "mix one teaspoonful of 25 per cent malathion powder with two cups of granulated sugar or one pound of malathion with 99 pounds of sugar.

"Using a fruit jar with holes punched in the lid, sprinkle bait lightly over floors of dairy barns, on window sills and on any other surface where flies can pick it up. Apply bait every day or two until flies are under control. After that, put it out whenever needed.

"Malathion is poison," cautions Ruffin. "Never leave bait where children or animals can reach it."

To have stiff egg whites, be sure they are at room temperature before you start beating.

Older 4-H Club Members Planning To Re-organize

The first meeting for Older 4-H Club members of Chilton County was held on Saturday, February 28. Plans for this Club have been in the making for several months. These plans were completed and the first meeting was eld with ten former 4-H Club members being present.

The purpose of this Club is to enable boysand girls between the ages of 14 and 21 to continue their 4-H Club membership and projects. Many boys and girls in high schools in the County would like to continue to be a 4-H'er, but their regular school activities do not permit time for them to attend a 4-H meeting during school. These meetings will be held six or more times yearly and will be held outside of school either on Saturday morning, at night or in the afternoon after school . The time and place will be annuonced prior to each meeting.

Even though there were only ten members present at the first meeting the County 4-H leaders feel that it was a good beginning and that it will grow into a larger organization.

The ten present expressed much interest in the Club and feit that they could encourage more boys and girls to come to the next meeting.

Officers were not elected at this meeting. The business discussed included different projects individuals might take and contest they may enter. There was a lengthy discussion on safety and the Club is considering taking it as a County project. After the business meeting a movie, "The Fifth H" was shown to the group.

The members present included the following: Martha Tracy, Ronnie Smith, Judy Miller, Patsy Young, and Eula Baker, Chilton County High School; Janice Henley and Betty Jean Milford, Isabella High School; Euna Adams and Mary Nell Moates, Verbena High School; Jimmy Kincaid, a graduate of Thorsby Institute. Each one has been a 4-H member from three to seven years and each has had good projects and kept good records of their project work. Most of these members haveheld offices in their local Club as well as County Council. The Clubs throughout the County that they represent are Concord, Thomas Jr., Cane Creek, Isabella, Thorsby, and Cooper.

Plans are to have the next meeting within the next month. The time and place will be announced.

Something Brand New in Alabama Politics!

JIM ALLEN'S BLUNT FRANKNESS

Never before in a campaign for Governor of Alabama has a candidate spoken out with the bold frankness of Jim Allen.

In all his speeches, he states his stand—fearlessly and forthrightly. He doesn't hedge or haggle. This is refreshingly different from the usual campaign vote-seeking promises. And it's making a hit with people everywhere who like the "whole truth and nothing but the truth." Commenting on "Allen's Blunt Candor," The Montgomery Advertiser said: "There Goes A Man."

That's why Allen's band wagon leads the parade. Help speed it on its way.

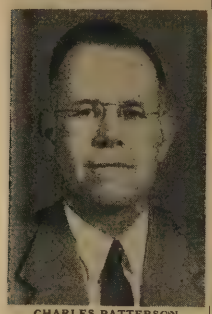
CHARLES L. PATTERSON FO RTAX ASSESSOR



CHARLES PATTERSON

I am a candidate for the office of Tax Assessor of Chilton County.

I was born and reared on a farm, one, of a family of eleven children.

I attended Troy State Teachers College and the University of Alabama, working at various campus jobs to pay my expenses.

After leaving college I was a high school football coach and a high school principal for a period of nine and one-half years, terminating this position in February of 1941 to go on active duty with my National Guard unit as a First Lieutenant of Artillery. I remained on active duty for a little more than five years and was discharged as a Lieutenant Colonel.

After separation from the service I was employed as a Training Specialist with the Veterans Administration for a little over six years. This employment dealt entirely with the program of rehabilitation of disabled veterans. For the past one and one-half years I have been connected with the Alabama Farm Bureau Insurance Company.

My wife, Helen Moore, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore of Clanton, Alabama, and we have one son "Little Charlie" who is eight years of age.

I am a member of the First Baptist Church of Clanton and just recently completed a regular four year term as a member of the Board of Deacons. Also I am a member of the Choir, Brotherhood, and a teacher in the Sunday School department.

I am a member of the American Legion, Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, Chilton County and Alabama Cattleman's Association.

I belong to the Clanton Masonic Lodge, and am a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner.

I am conducting my own campaign and have no affiliations with any other political group or organization. My campaign will be conducted in a clean and honorable manner and I hope to personally contact as many voters of this county as is humanly possible. I feel that I am well qualified for the position for which I am seeking and if elected promise to diligently perform the duties of the office to the best of my abilities.

Your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Truman Thrash

I am taking this time to introduce myself to the people of this county who do not know me. I am offering myself as candidate for sheriff of this county, seeking the support of every citizen in this county.

I am 33 years of age, married, with family. Son of W. O. Thrash, grandson of Rev. E. B. Tucker of this county.

I am a Veteran of 4 years service of World War II, with overseas service in China, Burma, and India.

If you want clean and equal law in all of Chilton County, then I am asking for your support. I hope to be able to see everyone of you before May 4th.

(Pd. pol. adv. by Truman Thrash, Clanton, Ala.)

LONNIE L. COST WRITES VOTERS

LONNIE L. COST

I stated when I first announced as a candidate for a Member of the Board of Revenue and Control of the county for the First District, that I would let you know how I stood on the issues confronting the voters of the county.

Senator Tom Phillips and Representative Plott put a local Bill through the Legislature of Alabama creating the present Board of Revenue and Control, and placing the county road system under the supervision of a County Engineer. The Board of Revenue and Control and the County Engineer must operate under the provisions of this law so long as it remains a law. Your Board of Revenue has no power or authority to change this law or its provisions.

Our present system of maintaining and building county roads, so far as I am concerned, will remain in effect until the people of the county vote for it to be changed. I think this is just another issue that the majority of the people should approve at the polls before any change is made. I do not propose any change.

Now friends, I wish to tell you that I am absolutely opposed to the building of a new Court House and Jail, unless a majority of the voters go to the polls and vote to do it themselves. This is no new position or thought on my part. I signed a petition as a voter of your county along with hundreds of others about a year ago favoring a vote by the people on the question of a new Court House and Jail.

I am opposed to placing Chilton County in debt for any purpose until the people have voted favorably to do so at the polls.

I believe that every person is entitled to a good road to his home regardless of his personal belief or financial condition. I will work for the improvement of our rural and country road and I will favor the paving of as many roads as the finances of the county will permit.

These things I will work forward to if elected to the Board of Revenue and Control. I will at all times try to abide the sentiments and wishes of the people upon all questions.

Respectfully,

Attract Quail And Conserve Soil, Too

Auburn, Ala.—Bicolor lespedeza will attract quail and conserve soil at the same time, according to API Extension Soil Conservationist S. R. Doughty.

And he reminds farmers that now is a good time to get this perennial legume started. The crop may be established from either seed or seedlings and thrives particularly well on non-productive, eroding woodland borders. It also can be grown to advantage on rough, idle, and inacessible land areas not adapted to other crops.

This preferred quail food, adds Doughty, withstands shade and competition from trees. When well established, it does an excellent job of controlling erosion and improving soil, as well as providing abundant food for game birds.

Although not attractive to other wildlife, bicolor lespedeza is a favorite of livestock. So plant it in borders and areas where no animals graze.

During the last five years the number of frozen food cabinets in retail food stores in this country has jumped from about 175,000 to over 500,000.

BANK FACTS FOR YOU

What is a sound loan?

In passing on applications for credit, we consider the most important factors to be: whether the loan purpose is worthwhile, and likely to benefit both the borrower and the community; and whether the applicant is of good character, has a record of paying bills promptly, and has a dependable source of income from which to repay the bank. A loan that meets these tests we consider basically sound.

Our simple credit requirements are in the interest of our depositors, whose money we lend, and the community we serve, as well as the borrower himself. We'll welcome your loan application.

Save Time In Caring For Your Poultry Flocks

Auburn, Ala.—Are you spending too much time with that poultry flock? Does it take you twice as long as your neighbors to care for your flock?

Then API Extension Poultryman John Weeks suggests that you study the following short cuts now being practiced by wide-awake producers all over the state.

1. Use large pens. Each pen should house from 300 to 1000 birds.
2. Use automatic waterers the year around, and provide an efficient way to dispose of waste water.
3. Arrange for a feed storage room in the pens or adjoining them, and use large feeders running from one end of the building to the other.
4. Use community nests grouped near the door where the caretaker enters the building.
5. Provide an egg room close to the laying house. A basement or cellar is ideal because low temperatures can be maintained in these rooms.
6. Plan your operations carefully so as many things as possible can be done in one trip through the house.
7. Provide a handy method to dispose of litter and add new litter to the house. Double doors that can be entered with wagons, manure spreaders, etc., are particularly helpful.
8. Use bulk feed and mechanical feeders.
9. Feed grain an dhigh protein supplements free choice to layers and growing pullets.

WELFARE SERVICES THROUGH COUNTY DEPT. OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Your Welfare Department belongs to you. Your tax money supports it; it exists in your county to help you and the community.

Your Welfare Department spent the following amounts during the 1952-1953 fiscal year. This money was nearly all fro mState and Federal funds. It came into the county and most of it was spent in the county. It helped business in general as well as the needy people. It helped the communities by making it possible for individuals to be able to participate in community life.

Welfare Expenditures
Chilton County

For the Fiscal Year October 1, 1952-September 30, 1953.

Old Age Assistance	$211,815.00
Aid to blind	3,522.00
Aid to handicapped	19,943.00
Aid to children:
Aid to Dependent Children
Foster care	2,520.00
Temporary aid	300.00
Total public assistance	$300,691.00
Confederate pensioners	720.00
Total administration	$26,013.16
Grand Total—State and Federal Funds	$327,424.16

But—your welfare department cannot meet every community need. Welfare policies are strict because welfare funds are limited. There are many people who are in stringent circumstances—but who are not eligible for welfare aid. There are many items people need that cannot be put in a welfare budget. Therefore, you and the community have an opportunity to help.

Your club might help an ADC mother get clothing for her children when they start to school. Her check is based on less than half of what her children need—you can help her bridge the gap.

Or you can buy warm bedding for someone whose family can't buy it—and neither can the Welfare Department.

You can arrange for hospital care for people not in need of welfare aid but unable to pay their medical bills. Your welfare department will work with you to find ways to help. You can also be of service in assisting the agency to make sure that people who receive checks are eligible for aid. Then the Department can be sure it is fair to every one.

And, perhaps most important of all, you can cooperate with the Welfare Department by understanding and interpretin gthe policies; by helping your fellow citizens see what the agency can do and why limited funds make stricter laws necessary. Your cooperation will improve your welfare program.

Steve Tips the Balance

Was just leaving home this morning when the Missus reminded me to stop at Steve and Al's Meat Market for a pound of hamburger. "Be sure to get it from Steve," she said.

"Why?" I wondered. So when I got to the market I asked Steve if he knew. "I'll tell you, Joe," he said. "Al and I sell the same meat, and a pound is a pound. Maybe it's just that we go at it differently.

"Al loads the scales and takes away 'til he has a pound. But I put too little on and start adding. To your wife — that probably looks like a better buy."

From where I sit, there's always more than one way to approach a thing and still come out fair and square to all. My wife likes a cup of tea with dinner; I prefer a temperate glass of beer. We get along fine. Gets me pretty mad though, when somebody starts "throwing his weight around" and demands that I see things exactly his way.

VFW POSTS TO MEET IN CLANTON

Delegates from VFW Posts located at Maplesville, Prattville, Wetumpka and Montgomery will gather here Sunday at 2 p.m. to hold a District meeting at the Dixie Cafe, Dr. J. E. Edgar, Commander of the Chilton County Post 3193 has announced.

Emmett Moseley of Wetumpka, District Commander, will preside over the meeting with a number of state officers of the 55 year old organization coming her to outline programs for the remaining months of the 1953-54 term.

One of the major programs to be discussed will be the local observance of Loyalty Day, May 1, sponsored annually by more than 10,000 Posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The program which has won four consecutive annual awards from Freedoms Foundation is designed to counteract May Day celebrations staged by Communist organizations.

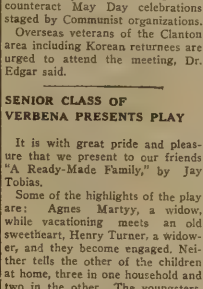
Overseas veterans of the Clanton area including Korean returnees are urged to attend the meeting, Dr. Edgar said.

SENIOR CLASS OF VERBENA PRESENTS PLAY

It is with great pride and pleasure that we present to our friends "A Ready-Made Family," by Jay Tobias.

Some of the highlights of the play are: Agnes Martyy, a widow, while vacationing meets an old sweetheart, Henry Turner, a widower, and they become engaged. Neither tells the other of the children at home, three in one household and two in the other. The youngsters, having heard of the big surprise, plan to upset the martimonial apple cart by acting their worst before their prospective step-parents

J. S. (JIM) PLOTT STANDS ON RECORD



J. S (JIM) PLOTT

During the four years that I have served you as your Representative from Chilton County I have done my best to serve you to the best of my ability. I want you to know that I will continue to serve you and stand for progressive administration if I am again elected to the office I seek.

Chilton County's local government and road system is unequalled in the State of Alabama and I am proud that I fought for this progressive measure in the House when it became law. Under the present administration of your county business you know where every penny of your tax money goes, and you can see the results in your new roads and bridges and other improvements.

Let me say here that your Road Superintendent J. D. Bullington is doing a wonderful job on building and maintaining roads in the county.

If I am reelected to the Legislature I will again fight for bigger old aged pensions, better roads, more money for schools and honesty and efficiency in government. I will cooperate in every way with the man you elect your Governor so far as his program is for the best interest of all the people and not for a chosen few.

I am trying to see all of you before election day and if it is possible to do so, I will. If I fail to see you I want you to know that your vote and support will be appreciated by me.

When, and if, I can be of service to you in any way you will always find me willing to do the best I can.

Respectfully,

J. S. (JIM) PLOTT

Exclusive full-color scenes of the Texas City disaster of 1945 highlight the climax of "Oil Town, U. S. A.," newest film release of Bill-S Graham Evangelistic Films to be shown here on March 26, 1954, in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church of Clanton.

The Texas footage was filmed by a free-lance newsreel photographer in Houston, Texas, at the time of the disaster eight years ago. No use was made of the film until Director Dick Ross began to search for authenic scenes to highlight the story of "Oil Town, U.S.A." He located the film, unused and in storage, and made arrangements to incorporate it into the moving story of the new Billy Graham picture.

The story centers around the life of a Houston oil millionaire who is brought to an abrupt realization of his need of a religious experience through danger to his daughter's life in the Texas City holacust.

Featured in the new film are Colleen Townsend Evans, Paul Power, Robert Clarke, Georgia Lee, Ralph Hoopes and the stars of Graham's earlier film, "Mr. Texas," Redd Harper and Cindy Walker.

Evangelistic Graham and his team are portrayed in their evangelistic crusade in Houston. Parts of the picture were filmed in Rice Stadium where 60,000 persons gathered for American Evangelism's largest throng.

Bill Brown, of the Billy Graham organization, in charge of local arrangements for the showing here, has announced that the doors to the First Baptist Church auditorium will be opened at 6:00 p.m. with the first showing of the film beginning at 6:30 p.m. and the second showing at 8:30 p.m. No admission is to be charged, and all seats will be on a "first come" basis.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OFFICE TO BE CLOSED THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

The personnel in the Board of Education will attend the AEA the latter part of this week and J. H. Boockholdt, County Superintendent of Education, has announced that the offices will be closed Thursday and Friday.

HAROLD SMITH IS FOR PAVED ROADS

As your county governing body representative from district number two, which is composed of Beats 9, 3, 11 and 14, I have kept all the citizens in each beat in mind in regard to paved roads. Since the majority of the citizens in district number two live in beat nine, there has been 5.6 miles of paving completed in that beat. In beat 14 there is now approximately 2.5 miles of paved road under construction. In beat 11 right-of-way deeds are now being secured to pave approximately 2.4 miles this summer. In beat 3 there are 1.9 miles of paved road. This shows that each beat is receiving its share of paved roads.

If re-elected to serve you as your representative on the Board of Revenue and Control from District Number Two, I will continue the same policy, as in the past, of giving each beat its pro-rata share of paved roads according to its population.

During the past year the county completed over 24 miles of paved roads. It will be my policy, as in the past, to get as many miles of paved roads each year which is possible. Because of the excellent financial condition of the county, it has been able to match the State Highway Department dollar for dollar in getting paved roads. Since the county is now on a cash basis and does not have to borrow money, or issue interest bearing gasoline Tax Anticipation Warrants, as many other counties have to do, it has meant more miles of paved roads for Chilton County without the county having to go in debt. Also, due to our well qualified County Engineer, and our close cooperation among The Board of Revenue and Control and the County Engineer, it has made and will continue to make more miles of paved roads in Chilton County.

I will deeply appreciate your vote and influence for my re-election to your Board of Revenue and Control from District Number Two.

Sincerely,

A. H. (HAROLD) SMITH.

BAND BOOSTERS TURN A PIG INTO A BAND UNIFORM

It may be impossible to convert a pig's ear into a silk purse; but the local Band Boosters Club has almost performed the trick of turning a pig into a complete uniform—with some unexcelled help from some mighty good neighbors, that is.

It worked this way:

The Band Boosters Club is a group of civic minded people in our community that have undertaken the tremendous task of furnishing the Chilton County High School Band with new uniforms (at a cost of some $2,500.00). Last week some of the workers contacted Dr. W. L. Parrish for a contribution to the fund and were advised that he had a fine pig that he could donate to such a worthy cause. The workers seized the idea of trying for some additional advertising, and proceeded to contact the Central Alabama Stockyards. So, in due course all arrangements were made to have the pig donated by Dr. Parrish auctioned through the local stockyard, and the Zeigler Packing Company bought the animal at the premium price of $50.00, the price of one uniform. Good trick, if you can do it.

But, the trick could not have been done without the help and cooperation of the good neighbors mentioned above; and we want to express our deepest appreciation to all of you that took any part in the transaction: First, to Dr. Parrish for the donation, then to Central Alabama Stockyards, and finally, but most especially, to the Zeigler Company. Such community pride and such cooperation can and will make ours a still better community.

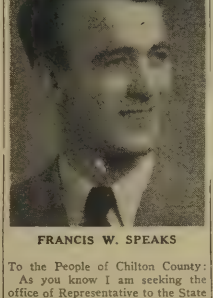
FRANCIS W. SPEAKS WRITES VOTERS



FRANCIS W. SPEAKS

To the People of Chilton County:

As you know I am seeking the office of Representative to the State Legislature from Chilton County. Since I have announced for the office I have been very gratified by the encouragement and support which I have received. However, many persons have called me and come to me concerning this rumor or that rumor which has been circulated. I would like to make these statements hoping that I might clarify my stand so that the voters may have a clear picture from which they may make their choice.

I am a resident of Chilton County by choice. I married a girl of this county, and it is my intention to rear my children here. This is the County in which I have chosen to practice my profession and if I never receive another benefit, I must say, that the people of this County have truly been my friends.

Because of this, I want to see our County grow. And in its growth I wish to take a part and to be able to grow with it. I do not believe that any truthful person in this County would believe that I would for one moment attempt to destroy any existing law, or laws, without the overwhelming demand of the people of this county. As I stated before, my desire is to build, to make this County in which you and I live a better place in which to rear our children, a better place to make a living, a better place to build our homes. I believe that with the educational training which I have, and with the full support of all the people, I will, if elected, be able to furnish some part to the educational, agricultural, and industrial development of our county.

Ronnie and Larry Caltee, sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Calfee who are visiting Mrs. Calfee's mother, Mrs. Verna Bean, were hit by an automobile on Lay Dam Road last Friday at noon. The children were playing on the bridge just east of the Bean residence.

The boys were rushed in a Martin ambulance to Maxwell Field hospital at Montgomery. Larry has returned home with only some bruises and scratches to show for his experience but Ronnie is still in a serious condition and is unconscious.

The Calfees had planned to return to their home in California the last of this month but their future plans now will be determined by the boys condition.

Driving the car that hit the boys was L. M. Martin of Atalnta, Ga. He was released by local officers as the accident was declared unavoidable.

I SPEAK FOR DEMOCRACY

By Elizabeth Ellen Evans

I am an American.
Listen to my words, Fascist, Communist.
Listen well, for my country is a strong country, and my message is a strong message.
I am an Americn, and I speak for democracy.
My ancestors have left their blood on the green at Lexington and the snow at Valley Forge
. . . on the walls of Fort Sumter and the fields at Gettysburg
. . . on the waters of the River Marne and in the shadows of the Argonne Forest
. . . on the beachheads of Salerno and Normandy and the sands of Okinawa
. . . on the bare, bleak hills called Pork Chop and Old Baldy and Heartbreak Ridge.
A million and more of my countrymen have died for freedom.
My country is their eternal monument.
They live on in the laughter of a small boy as he watches a circus clown's antics
. . . and in the sweet, delicious coldness of the first bite of peppermint ice cream on the Fourth of July
. . . in the little tenseness of a baseball crowd as the umpire calls "Batter up!"
. . . and in the high schol band's rendition of "Stars and Stripes Forever" in the Memorial Day parade
. . . in the clear, sharp ring of a school bell on a fall morning
. . . and in the triumph of a six-year-old as he reads aloud for the first time.
They live on in the eyes of an Ohio farmer surveying his acres of corn and potatoes and pasture
. . . and in the brilliant gold of hundreds of acres of wheat stretching across the flat miles of Kansas
. . . in the milling of cattle in the stockyards of Chicago
. . . the precision of an assembly line in an automobile factory in Detroit
. . . and the perpetual red glod of the nocturnal skylines of Pittsburgh and Birmingham and Gary.
They live on in the voice of a young Jewish boy saying the sacred words from the Torah: "Hear O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is One. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy might."
. . . and in the voice of a Catholic girl praying: "Hail, Mry, full of grace, the Lord is with thee . . ."
. . . and in the voice of a Protestant boy singing: "A mighty Fortress is our God, A Bulwark never failing . . ."
An American named Carl Sandburg wrote these words:
"I know a Jew fishcrier down on Maxwell Street with a voice like a north wind blowing over corn stubble in January.
He dangles herring before prospective customers evincing a joy identical with that of Pavlova dancing.
His face is that of a man terribly glad to be selling fish, terribly glad that God made fish, and customers to whom he may sell his wares from a pushcart."
There is a voice in the soul of every human being that cries out to be free. America has answered that voice. America has offered freedom and opportunity such as no land before her has ever known, to a Jew fishcrier down on Maxwell Street with the face of a man terribly glad to be selling fish.
She has given him the right to own his pushcart, to sell his herring on Maxwell Street,
. . . she has given him an education for his children, and a tremendous faith in the nation that has made these things his.
Multiply that fishcried by 160,000,000—160,000,000 mechanics and farmers and housewives and coal miners and truck drivers and chemists and lawyers and plumbers and priests—all glad, terribly glad to be what they are, terribly glad to be free to work and eat and sleep and speak and love and pray and live as they desire, as they believe!
And those 160,000,000 Americans—those 160,000,000 free Americans have more roast beef and mash potatoes, the yield of American labor and land;
. . . more automobiles and telephones,
. . . more safety razors and bathtubs,
. . . more Orlon sweaters and aureomycin,
the fruits of American initiative and enterprise;
. . . more public schools and life insurance policies, the symbols of American security and faith in the future;
. . . more laughter and song—than any other people on earth!
This is my answer, Facist, Communist!
Show me a country greater than our country, show me a people more energetic, creative, progressive—bigger-hearted and happier than our people, not until then will I consider your way of life. For I am an American, and I speak for democracy.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The controversial Tax Revision Bill was passed by the House last week by a vote of 339 to 80. The bill is reputedly one of the largest and most comprehensive legislative measures ever to come before Congress. It contains 820 large pages of fine print which embody 8,023 different sections of tax law. The Committee report that explains the measure contains more than 500 pages.

This tax revision bill rewrites and recodifies the Internal Revenue Code—the first time it has been completely overhauled and revised since 1875. Much obsolete language has been deleted; provisions have been rearranged for clarity and ease of use; and much simplification has been brought about. There was agreement between both parties as to the real need for a bill to revise our tax laws.

This bill went further, however, as it called for certain tax reductions. It was on the question of where these reductions should be made that the House divided almost entirely along party lines.

On a motion to recommit, the Democratic leadership attempted to strike from the bill a provision for special tax credits on the divided income of corporate stockholders and to substitute a $100 increase in personal exemptions for everyone.

Most of the Democratic members felt that, if any tax relief was to be given, it should be given to as many taxpayers as possible. By doing this with increased exemptions for the individual taxpayer, the purchasing power in the hands of consumers would be greatly increased, thereby stimulating the nation's economy which has shown recent signs of sagging.

The Republicans felt, however, that the Federal budget could not stand a further loss of revenue amounting to approximately $2 billion, and they urged defeat of the recommittal motion. By a vote of 210 to 204, the motion failed to pass.

Funds for New Dam

The Civil Functions Appropriations bill that passed the House last week contains two items of special interest to all Alabamians.

An appropriation of $3.4 million to continue work on the Demopolis Lock and Dam is the first item of interest. The structure is now almost 80 per cent complete. The second item is an appropriation of $1.5 million to begin construction on the Warrior Lock and Dam. This new installation, to be located between the Demopolis Dam and Oliver Dam at Tuscaloosa, will eliminate antiquated locks and dams 8 and 9 on the Warrior River and will cost approximately $19.5 million to build.

When the House Appropriations Committee retained $1.5 million in the Civil Functions Appropriations bill for the Warrior Lock and Dam, I knew the greatest roadblock had been cleared away and House passage was certain. Such was the case.

There is a good possibility the Senate will increase to $2 million the sum appropriated by the House for this project. If so, the House-Senate Conference Committee will probably agree on a sum between $1.7 and $1.8 million. In any event, I feel reasonably sure the funds necessary to begin construction of this important link in the Warrior-Tombigbee system will be forthcoming and that construction will start during the calendar year.

Introduces Veterans Bill

I introduced in the House last week a bill that, if enacted into law, will permit veterans of the Korean War to have until October 15, 1954, to start their courses of education or training under the GI Bill of Rights. The present law requires any veteran discharged on or before August 20, 1952, to begin his courses by August 20 of this year. Veterans released from service after the 1952 date have until two years following thier date of discharge to initiate their education or training.

Most schools, particularly colleges and universities, do not open until after August 20. As a result, many begin their education this fall under Korean veterans will not be able to the GI Bill since their eligibility runs out before the school open.

When this problem was brought to my attention by the Alabama State Board of Veterans Affairs, I requested the VA Administrator, through the chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee, to issue a special ruling extending the August 20 date for 60 days. After learning that such a ruling could not be issued, I introduced a bill to extend the date to October 15, 1954. The bill has been referred to the Veterans Affairs Committee for consideration.

United States Poll

Cut Down Speed; Raise Age Limit Of Drivers

Princeton, New Jersey—One of the most important problems facing the nation today is the reduction of the auto accident toll.

The importance of the problem was highlighted last month by President Eisenhower's White House Conference on Highway Safety.

In his speech to the Conference members on February 17, the President said that more people had been killed in auto accidents in the last 50 years than had been killed in all the wars that the nation has engaged in since its founding.

In 1953, Mr. Eisenhower said, more than 38,000 people died as a result of auto accidents and more than 100,000 people were seriously injured.

The President further added that last year there were more than one million auto accidents in the nation.

Unquestionably, the problem of cutting auto accidents is one of the nation's most serious problems.

To determine what the American public think can be done about the problem of auto accident reduction, the United States Poll this month asked a representative cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"What one suggestion do you have for cutting auto accidents in this state?"

Results of the survey show that three ways for cutting down auto accidents are uppermost on American people's minds at the present time:

1. Stricter law enforcement; stricter enforcement of traffic laws; better law enforcement.

2. Cutting down speeding; curb speeding; less speed; slow them up a bit.

3. Changing the age limits for drivers: raise license age; too many young people in accidents: raise drivers age limits to 20 or 21.

Just about one out of every two people interviewed mentioned one of the above three. And each was named at least twice as often as any other single suggestion.

Next most important ways to reduce auto accidents, judging by the number of mentions are these:

4. People should drive more carefully; there's too much careless driving.

5. Stricter license examinations.

6. Reexamination of all drivers at periodic intervals.

7. The need for more traffic and highway police.

8. Drivers should be more courteous: need more courtesy on the road.

9. Better highways between all big cities.

10. Take old cars off the road: take all cars built before 1945 off the road.

More control of ten age drivers; governors on all cars to cut down their speed; the need for consolidating all traffic regulations on a state and national basis, and compulsory auto insurance also received some mention.

Following are some typical comments that sum up the thinking of many of the nation's citizens.

There should be better highway supervision by the police.

They should enforce the speed laws.

Make the age limit for drivers higher.

Make people drive slower.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

THE ESOPHAGUS

The esophagus is a canal that extendss from the rear of the mouth to the stomach. It passes behind the windpipe from which it is separated by a muscle that closese when we swallow, thus keeping food out of the windpipe and lungs. The canal passes through the chest, lying mostly on top of the backbone. When the esophagus reaches the bottom of the chest, it passes through the muscular partition between the chest and abdomen to enter the stomach. The muscular partition is called the diaphragm. The esophagus is about the size of the barrel of an average shotgun. However, unlike a shotgun barrel the tbue is a soft structure that collopses when not in use or expands to let food and drink through.

Because of the automatic function of the esophagus and because it is seldom involved in disease we're inclined to give it little thought. However, trouble can arise.

X-ray films are employed in the examination of the esophagus. Because the organ itself will be shadowless, the patient is given a mixture to swallow so that the esophagus will show on the film and the physician can study it.

Another valuable aid in this examination is the instrument called the esophagoscope which allows direct vision of the suspected area. It also permits the removal of a small amount of tissue for laboratory examination to prove or eliminate the possibility of cancer.

While diseases of the esophagus are not common, they do occur. If a regular difficulty in swallowing is noticed, medical advice should be sought at once. Early detection and diagnosis of the difficulty will result in more immediate recovery.

There should be strict enforcement of existing laws.

Hurrying is what causes accidents. If people would give themselves a little more time to reach their destinations, there would be less accidents.

They should be a little more severe with violators.

Minors should not be allowed to drive recklessly.

There should be more rigid driving exams for licenses.

We need more traffic law enforcement officials.

SELECT THAT FINISHING TOUCH VERY CAREFULLY

Attractive finishing touches lend individuality to a living room, says Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishing specialist.

Among those decorations that add charm to a room are pictures, lamps, books, magazines, and ornaments.

In selecting pictures, suggests the home expert, be sure you choose restful scenes that appeal to all members of the family. Lamps of simple design with plain shades are both tasteful and serviceable. Add a diffusing bulb to reading lamps, and use a shade with a light lining to provide a good spread of light.

Particularly inviting in a living room are open book shelves combined with a desk or cabinets. Another interesting feature is a large flat basket for daily newspapers and magazines. Ornaments of different heights grouped together in a balanced arrangement are eye catching and often add the completing touch to a mantel, table, desk, or bookcase.

IS YOUR NET FARM INCOME GETTING THE SQUEEZE?

The prices of most farm products ARE DOWN. The cost of what farmers have to buy HAS NOT declined. The margin of profit is LESS. These are facts faced by many farmers—

A PRICE - COST SQUEEZE!

Because of these very conditions, farmers may need MORE CREDIT — LONG-TERM CREDIT — the kind that is available in a LAND BANK LOAN. These loans are made for terms of 5 years up to 40 years, at 4 PER CENT interest—the LOWEST rate in the history of farm mortgage lending.

LAND BANK LOANS carry other special benefits, in addition to the low interest and long time in which to repay. A LAND BANK LOAN may be REPAID IN FULL at any time WITHOUT CHARGE for that privilege. You only have to pay the principal, and interest earned to date of payment.

LAND BANK LOANS are made through and serviced by your local NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION, which is managed by your own neighbors and friends.

If you NEED MORE OPERATING CAPITAL—if you have an accumulation of SCATTERED DEBTS—

Your Welfare Department Belongs Only To You

Your Welfare Department belongs to you. Your tax money supports it; it exists in your county to help you and the community.

Welfare Services provided by your county department of public welfare include:

Casework to help people help themselves;

Financial aid for the aged, blind, permanently and totally disabled and dependent children who are in need and meet the requirements;

Assistance in locating new resources;

Participation in community planning;

Referral to other agencies;

Special services to children and in behalf of children;

Family counseling.

In these and other ways your welfare department works daily to make your community and your county a better place in which to live.

Welfare Funds are limited. For that reason welfare requirements are strict. This means even greater emphasis on social service to help more people become self-supporting. It means that every community must find ways to supply the needs of the welfare department cannot meet and to "lend a hand" to those who are not eligible for welfare assistance.

Welfare Policies are the same all over the State. They are based on State and Federal welfare laws. Their purpose is to make certain that limited welfare money goes to those who need it most and that payments to this group will be as high as possible with the funds available. The laws make certain that the Welfare Department gives equal treatment to people with equal need all over the state.

Policies are stricter and welfare allowances are less than they were last year. Some of the current policies are:

If a person's unmet need is only $10.00 or less, he cannot get aid.

If a person owns a car or truck and does not use it in business for a profit, he cannot get aid.

If there are two ablebodied parents—though one may be a stepparent or parent substitute—the children in the home cannot get aid.

If there is one able-bodied parent in the home who can make satisfactory plans for the children and can get a job, that parent cannot get aid if he or she defuses to work.

The most that can be included in a public assistance budget for general medical care is $10 a month. It used to be $15. And only emergent medical care can be included.

The Welfare allowance for food now includes more low-cost food items. The allowance takes into account the different age groups and is enough for an adequate diet —foods considered have the same food value as those in the higher allowance that used to be put in the budget. For example, dry milk costs less than whole milk but has the same food value.

The Relative Responsibility Law and the $800 Real Property Limitation are still in effect. Also the Welfare Department considers that half the needs of an applicant or recipient are met if he is claimed as a dependent on an income tax return. This is because, in order to claim some one as an exemption for income tax purposes, you must supply at least half of that person's needs.

Welfare Aid in Chilton County was reaching 887 cases in September, 1953. This total included the following:

No. of cases, Type of aid:
676 Old Age Assistance; 9 Aid to Blind; 122 Aid to Dependent Children, (including 333 children; 10 Aid to Children in Foster Care; 67 Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled; 3 Temporary Aid.

Payments during 1952-53 were not adequate. Theymet only 70 percent of the needs of the aged, *0 per cent of the needs of the blind, 57 per cent of the needs of the permanently and totally disabled, and 43 per cent of the needs of the dependent children families.

In 1953-54, under the stricter policies, fewer people will be eligible for aid. It is hoped, therefore, that payments can be raised for those who continue to receive welfare checks.

Welfare Services other than financial aid was benefitting 39 families as of September 30, 1953.

The people in Chilton County who are responsible for the operation of the Welfare policies are:

Chilton County Deaprtment of Public Welfare staff, Sept. 30, 1953: Director, Janice Freeland; Case Workers, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Miller, Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby, Mrs. Margaret Wadsworth, Edith F Wooley; Child Welfare Worker, Mrs. Helen V. Vance; Office Workers, Mrs. Bobbye D. Minor, A. N. Laurell, Mrs. Edna J. Higgins.

The following are members of the Chilton County Board of Public Welfare, September 30, 1953:

M. L. White, Chairman, Clanton; John Hollis, Co-Chairman, Rt. 1, Verbena; Mrs. Joe Mullins, Secretary, Clanton; Mrs. James H. Kincaid, Thorsby; Mrs. E. C. Lecroy, Maplesville; Mrs. C. L. Walton, Jemison; Mrs. L. C. Warr, Clanton.

First Baptist To Show "Oiltown, U. S. A." Movie

Rev. Billy Graham, internationally known Evangelist and producer of the world's first Christian western film "Mr. Texas," has made another religious film, "Oil Town U. S. A." to be presented here in a premiere showing on March 26, 1954 one night only, in the First Baptist Church of Clanton auditorium.

Bill Brown, a member of the Billy Graham organization in charge of local arrangements for the showing, announced that there will be two showings of the picture—one showing at 6:30 p.m. and the other at 8:30 p.m. The doors of the auditorium will be opened at 6:00 p.m.

Graham's new film features the evangelist and members of his team in their city-wide evangelistic crusade in Houston, Texas, last summer. Highlighting the film are scenes from the meeting in Rice Stadium where 60,000 gathered to hear Graham for the largest evangelistic meeting in American history.

Featured in the film are professional Hollywood players who have become Christians themselves, including Colleen Townsend Evans, Georgia Lee, Paul Power, Robert Clarke and the stars of "Mr. Texas," Redd Harper and Cindy Walker.

"Oil Town U. S. A." is in natural color and is approximately ninety minutes in length.

Dr. Hutchinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, pointed out that there is no charge for admission, and that the 399 seats of the First Baptist Church auditorium will be on a "first come" basis.

Our Profound Thanks

We have always thought that our railroad served the finest lot of people in the country. The experience which we have had in taking off four trains—a Little Rebel train in each direction in the State of Mississippi and a train in each direction between Artesia, Mississippi and Montgomery, Alabama places us under renewed obligations to do our full duty toward that territory which has so fully recognized our problem and so thoroughly cooperated with us. Likewise, we have known that our employees, as a whole, were loyal and were sincere in their desire to see this railroad prosper and be of large service to the public.

As we have said before, we do not take off passenger trains simply because they are losing money. If, however, they serve no essential purpose to the public, then the money which we lose should go into more worthwhile channels.

We repeat again that we are not a rich railroad. As Executive Vice President Brock recently testified, in eleven of the last twenty-four years the railroads comprising the present GM&O system had a large deficit. But we desire to do all the good we can with what net income we have. Only a very small portion of it is actually paid to our stockholders. In the last nine years, ending with 1953, the best period in our history, we had a total net income of forty-eight million dollars. During these same years, however, we plowed back into our property through improvements and the purchase of new equipment eighty-six million dollars, thus necessitating large borrowing. We hope this is an indication of our recognition of the public welfare.

Above all, we are trying dilligently to keep abreast of the times. Although this requires considerable capital, the public can best be served by a modern railroad. It is our endeavor to take advantage of technological progress as fast as it is developed. We were the first major railroad to completely discard the steam locomotive for diesel, and when something better is developed we hope to have it.

We admit that, standing alone, the loss of more than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars out-of-pocket on the trains above mentioned would not bankrupt this company. However, these are not our only losses on passenger service and if we had not eliminated the numerous unprofitable and little used passenger trains, in keeping with the times and circumstances, our deficits would have been staggering. Our efforts to progress and modernize would have been severely curtailed.

We are as ambitious to build this railroad for permanency as we have ever been—perhaps more so. In addition to furnishing adequate operating facilities, we desire to spend more money to acquire new industries and on our forestry and our better homes programs. We desire to continue to contribute to all those civic endeavors which make for better living. And finally, we must begin to reduce our debt.

Again, for the understanding which so many people have given our problem, we extend warm thanks.

I. B. TIGRETT,
Chairman.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Ladonya Tucker Madison

One of these days I'm going to circulate a petition, which every mother in the neighborhood will sign, to the manufacturers of cereals asking them to stop putting pribes in their products. Of course the manufacturers will ignore the petition, but, O, how much simpler grocery shopping would be if the boxes of cereal contained only cereal!

When the five-year-old and the seven-year-old go to the grocery store with me, they head straight for the shelves of cereal. It's not that they're particularly fond of this food, but they do delight in the premiums. They have a terrible time deciding whether to buy the kind with six free marbles or cowboy trading cards or a magic trick to amaze their friends or a space man or cut-out masks or a supersonic ring or 3-D pictures of Roy Rogers or finger puppets or secrets of clown make-up. The variety or taste of the cereal makes no difference; it's the pribes that count.

The rule of the house is that no new cereal, no matter how tempting its prize, may be bought until the old package has been eaten. That's why the five-year-old muttered between soggy bites at breakfast the other morning.

"This marble stuff isn't too good. I believe Roy Rogers would taste better."

The next door neighbor, like the rest of us, was disturbed when the price of coffee began climbing, and everybody in the whole neighborhood knew she'd think of some way to get extra value out of her coffee dollar.

And she did. When we stopped by to see her recently, she was busy making pin cushions and stuffing them with dried coffee grounds. She says the dried grounds are ideal for this purpose.

When she accumulates a large quantity of the grounds, too much for pin cushion stuffing, she sprinkles them on the concrete floor of her garage before sweeping it. Nothing is wasted around her house.

The neighbor around the corner was struggling to get the top off a bottle of glue when we went to see her the other morning. The top was stuck fast, and she had a lot of trouble getting it off.

She won't have to struggle with it next time she opens it though because after she got the top off, she rubbed the top of the bottle with lard before putting the lid back on.

This same neighbor also has a trick for opening a bottle of nail polish when the top is stuck. She turns the bottle upside down, puts a few drops of polish remover around the edge of the cap, lets it stand a few minutes, and the top then comes off easily.

The neighbor across the street was very unhappy when King, the biggest dog in the neighborhood, chose her flower bed to lie down and roll in, crushing her pansies and breaking off part of her prize azalea. She learned too late that moth balls "planted" in her flower bed would have made all dogs shy away from the area.

Our good cook neighbor often makes Swedish Nut Bars like this: Beat 6 egg yolks until thick and tripled in volume. Slowly add 1 1-4 cup sugar, beating until thick (about 10 minutes). Slowly fold in 3 1-2 cups finely ground pecans and 3 tablespoons almond extract. Beat 6 egg white until stiff and fold into yolk mixture. Pour into square pan lined with greased paper and bake 325 degrees for an hour or until done. Cool in pan 10 minutes before turning out.

AAUW Book Review

"Son of a Hundred Kings," by Thomas B. Costain.

What is the measure of a man's worth? Using the quotation from Kipling "Duke's Son—Cook's son—Son of a Hundred Kings," Thomas B. Costain has woven a highly entertaining story around a little boy who came to Canada from England with a sign on his back asking people to be kind to him.

Ludar Redcraft, who was given the name, Prentice, that his father had assumed when he came to Canada as a fugitive from England, arrived in Bolfour, Ontario on New Year's Day 1890, to find that his father had committed suicide that day, not knowing that his son had been sent to him. Ludar was given a home by Billy Christian and his wife, Tillie. The family was very poor and Ludar's life was a struggle to rise above his surrounding conditions.

The story has a minor theme in the feud between the families of the rich and influential Craven brothers. This affected Ludar in that his best friend was a son of the house of Craven and his rival for Tony Milner's love was a son of the other branch of the feuding family.

There is an interesting account of life in the small Canadian town of the gay nineties. The characters are well drawn and have a suggestion of Dickens in the choice of names.

The boy, who was called a Duke, turned out to be a Cook's son, but he proved that a man's individual worth is within himself.

This novel, by the author of the widely read ::The Silver Chalice," is available at the Chilton County Library in the Chilton County News Building.

Library—The following is found in the book, "The World is a Bridge:"

Said Jesus—on whom be peace!—
"The World is a bridge:
Pass over it, and build no house."
(Inscription at Fatehpur-Sikri.)

"How many a man has dated a new era in his life from the reading of a book. The book exists for us perchance which will explain our miracles and reveal new ones. The at present unutterable things we may find somewhere uttered. These same questions that disturb and puzzle and confound us have in their turn occurred to all the wise men; not one has been omitted; and each has answered them according to his ability, by his word, and his life."—Henry David Thoreau.

"Book love, my friends, is your pass to the greatest, the purest, and the most perfect pleasure that God has prepared for His creatures. It lasts when all other pleasures fade. It will support you when all other recreations are gone. It will last you until your death. It will make your hours pleasant to you as long as you live."—Anthony Trollope.

The Spring blew trumpets of color
Her green sang in my brain
I saw a blind man groping
Tap, tapping with his cane
I pitied him in his blindness
But can I boast I see?

Perhaps there lurks a spirit nearby, who pities me.
A spirit who watches me tapping
My five-sensed cane of mind
Amid such ungnessed glories
That I am worse than blind!

Miss Sue Bratton Complimented—

Miss Sue Bratton, bride-elect of Mr. Johnny McKinney, was complimented with a tea shower March 21 at the home of Miss Sybil Langston.

The honoree was lovely in a bouffant lavender net with matching stole. Her corsage was of pink carnations tied with lavender ribbon.

Mrs. A. C. Bratton, mother of the bride-elect wore black chiffon and lace with a corsage of red carnations. Miss Sybil Langston received guests in a mauve waltz length gown with a corsage of peach snapdragons.

Mrs. Joe Bratton, wearing scalloped shoutung taffeta with pink carnations, registered guests in the bride's book.

Decorations and refreshments were in pastel tints of pink, lavender, yellow and green. White tapers in silver holders and pastel snapdragons were used in the receiving room.

The entrance to the dining room was marked with a bridal bouquet tied with white satin ribbon. Streamers from the bouquet were looped through golden wedding rings bearing the names of Miss Bratton and her fiance. Violets, roses, and ornamental butterfliese marked the ribbon loops.

A white lace cloth centered with silver candelabra covered the refreshment table. The white tapers were tied with white satin ribbon featuring miniature butterflies. Decorated cakes, mints, nuts, and punch were served to the guests who registered during the afternoon.

A ruffled parasol, from which rained gift packages, marked the entrance to the room where gifts were displayed.

The musical program included selections by the "Harmonettes" composed of Misses Bartton, Barbara Jo Beaman, June Handley, Janice Jones, and Mrs. Hollis Messer (Alyce Jo) accompanied by Mrs. C. L. Slim, Trim Lines In Spring Styles

Featured in the spring fashion parade is the slim, trim shape.

Slim lines predominate for day time dresses, flared skirts for evening wear. Also appearing in the style limelight, says Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, are one-piece dresses. The empire-princess silhouette is another exciting note this year.

Would you trade a Penny for a Dollar?

● You can if you use Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda for your top-dressing and side-dressing needs. It costs a little more because it's worth more. But the difference in cost usually can be measured in pennies per acre, while the difference in value often amounts to dollars per acre.

Chilean "Bulldog" Soda gives you generous extra value. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate. It's 100 per cent available (quick-acting); 100 per cent dependable. The minor elements make crops stronger, healthier. The sodium—26 pounds in every 100-pound sack—is a key to maximum returns on your entire fertilizer investment. It offsets the bad effects of acid-forming fertilizers...increases the efficiency of mixed fertilizers containing them. It releases "locked-up" potash in the soil...increases the availability and efficiency of soil phosphate...reduces potash, calcium and magnesium losses by leaching...develops larger, deeper root systems.

Sodium builds up the productivity of your land—more each year. It's an essential element for some crops...beneficial to most and necessary for maximum yields of many.

Pennies-per-acre difference in cost may mean dollars-per-acre difference in value to you. Chilean "Bulldog" Soda is the best fertilizer your money can buy. Use it for all of your top-dressing and side-dressing needs.

What LAURIE BATTLE Believes An ALABAMA Senator Should Be

LAURIE C. BATTLE
The Veterans' Candidate for U. S. Senate

Son of Rev. W. R. Battle, Methodist minister 40 years, serving churches throughout Alabama. Worked way through college. Fought as a Private (World War II); promoted through ranks to Major. Named 1 of the 3 outstanding Democratic Congressmen. Married, father of 3 children.

He should be a loyal Southern Democrat—everywhere and all the time. He should stand up and speak out for our people's customs and traditions, not only here in Alabama but also wherever they are threatened.

He should be completely fair to all—farmers, labor, management, and white-collar workers, always recognizing that the public interest must come first.

He should be fearless in voting his convictions regardless of offense to any clique or faction.

He should be alert to see that our State receives its fair share of Federal expenditures and agencies.

He should work full time for all the people of Alabama and keep constantly and closely in touch with them.

He should be diligent and earnest in the discharge of his duties and appreciative of the serious responsibilities that rest on him.

He should patriotically place above all else the security of the United States of America.

Use Boiling Wtaer On Your Coffee, Tea Stains

AUBURN, Ala.—Here's a tip for homemakers who discover coffee or tea stains on their napkins and fine linen tablecloths.

Fresh stains will washout immediately in warm suds, says Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist.

Old spots of coffee or tea respond to the boiling water treatment, adds the home leader. First, stretch the stained area over a bowl. Then from a height of about two feet pour boiling water over the fabric until the pressure of the water drives out the stain. After that launder the linens in the usual way.

Profit In Trees From Newly Cleared Ground

Don't burn dollars when clearing new ground, warns API Extension Forester I. R. Martin.

"Growers continue to pile and burn saplings and poles that would make good fence posts or inexpensive low-grade lumber for farm repair work," says the farm leader.

Martin also suggests that farmers keep the pulpwood market in mind when clearing off new land. Many times it offers the most profitable way to sell smaller diameter trees.

Selden Asks More Funds For Phony Peach Fight

Congressman Armistead Selden testified before the House Appropriations Committee recently to urge an increase in funds for the phony peach control program. The budget for the Agriculture Department for fiscal year 1955, which the Committee is now considering, includes only $39,000 in Federal funds for aiding the various states to fight the phony disease.

Rep. Selden pointed out that the phony peach control program protects an industry that has an estimated value of $17 million. "New control practices have been put into effect as rapidly as they have been released by research entomologists and pathologist," he said. "This procedure has been effective and the disease has been controlled to a large degree."

He added, however, that it would not be possible for some states, such as Alabama, to quickly assume the responsibility for handling all or even a large share of the program. Rep. Selden then pointed out that failure to control phony peach disease on one state might endanger the entire peach industry.

Continuing his testimony, the Sixth District Congressman said, "Last year there was a reduction of Federal funds for the phony peach control program, and in the budget now under consideration the amount has been slashed to $39,000. Such a reduction of Federal funds can only mean further curtailment of the control program in Alabama. Should an up-surge of this disease result, the amount of expenditures necessary to again bring the disease under control would undoubtedly be much larger than the amount now expended for control work."

He requested the Committee members to give serious consideration to the matter, and, if possible, to increase the funds for phony peach control for fiscal 1955.

Congressman Selden appeared before this same committee last year to urge the appropriation of funds for the peach disease control program in 1954. The budget under study by the Committee at that time included no funds for the program. However, the House Committee reconsidered the matter following Rep. Selden's testimony and recommended a total of $78,000 to fight the phony peach and peach mosaic diseases during the current fiscal year. This amount was later raised to $139,000 by a joint House-Senate Conference Committee and approved by Congress.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

"Jesus Washing the Disciples Feet" will be the Sabbath Sermon topic. Text: "If I then your Lord and Master have washed your feet ye ought also to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done unto you." Jno. 13:14-15.

It is often preached that Jesus did not mean just what he said here. But suppose some texts could be found where Jesus, before His death, observed the first day of the week and then said: "If I then your Lord and Master have observed the first day of the week ye ought also to observe there first day of the week. For I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done." Do we suppose that Sunday keepers would have any difficulty in understanding just what Jesus meant? Of course there is no such text. "Consistency, thou art a jewell."

—By Ben

Mr. Charles Wade announces that the Wadesonian Theatre will be closed each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday until further notice. However, she invites all her customers over to the Wadesonian Theatre which will start showing a full week's schedule each week. This is a temporary arrangement Mrs. Wade says and future schedules will be announced.

A man entered the cafe the other morning and ordered a cup of coffee. Then he proceeded to pour ketsup in it, then added salt and pepper. Then he yelled to the surprised waitress: "This coffee tastes horrible." "No wonder," replied the waitress, "after putting ketchup, salt and pepper in it." "That's right," he answered, "bring me some mustard."

The official list of qualified voters will be published next week. It has increased in number by more than one-third since the last list was published two years ago. There will probably be a few names on the list that shouldn't be there because of the new law allowing those who have reached the age of 47 years to qualify without paying any poll tax. You see, if for instance someone registered several years ago but had let their poll tax get behind but in the meantime had reached the age of 47 years, they would automatically become eligible to vote. Well, it that person had moved or died the Probate office would have no way of knowing unless they were notified—which in most cases they probably weren't. However, let us say the list of qualified voters is as near perfect as it is possible to get one under the circumstances and there will be a supplemental list published within a short time.

The other day Odell Payton was hanging around the office and the corner at the Shell Station. We asked him what the trouble was and it seems that Odell was having to wait on his automobile. He was having some repairs made. Odell has done worn out one automobile in his race for Sheriff—ye gads. With six weeks to go he may have to buy another automobile.

ANNUAL 4-H COUNTY SKIRT AND DRESS REVUE SET FOR APRIL 3RD

Chilton County's Annual 4-H Skirt and Dress Revue will be held at the Clanton City Hall at 9:00 a.m., Saturday, April 3rd.

During the month of March, each of the twenty-one Clubs in the County held a revue. A total of 190 garments were made by the girls in the County and entered in the revues. Of these 100 were selected to participate in the County Revue.

4-H Club girls in the elementary grades made skirts and those in junior high school made dresses. The dresses are divided into two groups. The junior Revue is for girls twelve and thirteen and the Senior Revue is for girls fourteen and older. First, second and third place winners will be selected from each group. The first place winner from the Senior Revue will represent Chilton County in the State 4-H Dress Revue during State Camp July 5th-10th.

Girls are to have their garment nicely pressed and bring it to the Revue on a coat hanger. Garments will be judged first for workmanship. Then the girls will put their skirts and dresses on and they will be judged for appearance and neatness.

The honor was presented to Joe Hayes at the prize giving and speech day by Mr. W. E. S. Zuill, member of the Board of Eduaction, on behalf of the Rev. J. Cattell, Headmaster of Whitney Institute.

THE CATHEDRAL OF THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

Friends of the Catholics in Clanton are offering their sympathy at the loss caused by the heavy damage to the Sanctuary of the Cathedral in the recent fire which started in the cellar. The Fire Chief stated "It was definitely the most difficult blaze to control in Mobile's history." It was the first fire in the historic Cathedral. The church was started in 1835, and dedicated in 1850. It is the See City church of one of the oldest dioceses in the United States, and is the first Cathedral in the U. S. to be named in honor of Our Lady under her title of the Immaculate Conception.

The original cost of the church which took 15 years to complete is estimated at $80,000. In 1952, to mark the Silver Jubilee of Bishop Toolen, the entire church was refurnished at a cost of over $4,000.

Two firemen, former altar boys at the Cathedral, Capt. H. H. Edwards, Jr., and Leroy McAtee braved the choking smoke and imminent danger to rescue the Blessed Sacrament from the tabernacle on the main altar. The ancient records of the church, known as Diocesan Archives, were not damaged. The tombs of the five Bishops buried in the Cathedral cellar are also reported as undamaged by the fire and water.

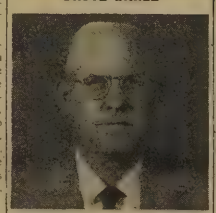
Registrars Meet April 5 And 19

On April 5th and again on April 19th the Chilton County Board of Registrars will be in session at the courthouse. There are many citizens of the county according to Probate Judge M. D. Tingle, who have paid their poll tax but have not registered. He urges them to meet with the Board of Registrars on one of the above dates and register so that they will be eligible to participate in the May and June primaries.

The Judge wished to impress on these citiens that they were not qualified voters and he could not enter their names on this list until they had registered with the Board of Registrars.

Attended LP Gas Convention

BRUCE BARZE



HENDERSON BATES

Local businessmen win all expense paid trip to Liquefied Petrolem Gas Corporation in Atlanta, Georgia, May 21-25.

The Southeastern District of the National LPGas Association held their annual convention in Atlanta, Georgia this past week. This area includes Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, and North Carolina.

Henderson Bates was eligible to attend with all expenses paid by exceeding his sales quota for the period from January 1st to March 15. Bruce Barze became eligible by exceeding the quota f over all sales volume of the Clanton Suburban Gas Co.

The LPGas Industry is one of the fastest growing businesses in this country. Since the end of World War II it's growth has been second only to television.

Barze says that the main thing that impressed him about the convention was the magniture—this industry that was only begun in Alabama in 1932 has become a veritable giant. When the Suburban Gas Co. was founded in 1937 they were the third LPGas Co. to go in business in Alabama. Now just 17 years later there is one or more LPGas Co. to cover every area in the State. Over 900 LP men were officially registered for the 1954 convention.

DIRECT GI LOAN POSSIBLE

Bob Fullen, Chilton County Veteran Service Officer, has been advised that chances of getting a direct loan from the VA might become a reality in the near future.

According to Fullen, there is now before congress a bill (H. R. 8152) which would add $100 millon to the VA's direct loan revolving fund and passage of the bill seemed certain.

Out of 44,000 direct loans made by the VA, only four-tenths of one per cent of the outsatnding had been defaulted through January 31 and 519 had been pair in full.

Direct loans are generally confined to rural or semi-rural areas such as Chilton County where private financing at four and one-half percent is not available to veterans.

Fullen suggested that veterans interested in securing direct loans either see him or contact the Veterans Administration and have their names placed on the waiting list so that if and when the direct money does become available your name won't be so far down the list.

Absentee Votes To Be Cast April 14 Through 29

April 14 through April 29 are the days on which you can cast your absentee vote in the coming election. That is in case you are going to be out of the county on eletcion day which is May 4.

The Attorney General has ruled that it is not illegal to cast your absentee vote on Sunday or at night so that those whose work keeps them late and they cannot get to the courthouse within regular working hours can vote at night or on Sunday.

This has caused much controversy in the past and the Attorney General's opinion in this case should set some minds at ease.

A Letter To The Candidates

To The Democratic Candidates of Chilton County:

Gentlemen:

Under Section 349, Title 17, 1940 Code of Alabama, each candidate for nomination may at least 25 days before the Primary, present to the county committee of his party a list of election officers desired by him for one or more of the boxes.

Act. No. 755 (1953 Regular Session, Acts of Alabama, page 1017) amends Section 279 of Title 17, 1940 Code of Alabama, as follows:

Not more than 15 days nor less than 10 days prior to the election and within 15 days after the election every committee shall file statements giving in itemized, detailed form, including names, items and detailed amounts, covering all of the expenditures made directly or indirectly, and all obligations, debts or liabilities assumed or incurred at the time of tiling of said statements. Such statement shall include the names of all contributors of amounts in excess of ten dollars, with amount by each, and a list of all gifts, loan or contribution made. Such statement shall itemize all moneys expended in sums over five dollars, and shall give the names of the various persons to whom such moneys were paid, the specific nature of each item, by whom the service was performed, and the purpose for which it was expended. There shall be attached to such statement an affidavit subscribed and sworn to by the treasurer of said committee setting forth in substance that the statements thus made is in all respects true, and that the same is a full and detailed statement of all moneys, securities or equivalents for money coming under the control or custody of the committee and by them expended directly or indirectly."

Failure to comply with the requirements of the above Act and Sections 278 and 280 of Title 17, 1940 Code, is a corrupt practice and would result in the candidate not being placed upon the ballot to be used in the election.

I felt you would be interested in my calling your attention to the change of time for filing the statements.

Yours sincerely,
J. B. ATKINSON, Chrm.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Congratulations to Bruce Barze and his Suburban Gas Company on their Third Anniversary in Clanton.

The Suburban Gas Company is planning a big celebration for the occasion and you will be seeing more about it in your weekly newspaper. We wish for them a long and successful business life in Chilton County.

HERE'S PART OF THE ANSWER

The problem of lives squandered on Alabama highways has gained the paramount interest of a large number of our citizens. A statewide speed limit was invoked to try to lower the count of dead produced in accidents on highways. The Alabama Highway Patrol has done a good job of enforcing this law, but the patrolmen are small in number and the highways of Alabama are many and long. People being people drivers are still speeding and probably will always do so.

Part of the answer to this threat to life and limb lies in the construction of highways suited to 1954 traffic rather than continued use of roads built for traffic of 20 and 30 years ago. A graphic illustration of what a good, modern highway can do may be seen on U. S. 31 south of Birmingham. A 4-lane, divided highway has been opened for several miles south of the Magic City. We rode over this stretch a couple of Sundays ago at the hour when the peak load of traffic is on the highway. While on the 4-lane section we made good time driving just a shade under 60. There was a smooth flow of traffic and no long string of cars. What a difference within a few hundred yards after the 4-lane went back into the old 2-lane road. Immediately we noticed a string of some 12 or 15 cars and trucks following behind a slow-moving vehicle. Within a mile we saw another cluster of traffic following a "Sunday driver." Situations like these breed accidents. Some fellow becomes outdone with the snail's pace he's held to and takes a chance by trying to pass when he shouldn't. Such an act is not conductive to long life.

Yes, 4-lanes for heavily traveled highways are not only a convenience, but they are part of the answer to Alabama's problem of high fatality rate on highways.—Evergreen Courant.

FEUDIN' RINGMASTERS

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Veterans who plan to build homes under the direct loan program will be interested to know that the House passed and sent to the Senate last week a bill to extend this program for a period of one year. The legislation also authorizes a maximum $100 million for the program's revolving fund. This amount is to be allocated in quarterly installments of $25 million each, less the proceeds of direct loan sales in the preceding quarter. The loan program is presently scheduled to expire on June 30 of this year.

In supporting this legislation on the floor of the House, I pointed out that the direct loan program was originally enacted in 1950 to enable veterans living in small towns and semirural communities to benefit from the GI housing program. Under this legislation, veterans can qualify for direct loans only if they are judged to be good credit risks and can furnish evidence that they have been unable to obtain a housing loan from private sources at 4 1-2 percent interest. These loans are repaid by the veterans with profit to the federal treasury.

In emphasizing to House members that the government is not losing money on the direct loan program, I used the State of Alabama as an example. As of January 31, 1954, there have been 1,745 fully disbursed direct loans made in our State for an average amount of $7,284. Of the total number of loans outstanding, only 0.5 percent are in default. This latter figure, certainly a tribute to the veterans of Alabama, is a good indication that the federal government is not to date losing money on the veterans direct loan program.

This point was further emphasized during the debate by another member of the House who stated that if the program continues for the full 20 years, the government will make about $70 million. At the same time, it will continue to make it possible for thousands of veterans to borrow the funds necessary to build homes for their families.

In concluding my statement to the House in favor of the bill to extend the direct loan program and to add a maximum 100 million to its revolving fund, I made the following observations:

"It was my hope that the amount currently authorized for the direct loan program would be increased by the legislation now under consideration. Inadequate funds for this program have built up long waiting lists. In my state, for example, there are more than 1300 veterans whose loans are now awaiting further appropriation of funds. Yet, with ample evidence that additional funds were needed, it was the opinion of the members of the Veterans' Affairs Committee that the Congress would not appropriate funds in excess of $100 million at this time."

"Should the demand for direct loans to veterans fail to be met in fiscal 1955 by the funds available, I hope the present administration will recommend increased funds for the revolving fund of the direct loan program for the following fiscal year and that the Congress will act accordingly"

Other Legislation.

Before approving the Third Supplemental Appropriation bill for 1954, the House added an amendment to provide funds in the amount of $55 million for federally-impacted school districts. The amendment authorizes the Office of Education to aid in the construction of school facilities in areas which are confronted with an overflow of students due to the establishment of defense plants. In the bill reported to the House last week, the Appropriations Committee had not included funds for this purpose. The House also added an amendment to increase by $7 million the funds provided for grants to states for unemployment compensation and employment service administration.

Festival Begins

The annual Cherry Blossom gets underway this week with events scheduled from Wednesday through Sunday. National Capital Parks officials believe the cherry blossoms will be in bloom by this week-end, provided Washington has no freezing weather before that time.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

Had an unusual thing happen to me the other day. Went to a wedding and, as usual we had the traditional car messing up good time, only this time, to our great displeasure the bridegroom was right in there telling us what to put on the darn thing. The guy enjoyed it so much, I was about to think we had messed up the wrong car. I think he was just publicity conscious.

You see so many different ideas and explanations on why the fair sex seems to last longer in years than us men you sometimes wonder if all of these "unbiased" persons aren't stabbing in the dark just a little. No one has ever mentioned the fact that they're probably just built better to last longer.

It's a sure sign of spring when you see Mayor C. Fenn walking down the street with his umbrella.

Hear over the gossip lines that the Junior Chamber of Commerce is planning a square dance or something or other in the near future and just thought we'd let you in on it. Nothing is definite as far as my 'knowledge on the matter goes, but you can bet your boots that if the Junior Chamber is back of it, it'll be something to look forward to. They're no squares you know.

There are so many good uses for old rusty nails and pieces of wire that I think most folks will appreciate my lettin gthem in on where to get them. A dealer in scrap iron could clean up (literally) in my drive way. You see it's supposed to be an alley (and judging from the fix it's in there's no argument there), but us folks have to use it for a driveway and whoever put all that stuff in the way really hated somebody or either owned a tire repair station. Like I said, anybody could just "clean up" down in that alley, anybody.

They're gonna hafta start building sidewalks as wide as streets so the cars can get to the pedestrians better. . .

Who says we aren't progressive. . to a certain extent, that is. Have you noticed the radical changes that have been made around our neck of the woods since last year this time. Any number of new businesses have gone up and many new families have moved into Chilton County. We're getting new public facilities and conveniences and public opinion has it that '54 is to be a good year for most folks concerned. Now what have we to gripe about. All you need to round out a perfect residence and peace of mind is to have a little more faith than last year and go to church a little more often, and maybe even work a little harder.

It is a weakness of every human being to make mistakes. Why then, isn't it within man's power to forgive as easily.

Heard a fella say, "The reason a man doesn't bring the boss to dinner more is because she's already there."

Most pedestrians and some motorists will agree that the wheel may have been the greatest invention ever made, but it certainly wasn't the safest, they can't even seem to keep them on the ground these days.

If rumors are true, we have the oldest operating ferry in the State down at Log Cabin Beach on the Rockford road. Whether it's the oldest or only matters little, but it is the end of a passing era and a landmark and should be preserved in some manner. Since it has been pushed back for progress and will soon be a relic of the past and only a memory of the so called "good old days," we hope somehow it will be preserved as a means for future generations to look into the past and see what "the good old days" were really like.

was selected as State princess by the Alabama State Society of Washington. Miss Vincent will vie with princesses from the other states and territories for the title of 1954 Cherry Blossom Queen. The queen will be selected at a ball Friday evening by the spinning of a wheel marked with names of the various states and their princesses. Hon. Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, will spin the giant "wheel of fortune" and also crown the queen.

TOP QUALITY HAY PUTS POUNDS ON DAIRYCALF

Small dairy calves will eat more and grow faster if fed only top-quality hay.

"And," says API Extension Dairyman John Parrish, "there's little danger of calves getting scours from eating high-quality hay as long as they're started on it from the beginning. Danger comes when animals are switched from poor-quality, unpalatable hay to leafy legumes such as the first or last cuttings of alfalfa."

Parrish suggests that farmers who run out of high-quality hay secure a new supply. There is no substitute for it.

VFW TO ERECT WHITE CROSSES

Montgomery —The Alabama Safety Commission this week commended the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Alabama Department, for adoption of a statewide project of erecting white crosses to mark locations of fatal highway accidents.

In an advisory issued this week (March 26), the Commission stated the VFW had volunteered to man the project in all counties where not now carried on by local groups, and to cooperate with local where active in seeking uniformity in the cross construction.

Erection of large, clearly-sibile crosses "is widely credited by safety authorities nationally as a most effective appeal for safe driving," the Commission advisory stated. It commended the VFW and Department Commander Telfair J. Mashburn of Bay Minette "for this exhibited interest in Alabama's critical traffic problem and in public information-education methods by which it might be lessened."

Cross erection was recommended by the Third Annual Alabama Safety Conference held in Montgomery last Spring.

Democratic Party candidates for nomination have already qualified and the nominees will be named in a priary to be held May 4 or if necessary in a runoff on June 1

The seven Republican candidates for the House are Rep. Ben G Dodd, Lonnie P. Taylor and Dorthen Wadsworth all of Winston County; Billy F. Aycock, Franklin County; Mrs. Percy M. Pitts, Clanton; W. Arthur Mitchell, Dell and Joe W. Adkins, St. Clair.

By the time Alabama became a state in 1819, there already was a great change from pioneer days. Larger and better houses were being built by the settlers, including some houses of brick and sawed lumber.

This community was deeply saddened last Tuesday when the news of the death of W. H. Stuart reached this section. Mr. Stuart was shot and killed by a 51 year old crippled negro, George Dean, near Clairborne, Monroe County. Mr. Stuart, 66 years of age, has been a federal agent for 22 years and was eligible for retirement but had declined the opportunity. Mr. Stuart had worked out of the Selma office since 1950 and was shot down with a 12 guage gun when he and other officers entered the negro's home with a search warrant to search for a whiskey still. Frank Farish, another agent who was taking part in the raid, said that Dean, without giving any warning, fired a blast into Stuart's stomach. The veteran officer shot his pistol at the negro as he fell but the bullet missed its mark. Farish said that he grabbed Dean and wrested his weapon away before he knew that his fellow officer had been wounded. This incident marked the first killing of an Alabama Treasury Agent in the line of duty in more than two decades. Stuart, a native of Pittsburgh, Texas, came to Alabama in 1932 when he accepted a position with the ATU. He was assigned to an East-Central area of the state and moved his family to Opelika, Ala., residing there until 1940. In 1940 he was transferred to the Selma office and moved his family to Stanton where he resided until his death. Willie Stuart, as he was known by his host of friends, was a member of the First Baptist Church of Monticello, Texas. He is survived by his wife, the former Gertrude Wooley; two adopted children, one daughter, Mrs. Charles Brooks, of Huntsville and one son, Douglas Stuart of Lewisburg, Tenn.; His mother, Mrs. N. E. Stuart, Pittsburg, Tex.; two sisters, Mrs. Royce Meadows, Dallas, Tex., Mrs. Roy Brewer, Memphis, Tenn.; and three brothers, Walter of Dallas, Tex., Foy of Pittsburgh, Tex., and Wayne of San Angelo, Texas.

LIBRARY: Our latest book is, "The Spare Room," a teen-age book with a mystery love story. Other books added to the library are gifts from the First Congregational Church in Fairport, New York. They are not the up-to-date new books, but I was glad to add Conan Doyle's, "Mystery of Cloomer," which has an exotic plot starting in India and finishing up in Scotland and the unknown.

Some of the rest are: "The Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine" by Frank R. Stockton; E. A. Steiner's "Uncle Joe's Lincoln; Tchernavin's "Escape from the Soviets;" Rives' "The Valiants of Virginia;" Warwick Deeping's "Seven Men Came Back" concerns seven men who were in the same mess during the war (2nd?) and what happened to them when they returned to England (if you don't already know); one of C. G. G. Robert's nature books—"The Watchers of the Trails;" and so forth up to thirty volumes.

I have recently lost—at least I can't find—the Studebaker centennial book. Also, I can't find "Too Late the Phalarope." I have some users this year who can turn the shelving inside out more quickly than I can straighten it, so these books may be still with me. I hope so because I have no cards for them on file.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

VAN LOWE, 1803 N. Redington, Hanford, California, once was so worried about how to pay off her store bills that she was near a breakdown. Business had recently been so good that she had ordered until the store was overloaded with merchandise. The rosy picture changing from good to bad and bad to worse, the bills were mounting—and becoming due and payable. Insufficient funds!

CARNEGIE

The biggest worry suddenly came with a heavy storm. It was still drizzling the next morning when she opened the store. Upon entering she saw muddy foot-prints and goods were scattered on the floor. Her blood fairly froze! Her hair stood up! Her heart was pounding fast and hard! Her whole body was shaking! She rushed to the rear; the door had been chopped down. She went to the stockroom; that door had been chopped down. Her store had been burglarized! She telephoned the police. While waiting for the police, she took an inventory of what had been stolen. The amount exceeded $1,000.

Sick with worry, she closed the store in order to put her mind and soul together. She prayed all night to God, and she says He told her to face it like a good Christian, to be honest with herself and her creditors. So she wrote them asking for thirty days credit extension.

Thanks to the police department and the Hanford newspaper, she got plenty of advertisements and publicity. People rushed to the store; business boomed again. Within ten days she was financially able to meet all her obligations and had enough left to cover the loss.

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From the Suburban Press, Sharonville, Ohio: Over the years American Retailing has made enormous advances in its services to the consumer—there is simply no comparison between the typical store of today and that of the past. Its employment policies have shown considerable progress.

An amusing and significant example is found in a set of rules posted in an Illinois store back in 1880. These included the following: Store must be open until 8 P.M. the year 'round; store must be swept; counters, shelves and showcases dusted, lamps trimmed, filled, and chimneys cleaned; doors and windows opened; a pail of water and a bucket of coal brought in before breakfast. The employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, going to dances and other places of amusement, will assuredly give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty. Each employee must not pay less than $5 a year to the church and must attend Sunday School regularly. Men employees are given one evening each week for courting."

That was the situation 73 years ago.

From the Lincoln Times, Lincolnton, North Carolina: The time has come for another comment on the underfed models of our era. We cannot look on quietly as the pretty young things in the large cities are induced to half starve themselves to become models.

Yet that is what is occurring and we continue to see underfed and skinny models showing off the latest fashion both in the newspapers and on film. This is because clothes designers want their clothes to hang without bulges or bumps or too many curves, believing that the latter will draw attention from the dress, or materials, itself.

The cold hard facts are, however, girls, that the average male finds the skinny female unattractive. Of course, there are exceptions especially concerning youngsters of this era, who are out for ultra-sophistication, and therefore tend to copy the fashion models.

On the whole, however, the skin-and-bones type has little sex appeal and is certinly less healthy and vivacious than the properly formed female.

The tendency of many pretty things of this generation to emulate the models of this day by starving themselves and by attempting to remain underweight is an unfortunate mode of the times. Our venerable advice to the members of the fairer sex, especially the younger ones, is for them to eat normally, live normally and enjoy life as healthy individuals, steering clear of the example set by today's fashion models.

GET RID OF POND WEEDS IN LATE APRIL OR MAY

AUBURN, Ala.—Late April or May is the time to get rid of pond weeds.

"To control floating winter algae," adviser Earl Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist, "use three pounds of copper sulfate per 43000 cubic feet of water. Dissolve the sulfate in water and spray over the pond, or place it in a sack and drag behind a motorboat until completely dissolved in the water.

"To control emergent weeds such as cattails and lilies, spray the exposed leaves on a sunny day with a solution of one-half to one cup of 2, D-4 Dester in five gallons of kerosene.

"To control underwater weeds, use sodium arsenate. Since this material is poisonous and extremely dangerous, pond owners should contact county agents for precautions about its application.

"To control summer floating algae use sodium arsenate or rosin amine D acetate—a new chemical better known as Rada. Don't apply Rada until a month after bass spawn, and never use it near bluegill spawning beds."

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Lonnie E. Legge, Lewisburg, West Virginia: I remember when my father used to tell me I'd better watch out which side my bread was buttered on. I never understood 'till years later what he meant by it, as I always ate both sides anyway.

Those days most babies learned to sit alone by sitting in a horse collar. Their teething was done on a harness ring. Folks just went up the ridge and cut a thorn bush to sweep their yard in the spring. It not only cleaned it, but cultivated at the same time.

About that time the women folks would take a couple of dozen eggs to the store and swap them for a yard of print calico to make a ruffled split bonnet for summer wear.

And men and women sat on opposite sides of the church.

From Mrs. Minnie Thomas, Bland, Missouri: I was born on a Missouri farm 60 years ago and wonder how many remember the pretty "lawn dresses" we wore and washed gently, hanging them in the shade so they wouldn't fade . . . the frilly petticoats, often three or four . . . the "trundle bed" with a shuck tick to sleep on . . . children's shoes came to the store in a wooden barrel instead of shoe boxes . . . we had free range and the cow bell could be heard far from home . . . it was a disgrace for a girl to have a date during the week days . . . wooden ashes from huge fireplaces were put into a hopper and saved to make lye for soap.

Because the river systems were separate, the parts of the State they served were separated and their interests turned to different directions.

There was a drawback to the river system Alabama depended on so much for transportation in the early days of the state: It divided the state into two parts—the Tennessee River serving North Alabama and the Mobile-Coosa-Tombigbee system serving the central and southeastern Alabama.

Although Alabama was blessed with plentiful supplies of minerals and timber, these resources did not immediately have their impact on the economy of the state. For years it was through agriculture that Alabama made its impact on the national economy.

SCANNING THE NEWS

AN unheralded and mostly unnoticed "shift" has been taking place in the United States since the early days of World War II. What has happened—and is still happening: our national research burden has greatly increased and the major cost shifted from industry to the federal government. President Eisenhower has indicated that this shift will continue by stating that research is "our surest promise of expanding economic opportunities."

Industry and the federal government have spent $30 billion in applied and basic research since 1941. During 1953 alone, working side by side, government, industry, and a number of non-profit institutions invested about $4 billion dollars in research. Indications are that the government alone will provide more than half that amount in each of the next two fiscal years. It goes without saying that military research accounted for the lion's share of the $30 billion spent since 1941 and will account for the majority of future expenditures.

More than half the federal funds spent for research are used to purchase the research activities of industry, while less than a third are spent at federal facilities. The rest is distributed to non-profit institutions such as colleges and universities, hospitals, and independent research groups.

Comparing the 1941 expense figures with those of 1953, we find that in 1941 the government spent $370 million and industry spent $510 million. In 1953 the government figure rose to $2.5 billion, while industry accounted for $1.4 billion.

Certain economic reasons enter into consideration when one studies these expenditures, but aside from this, the importance of this money being spent by the government and by industry is that the United States, a nation of "doers," is constantly acquiring new "know-how" through applied research and development.

● Automobile dealers across the nation have a one-word reply to the recent survey by the National Automobile Dealers Association which confirmed suspicions that new car and truck car dealers had been hard hit by the return of the competitive market. The word: overproduction.

The NADA release showed that dealers' over-all operating profit dropped from 4.4 per cent during the first four months of 1953 to 2.2 per cent at the end of the last four months of the year. The association said that a primary factor in the radically changed situation came from increasing inventories of used cars and trading losses on them as prices declined throughout the year.

Supporters of the "overproduction" theory say manufacturers flooded the market with new cars, many of which found their way to used-car lots with the new car dealer taking a profit loss in the transaction.

LOCAL LAUNDRY WOMAN ATTENDING CONFERENCE

Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson, Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Co., is attending a Field Management Workshop Conference presented by the American Institute of Laundering at the Hotel Farragut, Knoxville, Tennessee, March 26, 27 and 28.

Object of the Conference, which is being staged by laundry specialists from the Institute, is to provide better laundry service for the American housewife.

Laundrymen and allied tradesmen from southern states are attending this three-day meeting. Besides listening to talks by A. I. L. representatives on management, customer and employee relations, production and service, they are discussing some of the current problems of the industry.

The Knoxville conference is the fourth in the current series of field workshop conferences being presented by Institute men. Former meetings were held in Fayetteville, North Carolina, Dallas, Texas, and Buffalo, New York.

Meetings are held "in the field" to eliminate the necessity of traveling great distances to the Joliet, Illinois, home of the American Institute of Laundering, the national trade association and the research and educational center of the laundry industry.

The scene is a glen in the woodland where the Flower Children gather to attend the wedding of Johnny Jump Up and wee Valla Lily. Forty children participate in this Operetta, and come from a lovely flower basket, making a beautiful scene.

Be sure to see Mary Mell Martin as wee Valla Lily and Douglas Jackson as Johnny Jump-Up, in this musical play.

TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

R. Odell Payton

In offering myself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County I would appreciate any and all consideration shown us.

I have lived in Chilton County all of my life and have worked for several business firms in Clanton.

I am a member of Providence Baptist Church.

I do not believe in showing any favoritism to any particular community, party or person.

I have been a J. P. and notary for the past 4 years for beat 16, Chilton County.

I have not made any promises to anyone. I will say this if I am fortunate enough to be elected Sheriff of Chilton County, I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the Sheriff's force.

Should I be your next Sheriff and public servant, there are two things I would like for the people of Chilton County to know, what I would say and expect of the men who would work with me.

1. First, I would like to know if they could take the job at the wage it paid, and make a living.

2. Second. Do they think they can take the oath of this office and live by it as a public servant for the people of Chilton County as a whole regardless of party, community or person.

If elected, I will do my very best to make you, the people of Chilton County, one of the best public servants for this office you have ever had.

I will try to see you during this campaign, should I fail to see any one it will certainly not be done so intentionally.

And to them that don't know me personally ask about me in the community in which I live.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

Sincerely yours,
R. ODELL PAYTON

SANDY POOLE CELEBRATES SEVENTH BIRTHDAY

Sandy Poole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Poole, celebrated her seventh birthday with a party at her home on March 24.

Arrangements of spring flowers were placed throughout the house. The gift room was very attractive with yellow jonquils and fern carrying out the color scheme of yellow and green.

Sandy's guests gathered on the lawn to play games. They were especially delighted with pinning the donkey's tail on, and hunting four-leaf clovers.

The birthday cake was in the form of a three-leaf clover and was decorated in white, yellow and green. The party colors were carried out further in the ice-cream and punch.

JIMMY COX HAS PARTY ON FIFTEENTH BIRTHDAY

Jimmy Cox was honored on his fifteenth birthday with a birthday party given for him by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Cox at their home.

The receiving rooms of the Cox home were very attractive with arrangements of spring flowers.

The dinig room decorations were in the Easter motiff. A large white birthday cake was the center of attraction on the dining room table. Arranged around the punch bowl was Easter grass, disclosing small Easter bunnies and candy eggs.

Games and contests were enjoyed throughout the evening by Jimmy's friends. The highlight of the party came when his guests wished for him a happy birthday and when he opened his many nice gifts.

Those who were present for this grand occasion were: Pat Traywick, Carolyn Tucker, Norma Jo Tew, Dean Dennis, Johnelle Lawrence, Linda Wade, Terry Jones, Jimpy Martin, Donald Martin, Kenneth Messer, Ray Jones, Harold Henderson, Jerry Knight, Charles Coburn, and Douglas Moates.

Mrs. Frances Edwards assisted Mrs. Cox with the serving.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Lindsay Nelson Hudson

The seven-year-old and the five-year-old, after their usual Saturday cowboy movies, were acting out the picture show they had seen. They were playing outside the kitchen window where I could overhear their conversation, and it puzzled me when I heard the five-year-old say,

"Well, I've caught one bad man. Guess I'll turn him over to the maternity."

The seven-year-old agreed with his plan of action, and they were about to set out on this mission when my curiosity made me ask,

"What is the maternity?" I couldn't figure it out.

"Oh," replied the seven-year-old in a superior tone, "you know how little boys get things mixed up. He's talking about the District Eternity. You know, the D. A. Ye're taking our prisoner to him."

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, and some other mothers were discussing the problem of teaching young children to dress themselves.

The mother of many said she never undertakes this project until summertime when the children have fewer and simple clothes to put on.

"If the small child learns to put on the two or three garments he wears during the Summer," she said, "he gets enough practice so that he does real well dressing himself when cooler weather demands more clothes."

All the mothers agreed that one of the most discouraging things that happens to a child learning to manage his own dressing is to struggle patiently to get the buttons through the buttonholes and then find that he has gotten his clothes buttoned crooked. The neighbor with the big family had a good suggestion about this, too.

"When I make clothes for little children," she said, "I always use buttons that they can manage easily. And I sew each button on with a different colored thread. Then I work each buttonhole with thread to match the color of the button that belongs in it. It's extra trouble while I'm doing it, but it's one sure way the children can tell which button goes where so it really saves both time and temper."

One mother in the group said she adds a bit of embroidery or sews a ribbon bow on the front of her little girl's slips so that they won't make the mistake of putting the slips on hind part before.

Her daughters are very neat the same age, so she marks one child's slips with blue thread or ribbon and the other's slips with pink so they can tell their clothes apart.

All the mothers agreed that for children to be really independent in the business of dressing, their clothes should be hung on low rods in the closet and should be kept in chests with drawers low enough for the child to see into. And those drawers should open easily.

Our good cook neighbor has been passing this recipe for Crab Meat Spaghetti Casserole around the neighborhood: Prepare an 8-ounce package of spaghetti according to directions. Stir in 2 cups sharp cheese, 2 diced hard-boiled eggs, 1-4 cup finely minced onion, 1-2 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and 1 1-2 cups flaked crab meat. Combine with spaghetti and bake in casserole in moderate oven for half an hour.

STATE ISSUES NEW DRIVERS LICENSES

Montgomery—Eight thousand new driver licenses were issued by the Alabama Department of Public Safety during February, but it withdrew 1427 driving pricileges during the same month.

License examiners worked 6,552 man-hours and rode nearly 36,000 miles to issue the new licenses, according to a monthly report of the department's Driver License Division.

Five leading causes of license revocations and suspensions were, in order, drunken driving, failing to post financial security, failing to report involvment in accident, reckless driving, and accumulated bad driving record.

So they will burn evenly and not drip, chill candles in the refrigerator for 24 hours before using.

J. S. (BUSTER) SANDERS WRITES

Well folks, our spring primary is about to run into its last 30 days of life.

This, as you know, is my first venture in politics and I am proud to say that I am enjoying it very much, which of course, is brought about because of the friendly and courteous manner that you, the public, have received me as a candidate for public office.

I could not think of naming any particular group as being nicer than another, because all of you, when taken separately or collectively, have proved an inspiration to me to the extent, that for me to let you down now or at any time in the future, I would be betraying the trust that the people of Chilton County who make the wheels of progress, community pride, and decency go forward.

I, of course, entered the race for Sheriff some weeks past with both intention and hope of winning the race and am happy to say that your encouragement to me in these few weeks has inspired me in a manner that has caused me to make a special effort to determine just where, if possible, the Sheriff of this county should make his service most accessible, therefore, in so doing, I have conversed with and observed all incorporated areas or towns of the county and find that each of our incorporated towns of this county has an unusually smooth and well balanced form of government to cope with common law violations and are quite willing to lend a hand to enforce law and order in their bordering jurisdiction, it has also been my privilege to converse with State and Federal enforcement agencies and find them equally anxious to go the last mile in cooperation for clear, honest, and efficient law enforcement, all of which make me very glad that I elected to ask you to entrust me with the Sheriff's duties of our county.

I, therefore, ask you to take this as a personal visit or contact between you and me until I get to see you personally and tell you just how sincerely anxious I am to have your vote and influence in this primary.

Again, I thank each of you for your kind and generous consideration in the immediate past and shall strive to retain your confidence in all my future transaction with you all. So, join the Victory Band and vote for J. S. (Buster) Sanders, The Violation Rustler.

Respectfully,
J. S. SANDERS.

Suggestions And Ways For Us To Combat Juvenile Delinquency

Princeton, N. J.—The best way to begin is the home.

to cut down on juvenile delinquency, according to nearly 3 out of every 4 adult citizens questioned in a recent nationwide survey is for parents to do a better job of being parents.

What specifically does the American public have in mind when it says that the way to cut down on juvenile delinquency is to have parents do a better job.

In answer to the question recently asked by United States Poll staff reporters:

"As you probably know, juvenile delinquency is becoming more and more of a problem in the state and nation today. What one suggestion do you have for cutting down on juvenile delinquency in your state?

People across the nation suggested more parental control and supervision; stricter parents; mothers stayin at home more; better training in the home, and more parental education.

In other words, the big majority of people in this nation today—in every section of the country—on the farm and in the city—are of the opinion that in any campaign to reduce juvenile delinquency, the place

Next most frequently mentioned way to combat the juvenile delinquency is more supervised recreational facilities for the teen-agers. 30 per cent of the people questioned in today's survey thing this is the best way.

Then come more church attendance and more stress of religion in children's lives and the need for the churches to do more work in the recreational field than they presently are doing.

A curfew to get children home at a decent hour, the punishment of delinquent parents, stiffer penalties for juvenile delinquents, and less progressive education also received some mention.

An interesting sidelight in today's survey is the small number who mentioned crime movies, radio and television crime programs, and comics. Only about 1 in each 100 suggested doing away with any of them

Here are the American public's suggestions for cutting down juvenile delinquency.

More parental control and supervision; stricter; kids not punished enough; parents too lenient 12 per cent; Mothers should look after children more; mothers should stay home more; shouldn't work unless absolutely necessary, 11 per cent; Children should get better training in the home 6 per cent; Parents need more education; more parental education 6 per cent—Total 74 per cent.

Need more recreational facilities for ten-agers; more supervised activities; more clubs like P.A.L., Boy Scouts, YMCA, etc.—30.

More church attendance by children; more Sunday School work; more stress on religion 8 per cent; Churches should do more recretional work 3—11 per cent.

Should have a curfew; make children stay home nights; get them off the streets in the evenings by use of curfew 6.

Punish delinquent parents; punish the parents 4.

Stiffer penalties for juvenile delinquents; lock them up 3.

Less progressive education; eliminate progressive education 2.

Better TV and Radio programs; better movies; better comics 1.

Other suggestions;

(Figures add to more than 100 because some people gave more than 1 suggestion.)

Some typical verbatim comments follows:

Mothers should stay home and train their children.

Parents should be more strict with kids. They have entirely too much freedom.

There should be more places for children to play.

Parents should train children better. No religious training in the home today.

Women who don't have to work should be at home with the kids.

There should be more community recreation places for teen-agers.

Make parents criminally responsible.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

FOLKS sure have been getting excited lately about these so-called "misery" programs on radio and TV here of late. I've noticed that newspapers all around the country have been putting forth editorially with a campaign to get something done about it.

Folks are objecting to the ones where "real" people get up and tell their troubles to the master of ceremonies and the listening or watching world and get a few hundred dollars in cash or merchandise for their trouble. The ones I'd like to see something done about are those on the after-breakfast to before-supper shift . . . The "acting" people who act so silly trying to get "real."

However, I think it's too late. These things have become as essential as suds to the lady of the house in getting her day's chores done. She simply can't get the dishes or the clothes washed unless she can do it to the tune of falling tears, divorce trials, and lamentations for love lost through a misunderstanding between a sweet thing and the first cousin of Tom's other wife—the brilliant female lawyer.

Some time ago, our little home clock-radio wheezed a couple of times, sputtered once and went dead. I managed to postpone having it fixed for several days by explaining to the little woman that it was also our time-piece and alarm (our only one) and since that part of the gadget still functioned perfectly, we should wait until I purchased an alarm clock before having the radio fixed.

The stall worked fine for several days until, overburdened by her complaints that it took too much of her time to call friends on the phone to find out what was happening on "her favorite programs.

PLANT COASTAL BERMUDA

Coastal Bermuda planting time is here. Farmers in the county are taking advantage of some good Coastal Bermuda grass grown at home, and they are getting solons for seed patches, or whatever acreages they want to establish. Cooperator, Charlie Patterson dug the first stolons from his eight- acre field on Friday, February 19th. 20 bushels of these went to Mr. Marvin Durbin. Several others have been by and picked up stolons since then. Mr. Roberts of Dry Valley got 50 bushels. We believe this grass will work mighty well in most anybody's grazing program.

While on the farm of Mr. Joe Dennis the other day he told us that he had set out approximately one acre of Coastal Bermuda grass. These stolons were taken from Cooperator S. D. Posey's farm. Mr. A. R. Taylor and Monroe Bowles have prepared their land for setting Bermuda the early part of March.

Mr. A. R. Taylor dug and set out eight acres of Kudzu last week in the Sardis community. Any farmer interested in getting kudzu established on some old sage land should begin turning and getting the land prepared and use kudzu seed for establishing it. Anyone interested in seed contact the Soil Conservation Service office.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From W. F. Senechal, Velva, North Dakota: Reading I Remember by the Old Timers makes me think of Homestead days in North central Minnesota. I am 78 years past and remember there was little money in evidence in the early days.

We roasted our own coffee from wheat that was raised on the homestead. There was coffee for sale in the stores, at 10 cents a pound, but people did not buy it, since it was the belief that roasted wheat coffee was healthier than the shipped-in coffee bean. There was no doctor in our town, we made our own soap, knitted mitten socks and underwear from a half dozen sheep on the farm. We had a spinning wheel, a schoolhouse and church built of logs and wore moccasin footwear in winter. Our wheat was cut by hand with a cradle and bound with its own straw.

Flour was made by a water mill, and all we had was horse power.

I remember walking to church each Sunday with the neighbors joining up along the road—those were the happiest days.

From Mrs. Anna Roehr, Jud, North Dakota: I remember when we bought Arbuckle Coffee for 15 cents a pound—on sale two pounds for 25c then cut the coupons from the wrapper and redeemed them for cups and saucers. But that was over fifty years ago.

• • •

From Mrs. B. V. Anderson, Niota, Illinois: When I was a child it was my duty to shine the knives, forks, spoons and other silverware with brick dust.

Everyone had their own brick dust and things shone like new.

Re-elect
JOHN SPARKMAN
U. S. Senator
1952 NOMINEE for VICE-PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES

Senator John Sparkman two years ago was the National Democratic Party nominee for the second highest office in the Nation. Senator Sparkman's nomination for vice-president of the United States proves that he has the prestige, training and ability to get things done in Washington for the welfare of the people of Alabama. John Sparkman's record proves that he is a champion of human rights for all people. Alabama voters welcome an opportunity to continue him in office as their U. S. Senator

REPUBLICAN-DIXIECRAT PLOT

Your vote for John Sparkman, May 4, will serve a double purpose. It will help re-elect John Sparkman on the one hand. On the other hand, it will defeat a carefully conceived, deep laid plot of the National Republican Party to discredit the National Democratic Party by defeating Sparkman—the man who was Democratic nominee for vice-president in 1952.

The die-hard Dixiecrat leaders have joined forces again with the Republicans. False claims as to States Rights and Civil Rights are being revived.

These leaders apparently intend this smoke screen to hide the real issue of the campaign. The real issue is the desire of these Republican-Dixiecrat leaders to defeat Sparkman and place in the U. S. Senate an inexperienced man who they know will do their bidding. Backed up by a few Texas oil millionaires and Wall Street Republicans, these leaders seek the defeat of John Sparkman—a tried and experienced senator who over a period of years in the U. S. Congress has shown by his actual voting record that he has at heart the best interest of all the people of Alabama and cannot be controlled by selfish groups.

The Republicans may win a majority in Congress if they can defeat John Sparkman in Alabama.

A vote for Sparkman is a vote to regain Democratic control of Congress and a return to prosperity and Democratic principles of government.

NOTHING EVER HAPPENS
By Ona F. Lathrop

MATT MURPHY eyed the two fellows shuffling past the front window of his general store as he rearranged it for about the fifth time that week. They seemed to be looking at the jackets so he pushed them forward a little bit. It had been a warm fall and business was slow.

The two young fellows came in. They were strangers but a lot of tourists dropped by from the gas station next door. They selected new trousers, shirts and jackets. The bill came to $51. The big rawboned one wrote out a check on the local bank for $75 and Matt gave him the change hesitantly. He'd hurry to the bank though and see that it was good, but nothing like that ever happened here.

"Pearl, watch the store while I run to the bank with this," he gloated. But the satisfaction left his face when the banker looked at the check long and hard.

"Those two fellows were just in here and made a deposit, but I asked them not to write any checks against the account for ten days until it cleared with the Indiana bank. Better let me telephone that bank and see if it is good."

Matt watched the street outside while he waited but saw no trace of the two men. Pearl certainly would think he was a sucker if he'd been taken in. It was as the banker feared. "There's no account there to cover this check, Matt. I'm sorry."

Matt thought fast. It would take the sheriff valuable time to round up his men. There must be a quicker way before they got a ride. If they were hitch-hiking. He jumped into his own car parked in the station and drove out the leading route. No sign of them. He tried other roads out of town. This was probably a wild-goose chase. He should have called the sheriff in the first place. There was one more chance—the highway south. He made for it.

Sure enough, about a mile south of town he saw his "customers." They had discarded their old clothing and were wearing the new outfits bought from him. They waggled practised thumbs. Matt drew up beside them. He pulled his hat low and motioned them to the rear door. He hated to have them behind him, but they might recognize him if they sat in front with him.

"Hop in boys. Where are you bound?" he asked jovially.

"We'll ride as far as you go," they answered noncommittally.

He drove on toward the fork that led off to the right. If he could make the turn without them noticing, he was set. He knew a short-cut back to town from that fork. As they approached it he asked them to get a map out of the back pocket and look up the route. While they were doing so, he took the turning. They were still arguing about which fork to take.

But suddenly their sense of direction began to tick. "Seems to me we're going back to that last town," the dark, swarthy one said.

"Yeah, I forgot a customer in there. Don't worry, I'll get you where you are going later on. Just give me time." He drove faster as they grumbled a bit.

He was glad Policeman Barrett was on the beat for once instead of sitting in Mickey's restaurant waiting for something to happen. Matt pulled up beside him and squealed his brakes.

"Arrest these men," he told Barrett, and faced them at last. "Got a check here that the bank says is no good."

Pearl was still fixing the window when he got back. "Not a soul came in since you left. I wish we could think of something startling to pack them in. Nothing ever happens in this town, though," she told him.

"Yeah? Well, don't worry, baby. We'll have plenty of customers once the word gets around that I just caught a couple of bandits single-handed. The whole town will be flocking in to hear about it."

Pearl just stood there with her mouth open.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

The Third Month—

There's a meeting of the Seasons, here in March's hall, Representatives from Summer, Winter, Spring and Fall.

Each has his own speech to render, one with words which blow—one with syllables of Sunshine—one with rain —one with snow. Delegations from every weather will be speaking here; March is but a huge convention of the great round year.

March, the third month of the year according to Virginia Evans, our present calender, was considered the first month of the Roman year, it was also considered so in England until 1752, and the legal year was reckoned from March 25. It was termed by the Anglo-Saxons as the stormy and rugged month of the year. March 20th is considered the 1st day of Spring. It is rather capricious, since we experience sudden changes in weather, as snow, rain, wind, hail and sunshine.

Housewives often choose these days for house cleaning and sewing, looking ahead to the time for recreation and outside pleasure. Not only is March the time for housecleaning, but we might do likewise with our minds, put out, erace prejudice and confusion that often exists.

John Rhoader wrote these lines:
Do more than exist, live, do more than touch, feel
Do more than look, observe, do more than read, absorb.
Do more than hear, listen, do more than listen, understand.
Do more than talk, say something.
Do more than receive, give.
"Blessed is the Nation whose God is the Lord." Psalm 33-12

WMU Meeting—

The joint Circle meeting of the WMU was held at the church, Monday afternoon, March 22nd. Mrs. J. A. Peterson was program leader. Program topic "Lifting America's Morals." A poster at the front of the room held these words: "The Big Four"—Juvenile Delinquency, Family Relations, Racial Prejudice, and Alcoholism. The group joined in singing the opening hymn "How Firm a Foundation." Mrs. Tom Cost read Daniel 2:31-36 and led in prayer. Mrs. Edna Reynolds gave a talk of Juvenile Delinquency; Mrs. Louis Brasher discussed Family Relations; Miss Mary Clements read a poem, "The Two Glasses" by Ella Wheeler Wilcox; Miss Miriam Harvey gave a part on Alcoholism, and Mrs. Flora Reynolds answered the question, "Can We Do Something about Racial Prejudice?" Mrs. B. C. Lenoir concluded the program by giving ways in which Christians can help build a better world. The closing song, "O, Master Let Me Walk With Thee." Mrs. George Naish led the closing prayer.

Mrs. B. C. Lenoir presided during the business session. The quarterly meeting of Chilton Unity Association will be held at Chestnut Creek Church, Wednesday, April 7. Members urged to attend. Closing prayer by Mrs. Lenoir.

Meeting of Intermediate GA's

On Friday afternoon, March 26 at 3:00 o'clock, the Intermediate GA's met at the home of their counselor, Mrs. Louis Brasher.

The meeting wa scalled to order by Annie Sue Cofer. The watchword, star ideals and allegiance were given. The topic for study was "A Look at Living." A panel discussion on the above subject was held.

Those present and taking part were Shirley Watson, Jo Ann Lewis, Betty and Shirley Varden, and Annie Sue Cofer.

Gerald Pate, son of Mr and Mrs. Lester Pate was extremely ill following the trip to Mobile, but is improved at this writing.

Mrs. John Webb receives good news from her daughter, Mrs. Florence Pope and children, Jerry, Pat, and Benny Joe. They recently flew to Stutgart, Germany to join Sgt. Pope. They are enjoying themselves and had added pleasure a short time ago when Floyd Guy, a Jemison boy, also in Germany, flew 400 miles and spent the week end with them.

Mrs. Joyce Guy Gore and daughter, Marlene, left today to join her husband, James Gore, also in Germany.

Mrs. H. C. Lucar, Mr and Mrs. Jim Woodley of Birmingham spent Tuesday with their sister, Mrs. Sam Woodley and Mr. Woodley. Mrs Jim Woodley stated that her son. John was in the Jefferson Hospital with an injured finger. Another son, George, is now living in California. The Jim Woodley's were formerly from Jemison.

Mrs. Clyde Champion, Misses Velma, and Myrtle Price were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Bertha Ice Price Meyers in Robinson Springs. The group motored to Montgomery, saw a number of interesting buildings, one being the coliseum. Then on to Wetumpka to "Jasmine Hill," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fitz Patrick. They told of the beauties of the gardens. They saw replicas of statutes from Athens, Greece, Rome Italy, London, England, Paris, France and Florence Italy. From there the ladies went to Deatsville and called on Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Tatum (Inez Wright); on to Prattmont to see a niece of Mrs. Champion. Mrs Horace Smith and children.

Mrs. Clyde Champion entertain two of her grand daughters, Sandra Lane and Patricia Champion, by taking them to the Drive-In Friday night and a slumber party afterwards. Susan Harris of Birmingham, a guest of Sandra Lane, enjoyed this also.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair Scurlock and children, Greg and Susan, of Gadsden, came on Saturday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cost, and her brother, Willard Cost and family. The two couples then went to Montgomery to see Ronny Calfee a cousin, who is in a Montgomery hospital. The child was struck by a car about 10 days ago. Ronny is improving slowly. It will be a month or more before he will be able to go to his home in California. He is the son of Mrs. Frances Bean Calfee.

Young people home for the week end were Bobby Jones from Auburn and Willodean Edwards from Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Ward and daughter, Mylene, of Birmingham, were Sunday guests of Mr and Mrs. V. O. Lenoir and Janelle.

Letters To The Editor

To the People of Chilton County:

I want to express my appreciation to everyone who had any part in planning and putting over the wonderful rally that you gave to start off my campaign. My wife and I were overwhelmed at the interest and loyalty shown at this occasion. I have been in many sections of the state since the rally and have heard many comments. There is just one thing about it, when Chilton County people gang up to do something they do it right.

Please accept my sincerest appreciation.

Sincerely yours,
DELOS CULP.

March 12, 1954.

Mr. R. M. Tucker,
Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Tucker:

It is with a deep feeling of gratitude that I wish to thank the people of Alabama for the fact that I have no opposition in my candidacy for the office of State Auditor in the Democratic Primary. I am grateful for the expression of confidence reposed in me by my election four years ago as Secretary of State when I was nominated without the necessity of a run off in a field of five candidates, and the further confidence shown by my lack of opposition for the office of State Auditor. I have diligently striven to be of real service to the people of Alabama during my term and I expect to be equally as industrious in my next office.

Through the medium of your newspaper I wish to express to the people of our state my deep thanks and gratitude for this trust and to pledge them my continued best efforts.

Thanking you and best wishes, I am

Yours very truly,
MRS. AGNES BAGGETT,
Secretary of State.

BANK FACTS FOR YOU

Your stake in sound money

A sound dollar is one upon which our own nation and others can rely—to be worth about as much next year, or decades from now, as today. Those who have known economic distress in depression and deflation—and those who have seen the value of savings, insurance and income eroded away by inflation—understand the damage an unsound dollar can cause. When the value of the dollar rises or drops sharply, somebody is always injured.

This is the compelling reason why every American should support a sound, stable dollar—upon which the growth and prosperity of our nation must be based.

THE BIG BATTLE

By W. L. Roper

THERE it came again, a peculiar rattle, like dry seeds in a pod. Even to McGowan's fever-tortured brain it sounded sinister. His swollen, burning eyes blinked open. But except for a shaft of moonlight shining in through a broken window, it was dark in the small cabin. He could see nothing.

Again it came, clear and distinct. Almost simultaneously, McGowan became conscious of a stinging sensation on his left wrist.

"Sidewinder," he muttered. "Must've bit me while I slept!" He shuddered convulsively at the thought and sat upright on the rough, sand-covered floor.

"Ought to knowed there'd be rattlers in this old mining shack," he grumbled. He realized now that his cold-blooded slaying of the old prospector had been a mistake. He would need a guide to lead him out of Death Valley, especially now when the rattlesnake poison was beginning to spread through his body.

The events of the day flashed movie-like through his heat-tormented brain—his escape from Folsom where he was awaiting execution for murder, his wild flight across the desert in a stolen car. At a Mojave service station, he had heard a radio blaring forth a report of his escape.

Then when the gas in the stolen car was exhausted, he had tricked the old prospector into giving him a lift in his dilapidated auto. He had rewarded the old man's generosity with a bullet.

When the old man's dented jalopy had coughed and gone dead on a lonely stretch of the highway that spiralled away into the desert hills like a silver ribbon, McGowan had hobbled across the glaring white sands, heading, he believed, in the direction of Death Valley Scotty's mysterious castle. Through the dancing heat waves, he thought he could see its roof above a mound of sand.

Instead of Scotty's castle, it had been a cluster of tumble-down shacks, the weather-beaten remnants of a ghost town, now populated only by rats, horned toads and desert snakes.

He staggered to the cabin door and stood for a moment, peering out into the desert night. The moon, a great ball of yellow gold, was low in the east. Silhouetted against its bright oval were two dark shadowy figures. They seemed to move. McGowan stared at the approaching shadows, his heart pounding against his ribs. The black outlines resembled two men on horseback. They seemed to be coming toward him.

"It's the heat or the rattler's poison," he mumbled hoarsely to himself. "I'm seeing things."

Suddenly the rattle sounded again in the darkness of the cabin. It seemed nearer.

McGowan's tense, frayed, heat-maddened nerves gave way. With a wild scream of terror, he lunged out of the shack into the bright moonlight.

A deep voice shouted, "Halt," but McGowan raced madly across the sand.

Three shots shattered the desert stillness. McGowan stumbled and went down. He was dead when the two men, dismounting, turned him over and focused a flashlight on his red-sun-tortured face.

"Red McGowan all right," the taller man said. "That service station guy gave us the right tip. But why did he come bargin' out of that shack like a tribe of Comanches was after him?"

"I'll take a look inside," the other said.

He came out a minute later, holding up a tiny object in one hand.

"What is it?" asked the tall one.

"A baby's rattle. Imagine finding that here. Some tourist must have left it. Only thing I could find in there except a few big ants."

"I sure can't figure out what made him act so loco," the tall man said, shaking his head.

SPORTS CORNER

This an' That

Ted Kluszewski's 1954 contract, reportedly $35,000, is the biggest in Redleg history. Big Ted says he won't be hitting away at the fences this year in an all-out effort to break his last year's record of 40 homers, he just wants to hit the ball anywhere he can to help the Cincinnati team climb up out of the cellar . . .During a basketball game between two on-spot Army teams, a PFC shocked his teammates by dribbling the length of the floor to sink a basket—for the other team, which won 65-53. It happens in every sport . . . It's that time of the year again and they're quoting Casey Stengel one day the Yanks can't miss the pennant, the next day things aren't so sure. Stengel says his Yanks are stronger this year, but, on the other hand, so is the entire league . . . Veteran Umpire in Chief Tom Connally, 82, of the American League, whose retirement was recently announced, was behind the plate in 1901 when the first American League game was played. (Chicago 8, Cleveland 3.)

SUCCEEDS LEAHY . . . Terry Brennan, 25, is new Notre Dame head football coach, taking place of Frank Leahy who retired for sake of health. Brennan was All-American player at Notre Dame, then coached Chicago's Mt. Carmel high school before joining Leahy as assistant last year.

HUGE FOOD SUPPLIES HIT SPRING MARKETS

AUBURN, Ala.—This spring grocery shelves will be piled high with many colorful foods selling at attractive prices

"Using these seasonal products as they come to market is our best assurance of continued abundance," says A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist.

He lists these foods as particularly good buys for every consumer from the smallest family to the largest chain store.

Southern fried chicken should be more popular than ever because Alabama growers are sending about 70 per cent more broilers and fryers to market now than at this time last year. Eggs are also plentiful, running about three per cent more than last spring.

Beef supplies include 1953 offerings of high quality meat as well as the less expensive intermediate grades. Stocks of fluid milk, butter, cheese, dry milk solids, evaporated milk, and other dairy products are being boosted to record levels by this year's high milk production figures

Larger supplies of vegetables are also showing up in retail markets from Alabama production areas are snaps, collards, turnip greens, spring onions, and other leafy vegetables. At present other states are shipping in snap beans, cauliflower, green corn, tomatoes, new potatoes, and strawberries, which will arrive later from Alabama farmers.

The big 1953 peanut crop, plus large storage holdings, means lots of peanuts and peanut butter. Also in the limelight are high quality food fats and oils, including shortening, margarine, and salad oils.

PUSH SPRING PORKERS TO THAT EARLY MARKET

Top hog prices are expected earlier than usual this summer and early fall, says API Extension Animal Industry Specialist G. B. Phillips. So push those spring pigs to an early market.

Creep feed baby porkers with a fortified pig starter from the day they'll eat until weaning time. In addition, self-feed them and the sows on grain (either crib corn, wheat, or grain sorghum in combination with oats), protein supplement, minerals, and good green grazing.

Use lukewarm water for sprinkling clothes because it penetrates the fabric more evenly than cold water.

FARM FACTS

Combine Sagrain is an outstanding new variety of grain sorghum being released for 11954 by the API Agricultural Experiment Station.

In grazing tests at Tifton, Ga., coastal bermuda has produced more beef per acre in late summer and fall than any other grass tested.

Fence posts should dry three months in summer before treating.

Use crib corn, wheat, oats, other grains, green grazing, and protein supplement to push spring pigs to early corn and to early market.

Turkeys for fall market should be started in April; start bronze turkeys 26 to 28 weeks before market time, Beltsville whites 24 weeks.

Hog growers should plant clootan soybeans for some green grazing while hogs are on corn.

Farmers in the extreme southern part of the state should start planting cotton the last week in March and should complete the job by the middle of April.

To reduce stomachworm infestation, move animals to new pasture, do not feed hay on the ground, and treat animals with phenothiazine—20 grams per 100 pounds of body weight

"Setting the Pace in the Governor's Race"

Says Veteran Political Observer Hugh Sparrow in The Birmingham News

Writing recently from Montgomery, Hugh Sparrow, who has followed more Governors' campaigns than any living Alabama political writer, had this to say of Jim Allen's bold and forthright campaign for Governor:

"Allen Sets Pace"

"Lt.-Gov. JAMES B. ALLEN who brought his campaign to Montgomery the past week, left most Capitol Hill observers in agreement on one point:

"That Allen has demonstrated he is no punch puller. On the contrary, most of them admit Allen's straight-from-the-shoulder declarations have in many cases set the pace for all candidates."

JIM ALLEN says what he thinks and will do what he says.

Alabama Needs This Plain-spoken Man in the Governor's Office.

TEMPLE NEWS

Sunday and Sunday night services were greatly inspired by several musical selections and vocal numbers. The electric organ has certainly proven a blessing to our church.

The Christ Ambassador (C. A.) rally was held at our church last Friday night. A large crowd attended, some from Montgomery, Selma and several neighboring churches. We had an excellent orchestra, composed of participants from all our visiting churches. A quartet from Montgomery and a trio from the Temple and Selma churches were greatly enjoyed.

The Sword Drill was won by the Pinedale church, with Melvin Headley as representative. Congratulations Melvin! The other churches had two representatives but Melvin won single handed.

A wonderful sermon was delivered by our C. A. State President, Rev. G. A. Balius.

The C. A. Banner was taken home by the Second Assembly of Montgomery. Congratulations.

Remember WMC and Brotherhood Thursday (tonight), and each one take their place. These services are very inspirational and helpful.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

DON'T be kidded by anyone. It isn't smart to have your name appear in the paper. True, it's great to know that extra dozen copies you bought will enhance your standing with any future grandchildren—but, is it worth it? Ponder the situation well before you have a baby, get a divorce, shoot someone, or inherit a million dollars.

Get your name in print and you are fair prey for "name-snippers." Have a baby, for instance, and you're flooded with mail reminding that you need: money, "for those terrific hospital bills;" Burp's Baby Food "which, under special agreement, we offer at wholesale prices; insurance policies; baby clothes and "you couldn't have timed your blessed event with our big sale any better;" insurance policies; bassinets; and insurance policies.

Shoot someone and you only get two types of letters from snippers. From those who think the victim deserved it and from those who think the victim didn't. So I am told, I haven't shot anyone since my bean shooter days.

If you're still determined to get your name in print at the first opportunity then take this advice: have a baby, shoot someone, or get a divorce before you inherit a million dollars from a distant relative. Get your name in the paper in this fashion and you find the world populated with name-snippers who are all helplessly bound with financial and family problems and therefore in excellent position to best share your sudden good fortune with you.

It's much easier to shoot someone and wait to see if the victim was popular or unpopular.

MOST ACCIDENTS OCCUR IN FARM HOME KITCHEN

Kitchens are the scene for most accidents in farm homes.

So API Extension Home Management Specialist Stella Mitchell suggests homemakers follow these precautions to reduce hazards.

When not in use, electrical appliances should be disconnected and stored in a safe place. Connect appliances to wall outlets, not light sockets. Respect the whirling blades of electric mixers, and use a rubber paddle to feed foods into meat grinders, slicers, or shredders.

Don't place a radio or heater near the kitchen sink. Before leaving an iron, be sure it is disconnected at the wall socket. And promptly repair or replace frayed cords and broken plugs.

As a new state, Alabama had many natural blessings on which to build future greatness. These blessings included good land, a plentiful supply of minerals and an abundance of timber.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Certainly wish someone would find out who stole the ding-dong, who stole the bell?

Add odd accidents. Mrs. Gin Nichols was feeding her dog at her home the other week and the dog bit her ear. The accident was so severe that she was hospitalized. Mrs. Nichols lives in Shoults.

Good thing April Fools Day comes only one day out of the year. Mrs. Dock Smith couldn't afford to stand around a bank lobby all the time. Next time someone calls her to come to the bank we bet she finds out what for first.

Last month Mrs. Lila Atchison caught fire at her home and was seriously burned. She has been in Central Alabama Hospital but we understand she is doing much better now. We hope she continues to improve.

Watch for big doings at Verbena the last of this month. Residents of that little community are going to honor their two physicians, Dr. Strock and Dr. Williamson. Each has practiced medicine for more than fifty years.

Need someone to spray your termites? J. M. Gray will bring his spraying supplies and do the job for you. Just call 369-J and duck, 'cause it don't matter what kind of termite you are he says it'll kill you.

Forty babies were born at Central Alabama Hospital last month. That is the second time in the history of the hospital that so many babies have made their entrance into this big world in one months time. And brother you can bet your last safety pin that was some "bawl."

A housewife upon answering a knock at the door found a man with moist eyes who said, "I'm taking up a collection for a poor woman who lives in this community. She has no money to buy food and they're starving." He paused to wipe the tears from his eyes. "And they have no money for clothes. They are cold, too—she and her three children. But worst of all she ain't paid her rent for months, and is about to be thrown out. Madam, you could help if only to pay the rent and keep a roof over their heads." "It certainly is nice of you to collect money for this poor family. Who are you?" asked the housewife. "I am the landlord," he answered.

Did you hear about the waiter who said to the customer: "Pardon me sir but this doesn't include anything for the waiter." "Well," answered the customer "I didn't eat a waiter, did I?"

LOCAL HARDWARE STORE IN BIGGEST MERCHANDISING EVENT

Bell Hardware will participate in one of the biggest promotions ever staged in the nation, it was announced today.

The event will be known as irha Hardware Week and will involve the biggest advertising and merchandising campaign ever conceived.

irha means Independent Retail Hardwaremen of America and is the symbol that identifies member stores, including Bell Hardware of Clanton.

Hardware Week will be observed coast-to-coast April 16 to 24 by the 23,000 independent hardware stores, all members of the National Retail Hardware Association.

A total of 586 wholesalers and more than 100 manufacturers, including some of the industry's top names, will support the irha stores in the gigantic selling drive.

As part of the promotion, Bell Hardware has stocked up on sports equipment, kitchen needs, garden tools, as well as the every-day line of hammers and saws, and nuts and bolts.

Many hardware items will be marked down or offered at amazing bargain prices in an effort to lure customers into the store.

Buy And Use Easter Seals

Giving money to the Easter Seal campaign is actually an investment in a productive citizen, chairman of the 1954 Easter Seal Campaign in Chilton County declared.

In an interview today, Mr. I. S. Levine said: "Contributions to the Easter Seal Campaign are an investment in human lives. It makes possible a happy, independent existence on the part of our crippled. A contribution to the Easter Seal campaign is literally an investment which makes for economical independence. It enables the crippled to overcome their handicaps entirely, or to a large extent, by providing him first with treatment needed, and second with training in spite of any handicap which remains after treatment."

Mr. Levine pointed out that throughout the United States thousands of handicapped have found new lives as a result of professional help provided through Easter Seal agencies.

Persons with handicaps are to be found in business, industry, and all the professions, making an important contribution to progress, he said.

"It is only common sense to voluntarily contribute funds to help the handicapped help themselves," Mr. Levine declared. "When we consider that many of the handicapped would have to be supported because of enforced idleness, it is perfectly obvious that it is far more sensible, more economical and certainly in keeping with our democratic, Christian ideals to provide services which will 'ultimately make it possible for most of them to become self-sustaining. It is on that basis that we urge the fullest cooperation of all residents of our community in the Easter Seal campaign.

LEGION MEMBERSHIP GETS RACKETEERS IN TROUBLE

When four racket magazine salesmen reached Clanton a few days ago business [illegible] and, as a matter of fact, [illegible] do a thriving business selling subscriptions to veterans meeting. One of the crew made a mistake in calling on John W. Pitts, post Vice Commander of the local Legion post and also deputy sheriff, for not long after he called on him he went to the post office to get his mail and in it was his copy of the Alabama Legionaire which carried an article describing the very four men who had reached town a short time before. He immediately called the Veteran's Service Officer Bob Fullen to find out whether he knew anything of their racket. Fullen advised him that it was a racket even though it might be legal within the meaning of the statute but that it was fraud by implication. It seems that the salesmen would have to appear to the veteran that he was a Contact representative from Washington, D. C., by this he implied that he was a representative of the Veterans Administration. In one case the imposter even went so far as to issue a number to a veteran which would entitle him to dental work at the expense of the Veterans Administration.

Through the combined efforts of all law enforcement officers in Clanton, the County Solicitor and the Veteran's Service Officer the four men were jailed and booked with vagrancy until a thorough investigation was completed by City, State and FBI officers. The suspects were realeased subject to the action of the Federal Grand Jury and promised the FBI operator that they would leave the state of Alabama the following day after they were released.

Alertness and cooperation on the part of Legion, City, County and Federal several dollars were saved by local citizens.

Commander Fullen of the Legion stated that his organization favored either strengthening our present laws or writing new laws that would cover this type of fraud on the unsuspecting veterans and citizens.

NEW TAX LAW MEANS SAVINGS TO TELEPHONE USERS IN APRIL BILLS

The new Federal Excise Tax Bill will provide savings to all Clanton telephone subscribers in bills dated on or after April 1, Mr. J. W. Mitchell, Office Manager, of the Southern Bell Telephone Company said today.

The new law reduces federal excise tax rates on telephone service to ten per cent. The lower tax rates, however, will not apply to any balance due from a previous month's bill.

The old rates, set by Congress during World War II, were 25 per cent on long distance calls of 25 cents or more and 15 per cent on local telephone service and long distance calls of less than 25 cents. The reduction means a 60 per cent decrease in the tax rate on most long distance calls and a 33 1-3 per cent cut in the tax rate on local service and on long distance calls of less than 25 cents.

For example, Mr. Mitchell pointed out, a residence subscriber paying $4 a month for local service and $2 for long distance calls has been paying under the old tax rates $1.10 extra in federal excise taxes. Under the new tax rates, he will save 50 cents a month or $6 a year.

A small business concern, Mr. Mitchell continued, making $100 worth of long distance calls a month has been paying $25 federal tax each month on long distance calls. Of this $300-a-year tax bill, that firm will save $180. It also will save 1-3 of its tax bill on local service.

In 1953 Southern Bell customers in the nine states served by the Company paid $71,168,342 in federal excise taxes on their service. This represented about 1-6 of the average telephone bill, or about $1.95 each month per customer. Had the lower tax rates been in effect last year, Southern Bell customers would have paid $34,059,666 less. Southern Bell has 324,000 customers in Alabama.

JEMISON HIGH BAND ORGANIZED

One of the nicest things that has happened to our town lately is the organiaztion of a School Band. Mr. Peter de Roberts from Birmingham, Alabama is our band master and after only six lessons has already given a program in which the band was featured.

The audience was amazed when the youngest member of the band, Joe Bruno, gave a Clarinet solo, and when the entire band played "Anchors Away" it was hard not to stand up and shout. Bravo! for people like Mr. de Roberts, who has the ability to make this amazing progress with seventeen students who have had no previous band training and for students who have the courage and the desire to be one of this essential part of a progressive school. Mr. de Roberts invites more students to join this group and announces that there is no need to hesitate because of getting a late start, he will take and train "new" members at any time. Lessons will continue during the summer so by the time foot ball games are here our team will have the encouragement of a "real" band.

Uniforms were the primary topic of interest when the band parents met for the second time this month. They decided on and have already purchased sweaters in black and gold with white pants for the summer, which is very attractive.

At the first meeting the following officers were elected: Mrs. S. W. Cost, president; Mr. Roger Gunn, vice president; and Mrs. Elvin Dawson, Sec. and treas. It was decided that the group meet every third Monday night at the high school to discuss ways and means of aiding the band and for a brief social period. Every parent of the band members and others who are interested in the band is invited to join.

I know you will join me as I take this opportunity in wishing for our school and town the "best band in the land" and give our youngsters and Band Master a word of encouragement. They deserve it.

Pre-Easter Revival At Baptist

The Pre-Easter Revival at the First Baptist Church Clanton, will open Sunday morning, April 11, and continue through Sunday, April 18. Rev. J. Roy Bethune, Minister of Music, Grace Baptist Church, Nashville, Tenn., will direct the music. The pastor, Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, will be the evangelist. Services will be held twice daily. The morning service will be at 7:00 o'clock and through the courtesy of WKLF will be broadcast. This service will be held to one half hour each morning. The evening service will be at 7:30 each evening.

The revival will close on Easter Sunday with a full day in worship and evangelism. Two morning services will be conducted. The first one will be held at 8:30, and Sunday School will be at 9:45. The second morning service will be held at 11:00 o'clock. The closing service of the revival will be held Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

By way of preparation for the revival a full week of study is being conducted in the church. A large group is meeting each night during this week for prayer, study and visitation. On Sunday afternoon there will be an all-church visitation program, when information regarding the revival will be placed in every home in Clanton.

The church takes this opportunity to extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend the revival services at the First Baptist church.

TEMPLE ASSEMBLY

Sunday being Missionary Sunday one of the Teen-age classes presented a Missionary play for devotional. It made us realize just how desperately our Missionaries do need our help, both financially and spiritually.

Rev. Helms returned from the National Sunday School Convention which was held in St. Louis, Mo., last week. Over eleven thousand (11,000) delegates, officers and ministers and others were gathered for this great occasion. Rev. Helms reported this was one of the most glorious conventions ever held.

Next year the conference will be held regionally, in six different sections of the States, our district being in Nashville, Tenn.

Sunday night we were happy to have in our service Mr. Lloyd Roseberry of Hattiesburg, Miss. He remained over for the Blackwood Brothers concert on Monday night.

Our spring revival will begin on Tuesday night after Easter Sunday, April 20.

Remember you have a cordial invitation to all our services. We are trying for the two hundred (200) goal for Sunday School on Easter.

Also remember the men's Fellowship, the ladies WMC, also the young WMC's will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 o'clock.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THERE was mixed Washington reaction to President Eisenhower's "second-stanc" on the Stevens-McCarthy issue.

It was clear all along to most observers that the President, from the beginning adroitly hesitant about wading into the melee with a strong cudgel of authority, was still putting himself on the record in a commendable and dignified way.

Many believed that it was the Senator's hope that the President would allow himself to become hopelessly embroiled in the controversy. Had this happened, regardless of the final outcome of the Stevens-McCarthy issue, Eisenhower's prestige would have suffered by mere association with the game of "hysteria" and "name-calling."

By calling the controversy by its right name—a thing born "of a multiplicity of fears" and vouching support of Stevens (even though, he admitted, it might be proved that Stevens was mistaken or misinformed on some points) the President chose what most veteran politicians believe to be the best road for the welfare of the Republican Party.

Mr. Eisenhower's actions salvaged some dignity for the Republican Party, which will need all the dignity it can get when the American people next go to the polls.

● Here are some Capital Quotes worthy of mention:

Sen. Edward Martin (R. Pa.) in a Philadelphia speech: "We are gradually eliminating from the Government all office-holders tinged with Communism or other forms of disloyalty."

Rep. George H Bender (R. Ohio) said in a newsletter: "The Immigration Service has just informed Congress that as many as 100 present and past members of the Communist Party' have been entering the United States daily from Mexico, with a similar situation prevailing along the Canadian border as well."

Rep. Omar Burleson (D. Tex.) put some humor in one of his newsletters: "Because of the many investigations being conducted by committees of Congress, a story is going around Washington about two rabbits running at breakneck speed across a field. Suddenly one stopped and asked the other why they were running so fast. 'Haven't you heard,' said the other, 'that one of the committees is looking for a goat?' So they started running again. Finally the rabbit who had first stopped came to a screeching halt and said, 'But we're not goats.' The other one replied, 'That's true, but can you prove it?'"

● The spotlight on our national housing situation in Washington debate pointed up to these news reports:

The year 1954 may be one of the best business years on record for the construction industry. Early figures showed January and February were the highest in history ... a construction boom.

Eight million families still live in houses "unfit for human habitation." Four million families live in houses that have deteriorated to near-slum condition and do not meet health and safety standards. Of more than 40 million nonfarm homes, 20 per cent are classed as sub-standard because of structural condition or lack of basic sanitary facilities.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Marie Wilson, Findlay, Ohio: I remember when I first went to housekeeping. We paid $4 a month rent. We had a pump outside for drinking water and a large cistern that I would use for washing clothes. I drew water in a large bucket, which was let down by rope. I also used this for a refrigerator, lowering my perishable foods in small tin buckets.

My washing was done by hand, on an old-fashioned wash board—took all day. Street cars were drawn along Main Street by horses. My four children were all born at home. The doctor came beforehand and spent several hours. His transportation was a bicycle and his fees were $5.

A few years after my husband and I married, we moved into a strictly modern home and the rent was $7.50. I once went to a nearby hospital. We paid $25 a week for a private room, the best they had—today the same room costs $18 per day.

I also remember that I took an old large flour sack, cut it into strips and tacked it on half of a broom handle. This was my fly swatter.

I had long, lovely hair which fell ... my waist—until my husband bobbed it. Everyone thought it was a crime, but soon short hair was the style.

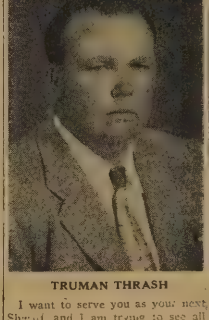
PROPER FERTILIZATION MEANS HIGHER YIELDS

Auburn, Ala.—Don't skimp on fertilizer for your 1954 cotton crop, warns O. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton specialist.

One of the surest roads to increased yields and profits is proper fertilization. The farm leader points out that 1953 unit test demonstration farmers who used an average of 637 pounds of fertilizer per acre came up with 437 pounds of lint cotton per acre. Growers who applied 331 pounds averaged only 363 pounds of lint per acre.

"On most cotton soils in the state," says Andrews, "money-making results can be expected from 50 to 60 pounds of nitrogen, 50 to 60 pounds of phosphate, and 35 to 60 pounds of potash. Supply this plant food by applying on each each acre 500 to 600 pounds of 4-12-12, 4-10-7, or 6-8-8 at or before planting and side-dressing with 75 to 125 pounds of ammonium nitrate or 150 to 250 pounds of nitrate of soda or equal nitrogen from other sources. Farmers who plant on time on Sand Mountain soils can profitably raise their side-dressing 50 per cent."

To the People of Chilton County.



TRUMAN THRASH

I want to serve you as your next Sheriff, and I am trying to see all the voters during this campaign. I have been unable to see many of the voters, but will try to see all of you between now and May 4.

Chilton County has been my home since 1925. Age 33, married. I am the son of W. O. Thrash, Clanton, Alabama, and the grandson of Rev. E. B. Tucker of this county.

During World War II I served four years with overseas service in China, Burma and India.

I was employed before the war by International Harevster Company, and have been doing construction work with Ingals Iron Works in Birmingham for the past several years. I live in this county and drive back and forth to work in Birmingham to my job.

I would like to see Chilton County grow and develop. We need new industries here to give more jobs for everybody here at home. One of the things that will attract industry to Chilton County is having honest, fair and decent law enforcement. If elected your next Sheriff, I will do my best to fairly and honestly administer law enforcement in our county so that everyone will be proud to live here and new people and new industry will want to come here.

I am especially interested in young people, and young people present a special problem in law enforcement. Many young people get into mischief just because they are young and they should not be treated like hardened criminals. Many young people have been started off wrong by being treated improperly by law enforcement officers. If elected your Sheriff, I intend to be firm with the young people, but try to treat each case with understanding to bring about a correction of the individual before he takes the wrong road.

If young people have opportunities for recreation in the communities, very few will ever be bad. If I am elected your next Sheriff I hope to be able to use my influence and understanding of young people to help promote recreation for them in Chilton County.

If elected your next Sheriff I intend to firmly and fairly enforce the law of our State and County and to treat all citizens alike when they break the law. If a man breaks the law he must pay the penalty and the Sheriff is the servant of the people to see that law and order is maintained. I believe the Sheriff should not make a personal issue between himself and the person he is arresting. He should remember that he is the servant of the people of Chilton County and should so conduct himself that the person being arrested will respect the law and respect the Sheriff's job as the servant of the people of the county.

I am not tied to any political clique, and if elected, I will not owe any special favors to any political group. My only interest would be to enforce the law fairly and honestly with regard to all the citizens of Chilton County, and to try to make the County a better place in which to live and work.

I earnestly solicit your vote, support and influence in my behalf in the Democratic Primary of May 4, 1954.

Sincerely yours,
TRUMAN THRASH.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

BACK in my romping days, in the Piney Hills of Mississippi, it was fashionable for the short-britches crowd to dream of the great things they were going to do—and going to be—when the magic age of 21 came along. Warm summer days in the shade of the Ole fishing Hole and cool autumn nights by the light of a Boy Scout campfire were the time and the place for "airing" noble ambitions.

The lads of my day were made of sterner stuff than their counterparts today, where great aspirations are concerned. Most of us, as I recall, planned to join the French Foreign Legion. Responsible in the most part, was Freddie, the Eagle Scout, who had earned nearly every medal in the Scouting repertory and felt the Legion the only place where he would stand a good chance of adding to his collection. But, we had a goodly number of would-be cowboys, Indians, sea captains, and pirates.

The thing that got me to thinking in such a vein was a conversation with a few members of the "new" generation. Do they want to trek the hot sands of the Sahara, sail a schooner around the world, or even ride a horse? Don't be silly! Respectively, they aspire to be a jet jockey, captain of a space ship to the moon and a manufacturer of atom bombs.

Streaking through the sonic barrier, cruising merrily among the outer planets, and manufacturing atom bombs—how can you compare these with the dangers of battling desert nomads, braving the onslaught of fierce and determined Indians.

We have modernized ourselves into a race of weaklings.

TV AND RADIO STARS TO APPEAR HERE IN PERSON

Benny Carle, Happy Wilson and his Golden River Boys and girls will make a personal appearance at the county courthouse April 28 at 7:30 p.m. under the sponsorship of American Legion Post No. 5 Clanton.

Bob Fullen, Commander of the Legion stated that this show would be one of the outstanding events of the entertainment field for this year and he urged that we give this show an outstanding reception by being there to see and hear the show. Admission for adults will be 60 cents and 30 cents for children. The proceeds from this show will go into the building fund for the new veterans home which is now under construction.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

Betrayal and Crucifixion.
Lesson for April 11: John 19: 17-30.
Golden Text: John 12: 32.

By an extreme of cruelty, Jesus was made to bear his heavy cross toward Golgotha. At one point on the dreadful road, Jesus fell beneath the weight and it was laid upon Simon of Cyrene.

Above the head of Jesus, in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek, was placed the inscription, JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS. The inscription was evidently placed there in mockery of the Jews and in irony of their subjugation under Rome. Pilate had written more truly than he knew. The one in whom he had found no fault, but delivered to be crucified, was destined to become the universal King. We find in the incident an illustration of the irreparable nature of man's deeds. Seldom can a man erase what he has written. When the Jews asked Pilate to change the inscription, he replied, "What I have written, I have written."

The insidious and cruel nature of gambling is seen in the fact that the Roman soldiers cast lots for the seamless robe of the dying man hanging on a cross above them.

In the last hour, Jesus honored his mother and made provision for her in days to come. To the loving John he gave the care of his mother and from that hour the disciple took Mary into his own home. Soon thereafter Jesus said, "It is finished," bowed his head and died. May all of us find life and joy through the great sacrifice he made.

COURTHOUSE ENCOUNTER

By Sally S. Eads

OLD Hiram Gaylord had walked from the farm to the county courthouse in town. He liked to walk, and walking helped when a body was troubled and, too, he had business to talk over with himself. Of course, he couldn't talk to himself when he was astittin' in the back seat of niece Betty's car, with Charlie, her husband drivin' since they were bringing him to court to prove that he was demented.

He had asked Laurie Warner to meet him here this morning. She must be in the courtroom now, for she was always prompt. Laurie was his wife's niece, and after Ma died three years ago, he had wanted Laurie and her husband, Tom, and the children to live with him. He had no living children of his own. But Tom was ailin' then, and Betty and Charlie persuaded him to let them come instead. For they claimed he was not capable of attending to business and wanted Charlie appointed as his guardian.

"Hm!" said Old Hiram to himself. "They want control of my fine farm with the nice home on it, and my war pension."

He walked up the courthouse steps and down the hall, looking for the courtroom. He paused in front of the door. Betty and Charlie were sitting with their lawyer. Laurie was sitting alone. Old Hiram took off his panama hat, ran a comb through his white hair, and went in. He had a minute in which to whisper something to the Judge. His honor pointed to a legal document spread out on his desk, but said nothing.

The judge's gavel sounded awfully loud, and Old Hiram was nervous anyway. Laurie patted his hand and smiled.

He sat in shocked silence, as Betty and Charlie told of the crazy things he was supposed to have done, like talkin' to himself. Well, who in tarnation did he have to talk to? Certainly not Betty or Charlie, and if he went to town one of them followed him to prevent him from telling anyone about how they treated him. And they said he gave away his money, as much as ten dollars at a time. Of course, he had always helped the needy, and he and Ma had always given one-tenth of their income to the church. A tenth was the Lord's they thought. He and Ma had prospered and lived well.

The evidence proved Old Hiram feeble-minded. He felt humiliated. Betty and Charlie looked smug, and Laurie was so angry her dark eyes sparked fire. He hadn't had a chance to speak for himself. But . . . Was the judge speakin' for him?

"How long would you say Mr. Gaylord has been demented?"

"About a year, Your Honor."

"Would you say he was of sound mind when he asked you to move to his home three years ago?"

"Yes, Your Honor."

The judge picked up a legal paper from his desk. "Here's articles of agreement made and duly signed by Mr. Hiram Gaylord three years ago, in which he agrees to allow Mrs. Laurie Warner and her family to move into his home and take care of him for the remainder of his natural life. In payment for this service, he agrees to will his home and farm to Mrs. Warner. Do you wish to sign this agreement, Mrs. Warner?" he asked.

"Yes, Your Honor." She stepped to the desk, and read and signed the agreement.

Betty and Charlie left in a huff, amid smiles from the courtoom audience.

Old Hiram stood up. He had resumed his military bearing. His appearance commanded attention. "Judge," he said "I've got to get an eviction notice written up. Got to get rid of my undesirable tenants."

He left the courtroom, holding Laurie's arm protectively, bowing in response to cheers from the audience.

CONGRESSIONAL QUIZ

Q—When I read that Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) had received a medal from Spain, I remembered a provision of the Constitution forbidding acceptance of foreign decorations without Congressional authorization. How does this prohibition apply to McCarran?

A—The Constitution states: ". . . no person holding any office of profit or trust under them (the United States) shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office or title . . . from any . . . foreign state." However, Members of Congress, unlike officials and employees of the executive and judicial branches, generally are not considered officers of the U. S.

Q—What portion of U.S. firms are considered "small business?"

A—By any of several formulas used to define "small business," more than nine out of 10 U.S. concerns fall into this class, according to a Congressional Quarterly survey of federal economists and organizations representing small businessmen.

Q—Where do Congressmen live while in Washington? Are special quarters provided for the lawmakers?

A—In Washington's early years, Members of Congress lived near the Capitol because of transportation difficulties. Now-a-days they live all over the District of Columbia and in nearby areas of Maryland and Virginia. Proposals that the government build living quarters for the legislators have not been acted on.

Q—When I write to my Congressman should I send postage for his reply?

For County Solicitor.

To the Citizens of Chilton County, Alabama:

I wish I could see everyone of you and personally ask you to vote for me in the May 4 Primary for the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County. This being impossible, I thought it would be a good idea to write this letter to you and ask you to vote for me.

Yours very truly,

SCANNING THE NEWS

WHILE they have little expectations of breaking the 1952 record vote, which saw 61,551,919 people cast ballots for White House aspirants, political and civic groups intend to wring every possible ballot from a somewhat reluctant electorate in 1954 Congressional races.

More so than ever, people will vote this year for issues as well as for candidates. In General, Republicans believe the contests in various states will mirror the successes of the Eisenhower program in the eyes of the American people. Democratic observers believe economic conditions at the time voters march to the polls will decide who controls the next Congress.

Issues differ in various regions. In New England, where five senators will be elected, factors will include unemployment, production cutbacks, cost of living, St. Lawrence Seaway and cutback in defense installations. In Maine and Massachusetts, "McCarthyism" may be stressed in elections.

In the Middle Atlantic, with two senators up, issues are again unemployment and production cutbacks, but include Taft-Hartley revision, since this is a concentrated industrial area.

The South, with 10 senators to elect, is concerned with farm problems, supports, prices, conservation, TVA, flood and drought control. Civil rights—segregation and FEPC—also are looming as important factors.

The 12 states in the Central region—the breadbasket of America—will consider farm issues, with emphasis on prices, dairy supports, grain storage and REA's. The New Deal, "reds in government," foreign policy are expected to be particularly stressed in Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota Senate races. Eight Senators will be elected in the 12 states.

In the West, 11 states will select seven new Senators, with power and conservation the principal issues of importance, backed up by farm and livestock prices and supports, "wetbacks" and the use and sale of public lands. Coastal states are concerned with our Far Eastern policy and statehood for Hawaii and Alaska. The New Deal, "reds in government," may figure in California, Idaho, Montana and Oregon elections, with corruption a campaign issue in New Mexico.

The Border states are likely to consider such issues as farm and livestock prices, supports, public power, drought and flood control, federal aid for housing and social security. Civil Rights, the New Deal, and "reds in government" may be spotlight issues in Oklahoma and West Virginia.

Lutheran Church—

The services next Sunday which is Palm Sunday, will be Communion Services and will be conducted by Rev. Russell Bogs of Montgomery. All members are urged to attend also friends who wish to join with us in this service. Mrs. Erle Ellis of Clanton will sing the offertory solo and will sing "The Palms". Everyone is cordially invited to attend. The women of the church will hold their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon, April 14th at the home of Mrs. Marie Petersen. All members are urged to attend.

Our Methodist friends will hold services in this Church each evening during Holy Week, beginning on Monday, the 12th and ending on Friday, the 16th. The Methodists are planning to organize a church in Thorsby and will use this church until they can make other plans. We are happy to be of this service to our fellow Christians and you are all invited to attend these services.

Thorsby Institute News—

Mrs. Pearl B. Mims spent last Sunday with her son, Carmon and family. Edwin Mims and his family also spent the afternoon there. A bountiful dinner was served.

Mrs. H. S. Petersen and her mother, Mrs. Carrie Matthews had dinner Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. U. J. Lambert in Clanton. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert both teach at Mount Pleasant school where he is principal.

While in Birmingham for the A. E. A., Mrs. Petersen attended the concert by Gladys Swarthout at the Municipal Auditorium. She also visited Miss Ruth Ford who is still teaching at Woodlawn high school. Miss Ford is improving in health since her recent operation.

Loretta Petersen, (T.I. 1945), who is now a nurse in the Air Corps stationed at the jet Air Corps training station at Perrin, Texas, flew into Birmingham last Friday night and came on to Thorsby to spend a few days with her grandmother. She returned to camp on Tuesday in a jet plane, leaving from Montgomery. Loretta visited the dormitory on Saturday. She expects to come home again for Easter.

Thorsby Institute boys played Collins Chapel in a baseball game Friday, April 2. Collins Chapel won by a score of 10 to 8.

We are always glad to hear of the advancement of our graduates and we were certainly glad to hear that Billy Gene Davenport, who graduated in 1947, was recently made First Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps (March 17). We hope Bill keeps up the good work and keeps advancing.

Mr. J. M. Timmerman preached Sunday morning at the Lomax Church of Christ. His subject was, "The Wrong Relationships to Truth." Next Sunday he will use the subject, "Vital Relationship to Truth."

LIBRARY: We had the great pleasure of a call from Mr. Rufus Foshee last week. Books and reading proved to be a common ground of interest. Mr. Foshee's work on the U. S. S. Coral Sea was a fascinating topic also. Such a call makes a red letter day for a librarian. We hope he will come again.

Any of you think the rules at Thorsby Institute are austere? Then go to Caney College in Kentucky. Caney College has only two rules. One for girls is: "No cosmetics, no jewelry, no social privileges, no week end leaves unless accompanied by parent, no dress other than the white uniform, share in cooking, dishwashing and housekeeping." The rule for boys is "No smoking, no drinking, no social meetings with girls, no guns, but must take care of own quarters." This information was copied from Southern Observer, the library's newest magazine. The reviews of Southern books are always very interesting, especially the first volume of the History of the University of Alabama. The account of the early disciplinary troubles is matchless.

GRESHAM SMITH WRITES VOTERS

GRESHAM SMITH

Once again the voters of Chilton County are face to face with the responsibility of electing a Representative in the next Legislature The office of Representative is an important one, an office which affects the economy of every man, woman and child of our County. Through this office all [illegible] made, schools, roads and our economy in general provided for. It is therefore most important that the voters consider well the public and private records of the candidates for this office, what they stand for and the ability of each to fairly represent all persons and sections of our county. What we need in this County is a Representative imbued with the idea of building Chilton County for Chilton Countians. The man you elect cannot hope to accomplish much if he is for half the voters and opposed to the other half. If you honor me on May 4th I promise to represent all the people in such a way as will promote unity, harmony and good will among our people.

I would like to see greater economy in our government. I mean by this that I would like to see more services and results from the hard earned tax dollars we are spending. Without an increase in taxes I believe the people are entitled to more benefits. If elected, I hope to help bring some of these services and benefits to the people.

I would like to see our old people better provided for tgrough old age pensions. I will support legislation which tends to make secure our old people when they are unable to [illegible] for themselves.

As one interested in education I propose to aid and work for any legislation which means progress to our schools. Something has to be done to relieve the crowded conditions of our schools, lack of school facilities, low teacher salaries and poor pay to bus drivers.

In asking for your vote on May 4th I would like to state that I will oppose any change in our form of County Government or the construction of a new courthouse unless I am authorized by a vote of the people to do otherwise.

I solicit your vote and will greatly appreciate your help in my efforts to serve as your next Representative in the lecislature

CULL LAYERS CLOSELY FOR HIGHEST PROFITS

Auburn, Ala.—Hens are selling at a very good price on most Alabama markets. So cull those laying flocks closely.

"When culling birds," explains A PI Extension Poultryman John Weeks, "consider these three major characteristics: body capacity and comb and skin texture, molt condition, and skin color. Of these, skin color is the most effective tool for culling layers.

Except for Minorca and Orpington, all common chicken breeds can be accurately culled by observing changes in skin color. As a hen lays, she transfers her yellow color to the egg yolks and her skin appears bleached. At the beginning of the lay, the hen's body loses its color in this order: vent, eyelid, ear lobe, beak, feet and legs.

"By noticing bleached body parts, the poultryman can determine approximately how many eggs a hen has laid. For example, the beak bleaches first at the base and last at the tip. A hen that has laid 10 or 11 eggs will have about one-third of her beak bleached. After she has laid around three dozen eggs, the complete beak will have lost its yellow color. The legs lose their yellow color after a hen has been laying from four to six months.

"When a hen stops laying, color returns to her body in the same order in which it bleached out, but faster. Thus a hen out of production can be easily detected. In a flock that has been laying for some time, hens that have regained their color at the base of the beak with just a tip still bleached have already been in and out of production."

TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

R. Odell Payton

In offering myself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County I would appreciate any and all consideration shown us.

I have lived in Chilton County all of my life and have worked for several business firms in Clanton.

I am a member of Providence Baptist Church.

I do not believe in showing any favoritism to any particular community, party or person.

I have been a J. P. and notary for the past 4 years for best 16, Chilton County.

I have not made any promises to anyone. I will say this, if I am fortunate enough to be elected Sheriff of Chilton County, I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the Sheriff's force.

Should I be your next Sheriff and public servant, there are two things I would like for the people of Chilton County to know, what I would say and expect of the men who would work with me.

1. First, I would like to know if they could take the job at the wage it paid, and make a living.

2. Second. Do they think they can take the oath of this office and live by it as a public servant for the people of Chilton County as a whole regardless of party, community or person.

If elected, I will do my very best to make you, the people of Chilton County, one of the best public servants for this office you have ever had.

I will try to see you during this campaign, should I fail to see any one it will certainly not be done so intentionally.

And to them that don't know me personally ask about me in the community in which I live.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

Sincerely yours,
R. ODELL PAYTON

ideas from other editors

From The Vista Press, Vista, California: This is the week that we clean up our community. This is the week which the people of the various organizations have talked of for several years and no one has done anything about.

Now we have a well organized plan for the cleaning up not only of our downtown streets, but the roadsides throughout the entire community . . . for a complete cleanup job.

But now comes the catch. Are we going to clean up and forget it? Are we going to continue to throw trash from our cars? We have a beautiful community, and we as citizens must keep it clean.

Let's make an effort to pick up after ourselves.

From the Hunterdon County Democrat, Flemington, New Jersey: It might be well to remind the people who are blasting Senator McCarthy and his anti-communist activities, and their supporters, what set off this great commotion.

The Senator was in the process of trying to find out from the Army, why an officer who refused to take the loyalty oath received a promotion and an honorable discharge after he had been exposed as a Fifth Amendment Communist.

The right of the people to know the answer to this question has been submerged in the shouting for McCarthy's scalp and the name calling that has ensued . . . How do the American people get the answer? When? From Whom?

Or, are we entitled to the answer?

From the Claremont News, Claremont, Minnesota: After reading words of praise expressed by J. Edgar Hoover for Senator McCarthy's efforts to combat Communism and the results he has attained, we get a little disgruntled with those who try to throttle sentiment against his investigations.

The fact remains that any expressed Communist, or ONE WHO has leanings that way in their mind or heart is an enemy of the United States government, which was founded on Christian faith and principles.

If we were in Sen. McCarthy's place and a witness declined to say if he were a Communist or ever had been one, we would be in just the right mood to order him deported to some desert isle where he could practice those atheistic principles to his heart's content. No citizen should harbor ideas that deny faith in God nor the principles of the American form of government.

LOTS OF WATER NEEDED FOR HIGH CROP YIELDS

Farm to fit your land. That's the best way to save valuable rainfall so necessary for high crop yields.

On most farms a combination of the following practices is needed to conserve water: terraces and sodded outlets, contour cultivation, cover crops and crop rotations to add organic matter to the soil, and applications of mineral fertilizers.

In making these statements, API Extension Soil Conservationist S. R. Doughty points out that it takes 5000 gallons of water to produce one bushel of corn, 80 gallons for one pound of cotton, 100 gallons for a pound of hay and 1300 gallons for one pound of beef.

Remember, he concludes, plants can use only the water that is within reach of their roots.

THE RACE AND THE GOAL

Census experts say that our population in 1975 should be around 200 million or more persons. It is a prediction that warrants sober thought and planning.

Huge populations are a liability rather than an asset if they're non-productive and without equipment or resources. That is where capital comes into the glowing picture which the experts paint—capital goods and equipment on a large scale.

Our 1975 labor force is expected to be around 88 million—a third larger than it is today. Jobs necessarily must be created for 22 million new workers, most of them in business and industry. There is a $12,000 investment behind the average job in America today, which means we'll need around 264 billion dollars of new investment by 1975 to provide equally productive jobs for our increased work force.

So, here's the 264-billion dollar question: Will government costs and taxes be cut enough to permit the saving and investment needed for the future? That is a fervent hope, for the benefit of the glorious goal to be won, and the generations to come.—Opp News.

PRAISE FOR COUNTRY PRESS

Lavish praise for the country press recently came from a top government official—Secretary of Commerce Weeks. He said: "When the history of this age . . . is fully described, great credit for maintaining our freedom will go to the American press, and particularly the country and suburban newspaper.

"The weekly press is the community's loyal, trustworthy, warmhearted friend. It knows everybody. It goes into every home as a welcome guest. It keeps neighbors acquainted with each other. Its advice is wise and its sympathetic interest is genuine. It fosters civic pride and an enterprising community spirit. It is the stout champion of the moral principles that make America great. And it tells the truth."—Opp News.

THE CRISIS IN OUR SCHOOLS

The growing crisis in our nation's Wschools is best exemplified in the ramarkable rise in our nation's birth rate during and after World War II.

The United States, a nation of 160 million, is today within a shade of the incredible birth rate of India, a nation of 350 million. This tremendous increase has resulted in the highest school enrollment in our history. Thirty-seven million children are in attendance in our schools this year. By 1960 we may look forward to eight million more children than there are now in our schools. Even today about 600,000 children are undergoing, for want of a better name, "hot seat" education. That is, they are going to school only half a day because there simply are not enough teachers and classrooms to go around. Indeed, [illegible] out of every five classrooms in America today are overcrowded. And—unbelievable as it may seem—in the year 1953 we were short nearly 75,000 elementary school teachers.

There is a growing need, too, not only for more text books and supplies but also for transportation facilities which are today staggering under the increased loads of school enrollment

It is up to Mr. and Mrs. America as to what will be done about our schools, and when we say Mr. and Mrs. America we mean YOU.

UNITED STATES POLL

CONFIDENCE IN JOB AND BUSINESS PROSPECTS TAKES UPWARD TURN FOR CHANGE

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Research Service

Princeton, New Jersey—Confidence in the nation's business and job prospects is greater today across the U. S. than it was just five weeks ago.

At the present time, a majority of the adult population of the nation (52%) expects more or the same amount of business and jobs for the U. S. than it had during the past year or two.

Five weeks ago, 47 percent of the nation's population expected more or the same amount of business and jobs—a 5% upswing in optimism.

The significance of today's optimistic upswing can be fully appreciated when it is realized that during the period between March, 1953, and five weeks ago, there was a slow but steady decline in optimism regarding business and job prospects on the part of the nation's adult population.

Today's findings mark a halt in this decline.

They also indicate that people across the country are not expecting any serious recession in the very near future.

When United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section of the country's adult citizens

"How do you feel about business conditions in this state for the next few years? Do you think there'll be more business and more jobs than during the past year or two or less business and fewer jobs?"

These were the results:

NATIONWIDE

More or the same amount of business and jobs	52%
More	20%
Same	32
Less	43
No opinion	5

Five weeks ago, 47 percent of the nation's adult population expected more or the same amount of business and jobs; 49 percent expected less business and fewer jobs; 4 percent expressed no opinion.

Survey findings also indicate that at least 1 out of every 2 in each section of the country is optimistic about business and job prospects in his own state.

The sentiment by geographical areas is: New England and mid-Atlantic folks say more or same amount of business and jobs by 55 percent; in the South it is 52 percent; East-West Central, 50 percent and in the Rocky Mt., Pacific area it's 50 percent.

Here is the trend over the past 16 months:

	More or Less	Less	No Opin.
December, 1952	70%	15%	15%
March, 1953	71	17	12
July, 1953	65	32	3
October, 1953	60	34	6
December, 1953	53	42	5
Five weeks ago	47	49	4
TODAY	52	43	5

Since December, 1947, Princeton Research Service has been making periodic measurements on people's outlook on future business and job conditions in various parts of the nation and in the U. S. as a whole.

During that time, there has been a close correlation between the answers that people have given and the actual business and job conditions in the areas measured

Today's United States Poll results in the light of the experience of the past years would indicate that the nation can look forward to business and job prospects at or about the 1950 level (prior to the Korean outbreak) and better than they were in the period between December, 1947, and December, 1849.

At the same time, today's findings do not indicate that business and job conditions will be as good as they were in the period between the outbreak of the Korean War and December, 1953.

The Chilton County News presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area.

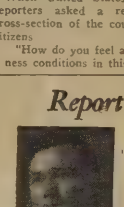
Report from Washington



BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The long discussed Air Force Academy will soon become a reality. The bill to establish a "West Point of the air" has been signed into law by the President, and a special committee to select a site for the academy will probably be named this week by the Air Force Secretary.

The law authorizes a total of $126 million for the new Academy. Of this amount, a maximum of $1 million may be spent to convert an existing air base into a temporary academy. Selection of an Air Force base for this purpose will not be made until the special committee has recommended a permanent academy site. Air Force officials say an air base within reasonable distance of the permanent site will be designated so that the transfer from temporary to permanent quarters will be easier.

Several hundred sites have been proposed as locations for the air academy, and there will probably be others recommended after the members of the special committee or commission have been appointed. Committee members must be unanimous in their choice of a location. If they are unable to agree on one specific place, then the Secretary of the Air Force will recommend one of the top three sites on the committee's approved list.

Appointment of cadets to the interim or temporary academy will be made in this manner. The number of appointments or vacancies allocated to each state is proportionate to the state's representation in Congress. Alabama has been allotted five vacancies for the first class of 300 cadets who will be enrolled in July, 1955. Each Representative and Senator from Alabama will be allowed to nominate not more than 10 persons to compete for these five vacancies. This means that a maximum of 210 young men may be competing for the State's five appointments to the academy. Based on competitive examinations, the five appointments will be made from among qualified candidates in order of merit.

This method of appointing cadets will be used as long as the academy is in temporary quarters because the classes must necessarily be small. It has been estimated that the first two or three classes will enter the academy at its temporary location. Later, when the permanent Academy is completed, the procedure for nominating persons for the Air Force Academy will be the same as that used in the nomination of West Point cadets. Each Congressman will be permitted to nominate cadets from his particular district periodically, with not more than four of his appointees being enrolled at any one time. Detailed information concerning the nomination and selection of cadets for the first class of the air academy will be released at a later date. As soon as I receive this information I will make it available so that any young men interested in attending the Air Force Academy may have an opportunity to make application.

Legislative Notes—

The House and the Senate approved and sent to the White House last Tuesday the compromise excise tax reduction bill. This legislation, discussed in an earlier column, places a 10% ceiling on most items taxed. On Wednesday the President signed the measure and the following day (April 1st) these tax cuts became effective. I'm sure many of you have already noticed these reductions in the purchase of numerous items.

Last week the House approved a $5.5 billion appropriation for operating 23 independent government agencies in fiscal 1955. The bill includes $3.7 billion for the Veterans Administration and slightly more than $1 billion for the production of improved hydrogen and atomic bombs. The bill also authorizes $103,582,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority for fiscal 1955. A motion by Rep. Andrews of Alabama that would have added $85,000,000 to the TVA appropriation for additional steam plants was rejected. The House also rejected two other amendments to increase TVA funds. At the same time, a proposal requiring the TVA to pay interest on funds advanced by the Treasury for power development was killed by a parliamentary ruling.

The Administration's housing bill was passed by the House last Friday and sent to the Senate. As cleared by the House, the bill contains numerous proposals of the President for enlarging the supply of new privately sponsored housing, encouraging the rehabilitation of old homes, spurring slum clearance and urban development. The House refused, however, to authorize 140,000 new public low rent housing units that had been recommended by Mr. Eisenhower. It also refused to grant discretionary power to the President to raise or lower interest rates on veterans' loans. This power will remain in the Congress.

Try this: before frying, roll oysters in cracker crumbs mixed with a teaspoonful of celery salt.

Keep those pieces of meringue pie unbroken and fluffy by cutting them with a knife dipped in cold water.

To cut very fresh cake and bread without crumbling, use a thin-bladed knife heated in hot water and then dried.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LETTER TO THE EDITOR THE DEVIL LAUGHED

I have just read in the Press, a nation wide poll, on how to reduce highway accidents. There were some fair suggestions. Some said reduce the speed limit, raise the age limit for drivers licenses, more highway patrols, heavier penalties for violators, take all old cars off the road, and about twenty other suggestions. The Devil laughed in his sleeves when he noticed that liquor was not one time mentioned as a great factor in the cause of highway accidents. If whiskey could be kept off the mind and stomach of drivers and passengers, you could go a long way toward reducing highway fatalities to a minimum.

May the day hasten when our people will see and realize the curse of strong drink and rise up and demand that something sensible be done about it.

ALABAMA LAUNCHES NEW SOW TESTING PROGRAM

AUBURN, Ala.—Alabama's new sow testing program is offering hog producers a shorter road to profits.

Recognizing purebred sows whose litters weigh 300 pounds or more when 56 days old, the program enables growers to discover and weed out poor brood sows and to cash in on market demand for pigs from proved sows.

"There's a definite relationship between weaning weights and market weights," explains APJ Extension Animal Industry Specialist, G. B. Phillips, director of the program. "The heaviest pig at weaning time—about 56 days after birth—will usually get to market the fastest. Therefore, weaning weights are a reliable guide in selecting breeding stock. And market demand will run high for pigs from a sow that can produce a big litter of quick gainers.

"Conducted by county agents all over the state, the sow testing program is open to both adult farmers and 4-H Club members," says Phillips. "Upon proof of performance, plus an official health certificate showing the herd is free of brucellosis, the grower will receive a gold or silver certificate for his winning sows.

"Gold seals will be given for sows whose litters weigh 350 pounds or more at weighing time. Silver seal will be presented for those whose litters tip the scales at 300 to 349 pounds. Gilts will be in the 'gold' limelights if their first babies add up to 300 or more pounds. Those with litters from 250 to 299 pound will win silver seals."

Farmers interested in taking part in the program can receive full details from county agents.

THANK YOU! for Your Endorsement of Our Proposed COOSA RIVER DEVELOPMENT

Our proposal to complete the development of the Coosa River between Wetumpka, Alabama and Rome, Georgia, has been endorsed to date by 155 organizations and many individuals.

We are publishing this advertisement to express publicly our appreciation for the resolutions of the organizations listed below, and others, and for the formal and informal expression of good wishes, including those from many newspapers which have given their endorsement.

We are ready to start immediately with engineering and other work necessary to begin actual construction, which will bring about the expenditure for labor and materials of approximately $100,000,000, all of which will be furnished by the Company.

For our proposal to be carried out, legislation by the Congress is required. The Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, and the Company agreed on March 11 upon the provisions to be included in such legislation, and on March 15 a copy was sent to Senators Hill and Sparkman and the Congressmen from Alabama, with a memorandum signed by Major General B. L. Robinson, Deputy Chief of Engineers, stating that "These provisions are satisfactory to me, and I believe they adequately protect the federal interest."

We are hopeful that necessary legislation making this development possible will be introduced in the Congress at an early date by Alabama's Senators and Congressmen.

We believe that this project will be of untold benefit to the people of Alabama.

Nichols, Friday, March 19th, 1954. (Miss Sherrer and Mr. Nichols having been residents of Plantersville, Ala.)

doing nicely at her home.

Not a trace of Rass Rasberry better known as "Wop" or "Pap" yet. It seems funny that a person could just disappear. White folks in this section are concerned over his disappearance. "Wop" minded his own business and it kinda looks like he might have met with foul play.

KEEP CLOSE WATCH ... BEEF HERDS IN APR...

Auburn, Ala.— Now is the time to keep a close watch of beef herds.

"Put weak animals in a smaller pasture, and each day feed them some hay plus two pounds of concentrate," advises R. C. Farquhar, API Extension assistant livestockman.

Unless already inoculated this year, all cattle under two years of age should be inoculated for blackleg as soon as possible. Use the two-purpose serum that immunizes against both blackleg and malignant edema

Complete all dehorning and castrating this month, continues Farquhar. Castrate spring calves before they are a week or 10 days old. Begin spraying as soon as flies and other external parasites appear. And be on the lookout for bloat.

COMBINE SAGRAIN SEED RELEASED TO FARMERS

The API Experiment Station is now releasing 5,500 pounds of Combine Sagrain foundation seed to farmers interested in increasing the seed through certification. The supply of this outstanding new variety of grain sorghum will be allocated through the Alabama Crop Improvement Association, announces Secretary Ralph Jones of Auburn.

Growers can apply for seed thru their county agents or write directly to the association in Auburn. A charge of 50 cents per pound has been set to pay production costs.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

April Showers bring May flowers, and both mean spring.

Spring is the season of the year when all nature renews and puts on her brightest green dress. May everyone, like nature, put forth their best efforts for good and leave the storms of indifference like the ice and snow, behind us and enjoy the sunshine of life while we may.

April is also the singing month. Many voices of birds call for resurrection over fields of flowers and the flowers come forth. They were only hidden from the cold, for a while. God's miracles are all about us in each bit of Spring time.

Baptist News—

On Sunday April 4th, the church held Youth Day. This was the first time to use the young people in all the services. The young folks did well and the column takes this opportunity to give praise.

The church has completed two study courses, using the Book of Psalms and Books on Faith. Both were well attended. Refreshments were enjoyed at the close of the Course on Faith.

Sunday notice the opening of the small nursery. Two years ago the subject was mentioned but no definite plans made. Then, about two months ago, the committee was revived, materials bought, and donated, the project completed, and opened on Sunday, April 4th. A Cradle Roll and Extension Department are in the offing.

Plans for Easter Services are being made. The choir will join Center Hill for an Easter Sunrise service.

WSCS Meeting—

The Jemison WSCS met on April 4th with Mrs. Edna McNeill.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leo Langston. The program opened with a choir prayer followed by song "Love Divine." Mrs. Roscoe Black gave a very interesting talk on "Prison System."

The minutes were read and approved by the secretary, Mrs. J. C. Fuimer. The treasurer's report was given by Miss Sybil Langston. There was a nice attendance.

Rev. and Mrs. Hughen were guests of the society.

The May meeting will be with Mrs. Nancy Wells, Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Miss Sue Bratton Honored—

Miss Sue Bratton, bride-elect of Johnny McKinney, was honored at a kitchen shower on March 28, when her cousin, Mrs. Herman Rosenberg, entertained at her home in Mountain Brook, Birmingham. Arrangements of pink gladioli made the spacious home more attractive. Crystal bowls held floating camelias.

In the dining room, the bride's table was covered with a cut work linen cloth and was marked with the crystal punch bowl garlanded with ivy and tiny pink flowers. Crystal candelabra held tapers. Decorated ribbon streamers floated from a lovely arrangement of pink snapdragons and fern. A miniature bride and groom was placed near this. Cakes decorated in pink and green, mints, nuts, and punch was served the large number of guests that called during the afternoon. Favors were pink tulle bags filled with rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Messer of Auburn were at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Langston.

Rev. and Mrs. Hughen were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robinson. Rev. Hughen is on the Verbena Circuit.

At home for the week end and taking part in Youth Day at the Baptist church, was Willodean Edwards of Birmingham.

Mrs. Margaret Walling is back at work, her mother having greatly improved from a recent illness.

Ronnie Callee, great nephew of Mrs. Tom Cost, is improving. He is now able to be out of bed some during the day.

Larry Cobb is improving, will be back home last of this week if he receives no set-back.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Northcutt have moved to Oak Grove community. Folks will miss this fine family.

1500 Ex-Servicemen To Be Returned To 1-A

Alabama Selective Service Director Col. James T. Johnson, Jr., has disclosed that a recent Executive Order some ex-servicemen in certain categories face the possibility of a return to a I-A Classification.

Colonel Johnson said that the order called for the reclassification of men who entered the service on or after June 24, 1948, who were discharged with less than six months of military duty.

He said Selective Service had no alternative but to comply with the ruling, despite the fact that in many instances it was not the fault of the dischargee that he had been released from service without fulfilling his obligation.

Johnson sail that Selective Service records were being carefully studied by all local boards throughout the nation, and that in Alabama, some of these men had already been processed for re-induction.

He said that there were approximately 1500 cases in Alabama which would fall in this category.

"By law, registrants who entered the armed forces on or after June 24, 1948, and were honorably separated therefrom without having served six months, must be put in Class I-A," Johnson said.

Johnson pointed out that "particular attention will be given to 'hardship cases' (III-A for extreme hardship, or registrants with a child or children)." He said that "anytime the registrant ceases to qualify for ClassIII-A, he will be made available for further military service."

He said also that a number of persons were discharged for reasons of dependency, or employment in defense industries, and that in many cases these reasons no longer existed, and that they could be reclassified.

The State Selective Service director said also that a new study was being made of registrants who had been given IV-F Classification (Service disqualification because of physical condition). In many instances physical standards have been lowered, and many of those now in IV-F may be reclassified as I-A.

He added that many of those previously classified in IV-F had responded to treatment, or otherwise improved physically.

Colonel Johnson again called attention to the fact that by Selective Service regulations, registrants classified IV-F after rejection at Examining Stations may be required to be returned for another examination after a specified date. He said this re-examination is a responsibility of local boards.

Alabama's April quota for inductees is 480. Approximately 50 per cent of the call will be made up of volunteers.

LEAVE PAY DEADLINE MAY BE EXTENDED

According to Bob Fullen, County Veterans Service Officer, War II veterans may be given another chance to file a claim for terminal leave pay.

Fullen stated that the 1946 Leave Act compensates enlisted personnel for accumulated leave credits accrued between Sept. 8, 1939 and Aug. 31, 1946 with a cut-off date of June 30, 1951. Many Alabamians let this date slip by without filing for benefits provided.

The Senate has passed and sent to the House of Representatives a bill extending to June 30, 1955 the cut-off date for eligible veterans. Since the bill is considered routine, Fullen believes that favorable House is virtually assured.

PLANT ADAPTED HYBRID FOR HIGH CORN YIELDS

AUBURN, Ala.— Planting good seed of an adapted hybrid is one of the main steps in producing high corn yields.

According to API Extension Agronomist D. R. Harbor, research shows that the best adapted hybrids produce up to 115 bushels of more per acre than the best open-pollinated corn varieties.

He suggests that North Alabama farmers plant one of the following corn varieties: Dixie 22, Dixie 33, Pfister (PAG) 170, Pfister (PAG) 620, Pfister 631, Pioneer 302, Pfister 510, or U. S. 13. Central Alabama growers will get high returns from Coker 811, Dixie 11, Dixie 18, and North Carolina 27. In South Alabama these varieties offer the most promising yields: Coker 811, Dixie 11, Dixie 18, Louisiana 521, and North Carolina 27.

It is a good farm practice to save seed of small grains, white clover, caley peas, hur clover vetches, and crimson clover Thick spacing is essential to good peanut yields.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

GLAUCOMA

Glaucoma is one of the most dangerous conditions to affect the eye; for, if neglected, it results in blindness. The chronic type comes on slowly, remaining almost symptomless in its early stages. There are certain manifestations, however, which vary in individuals: having to get a new pair of glasses every few months, waking up early in the morning with headaches, having difficulty in locating seats in darkened movie theaters, and seeing a red-green halo around street lights. As glaucoma develops, the patients lose side vision. The visual fields grow narrow, and a person has to turn his head a little more to the right or left to watch traffic.

Other signs may be occasional blurring and clouding of vision, one sided headache, discomfort in and around the eyes; there may be a history of glaucoma in the family.

What is glaucoma? Actually it is hardness of the eyeball due to unusually high fluid pressure inside the eye. Normally the eye has its own internal circulation of a watery fluid which fills the front chamber of the eye. Any excess is drained off by a sieve-like circular structure which surrounds the iris. Anything that interferes with this normal drainage system causes a blocking, and this results in increased pressure. As the pressure increases, there is pain; the eye gets hard and reddened, and the pupil gets gray and cloudy.

Glaucoma is important to all of us because it results in absolute blindness in almost all untreated cases. Care and vigilance, however, can save the sight in the majority of those afflicted, if the condition is found early. In some persons, certain drugs can be used to keep the pupil small and out of the way of the drainage system. Frequently surgery is necessary to open up a new drainage canal to carry on the work of the blocked one.

The wearing or changing of glasses has absolutely no effect on the prevention or control of glaucoma. Treatment or operation does not cure the disease. They merely control the pressure.

RABIES

The old idea that rabies occurs more often during "dog days" is not necessarily so. Statistics prove that rabid animals bite during all times of the year, but more often during early spring and fall.

Rabies is an acute infectious disease given to human beings through the bite of an animal which has it. Dogs, cats, foxes, wolves, horses, cows and other animals may be affected by the rabies virus, but it is found most often in dogs.

Frothing at the mouth is not necessarily a symptom in the animal. If your dog suddenly becomes irritable, snaps without reason, seeks solitude, chews indigestible objects, has accessive saliva with paralysis of the lower jaw, difficulty in swallowing, a change in bark or disturbance in vision, a veterinarian should be consulted.

The incubation period of the virus in a dog varies from one week to six months. It lodges in the saliva. When the dog bites a human being, the virus is passed into the broken skin. A large or deep wound will cause signs of the disease sooner than a shallow or a simple tooth wound. Because the virus travels along the nerve routes, a bite on the head, face or neck is particularly dangerous and may produce symptoms within ten days. An arm or leg wound may not cause the disease for thirty to sixty days.

Rabies can be prevented. There are antirabic injections which fight off the disease, and anyone who has been bitten by a dog should seek treatment at once. Prevention could also be established by having your dog vaccinated against rabies.

The prevention of rabies is a community problem, for once symtoms develop the victim dies. Pets should be injected annually with antirabic vaccine. In addition they should not be allowed to roam the streets. Every effort should be made to catch stray dogs and to comply with health deaprtment regulation concerning dogs.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

"Was Jesus Crucified on Wednesday?" will be the sermon topic next Sabbath. This claim is being made from many quarters every year at this time. The Wednesday crucifixion theory is based on a misunderstanding of Mat. 12:40 which says: "For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." In our Sabbath sermon we propose to get at the truth of this text. Visitors cordially invited.

EARLY SWEETPOTATOES SHOULD BE SET SOON

AUBURN, Ala.— Sweetpotatoes usually bring growers better prices on early markets in late July or August

So plant them in time to meet these periods of higher profits, says API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby. South Alabama farmers should begin their early crop on April 1, those in North Alabama on April 15

Push early tubers along with a starter solution prepared by mixing 10 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer with 50 gallons of water. Pour one cup of the solution around each plant.

"By early June these plants will furnish vine cuttings for the main crop," adds Bagby. "For maximum yields set the main sweetpotato crop no later than June 20."

Vaccinate all pullets on the farm for Newcastle and fowlpox when they are 10 to 12 weeks old.

Start grazing sericea when new growth is young and tender; let kudzu get well started before grazing is begun.

The carcass of a top hog ought to measure 30 inches or better.

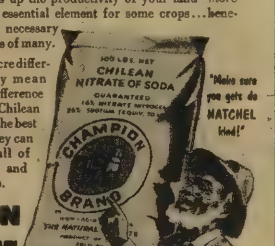
Would you trade a Penny for a Dollar?

● You can if you use Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda for your top-dressing and side-dressing needs. It costs a little more because it's worth more. But the difference in cost usually can be measured in pennies per acre, while the difference in value often amounts to dollars per acre.

Chilean "Bulldog" Soda gives you generous extra value. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate. It's 100 per cent available (quick-acting); 100 per cent dependable. The minor elements make crops stronger, healthier. The sodium—26 pounds in every 100-pound sack—is a key to maximum returns on your entire fertilizer investment. It offsets the bad effects of acid-forming fertilizers...increases the efficiency of mixed fertilizers containing them. It releases "locked-up" potash in the soil...increases the availability and efficiency of soil phosphate...reduces potash, calcium and magnesium losses by leaching...develops larger, deeper root systems.

Sodium builds up the productivity of your land—more each year. It's an essential element for some crops...beneficial to most and necessary for maximum yields of many.

Pennies-per-acre difference in cost may mean dollars-per-acre difference in value to you. Chilean "Bulldog" Soda is the best fertilizer your money can buy. Use it for all of your top-dressing and side-dressing needs.



"Make sure you get the MATCHED kind!"

City Hall Out for Clean Sweep

Seems Spring has made the boys at City Hall sit up and look around a bit. And they didn't like what they saw. Thought the town looked kind of littered.

The Mayor called for us to get busy on a Spring clean-up. He launched the campaign with an invitation to name the most untidy place in town. The vote was unanimous—for City Hall!

"Guess we should've taken a look here first," says Mayor Thomas. "But, between scrub-brush and paint brush, we're going to make City Hall as spankin' clean as the day it opened."

From where I sit, the Mayor—and the rest of the town—could take a cue from some of our local businessmen. Take Andy who runs the Green Gardens, for instance. He co-operates with the Self-Regulation program of the Brewing Industry by keeping his place spick-and-span all the time—the year around. It's clean-up time all the time at Andy's place!

"FORTHRIGHT LAURIE BATTLE IS NEEDED IN U. S. SENATE"

(From Editorial Endorsing Battle for Senate)

LAURIE C. BATTLE
The Veteran's Candidate for U. S. Senate

Son of Rev. W. R. Battle, Methodist minister 40 years, serving churches throughout Alabama. Worked way through college. Fought as a Private (World War II); promoted through ranks to Major. Named 1 of the 3 outstanding Democratic Congressmen. Married, father of 3 children.

"The Mobile Press Register recommends Rep. Laurie Battle of the Ninth Congressional District (Birmingham) for election to the United States Senate to succeed Sen. John J. Sparkman.

"We endorse the 41-year-old Battle because we believe the people of Alabama are entitled to firm and consistent representation in the Senate. Battle's record shows that he is an Alabama Democrat who represents Alabamians.

"Vast numbers of Alabamians are disappointed in Sen. Sparkman. They believe, and we think rightly, that Sparkman has let them down. Sparkman has not been representing Alabama at all times . . .

"Laurie Battle is a sincere, earnest man, a man of stature and firm conviction who believes in Alabama Democratic party principles. Elected four times to the U. S. House of Representatives from Jefferson County, Battle deserves promotion to the Senate so he can serve all of Alabama in a larger field. He has earned that promotion on his record as a forthright congressman."

"My Best Buy of the Year"

"Having a telephone put in our farm home was my best buy last year. It saves valuable time in ordering groceries, or getting a doctor or help from a neighbor. The joy it gives me to chat with a neighbor, invite someone to church, inquire about a sick friend, or receive long distance calls from my children in other states—in all these ways the telephone makes our farm life more worth-while. "Mrs. I. E. Bazzell, Route 1, Box 164, Mountain Creek, Alabama.

Mrs. I. E. Bazzell of Mountain Creek, Alabama found her telephone so valuable she sent an unsolicited letter to The Progressive Farmer, through whose courtesy it is reprinted at the left.

A lot of people everywhere feel as Mrs. Bazzell does — that the telephone is their "best buy". On farms, in cities, day in and day out, the telephone serves in so many big and little ways. Yet its cost is small, less than a penny an hour for the average family.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY:

Let me take this opportunity of thanking you for receiving me in such a wholesome and friendly manner. You have been very good to me and I assure you that I appreciate it. I am trying to see all of you but know this is impossible in such a short period of time.

If I am elected as Tax Assessor of Chilton County I promise you to carry out my duties in an honest and unbiased manner. My political future lies in your hands and I pledge you my influence and support, on any issue that may arise, being carried out in accordance with the dictates of the voters of our county. It is my opinion that the policies of our county should be formulated in accordance with the majority opinion of it's voters.

Your Vote and Influence will be Greatly Appreciated

BANK FACTS FOR YOU

How deposits in our bank are protected

They are protected four ways: first, by physical safeguards, such as our strong vault and alarm system; second, by the competence and sound practices of management; third, by the examinations of banking authorities; and fourth, by deposit insurance. Through our bank's membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation each depositor here is insured up to $10,000 for all deposits held in the same right and capacity. We and the other member banks pay the full cost of this insurance.

Give your dollars the benefit of this important four-way protection: open an account with us... this week, we suggest.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Politically things have gone from warm to hot! So has the weather.

The Attorney General of Alabama says that voters lists MUST be published. In a ruling this week secured by G. C. Long, State Director of Publicity and Information stated: ... Sec. 38, Title 17, Code of Alabama, provides for the publication of the (qualified voters) lists prior to April 15th. He also states that the Section is not to be confused with Sec. 40 which requires probate judges for the election inspectors the lists of voters which are not required to be published but which can be published by newspapers. The Voter Lists Called for in Section 38 Must be Published.

The editor of the News Bag says that he never can lose the feeling that when he is spreading plant food on his lawn each spring, that he is working against himself.

Little Willie says "Hey Mother, the ladder just fell down in the back yard." "Well I can't come now. I'm baking a cake. Call your father." "Oh" says Willie "He knows about it. He's hanging to the edge of the roof yelling for help."

We received an article today in regards to the position of Quinton Cummings on his name not being printed on the ballots for the May 4th primary. Since this article discussed personalities we will have to abide by our rule of not publishing personal articles unless they are signed. We tried to contact Mr. Cummings for his signature but failed to do so. We will be glad to publish anyone's views at any time so long as their letters or articles are signed.

Judge M. D. Tingle Writes To People Of Chilton County

I went by the Chilton County first copies of the published qualified voters list of Chilton County. Later on I was checking over the qualified list to see if all of the candidates, whose qualifications had been certified to me, were listed in the paper. I checked for Mr. Quinton R. Cummings' name in Beat 3 and did not find it in the paper.

Wednesday morning when I went to my office I told my clerks to make a thorough check of all the votere records in my office to see why Mr. Cummings name did not appear on the newspaper qualified voters list. It was discovered that from the records in this Probate Judge's office and tax collectors office that there was no evidence that Mr. Quinton R. Cummings in Beat 3 had paid the poll tax due by him for the years 1952 and 1953. It was found in the records that Mr. Cummings had paid all of the poll tax due by him for all years except for the years 1952 and 1953.

If was found that his name is in the registered disqualified records

Upon discovery of these facts, I immediately notified Mr. Cummings and took the matter up with the Attorney General of the State of Alabama. Whereupon I was advised by the Attorney General as follows:

"I am confident that this candidate is not only disqualified but ineligible. It is further my view that it is the duty of this Probate Judge to leave the name of this person off the ballot to be used in the primary election. In my opinion, it is immaterial whether or not the Chairman of the County Executive Committee withdraws the certificate to candidacy. We have held that it is the duty of the person charged with the printing of the ballots to leave the names of those persons who are disqualified and ineligible off the ballot. See, Quarterly Report of Attorney General, Vol. 6a page 126. I am enclosing a copy of this opinion for your information.

Very truly yours,
SI GARRETT.

Attorney General By — Bernard F. Sykes Assistant Attorney General."

I regret the whole incidence very much and regret very much that it was my duty not to print Mr. Cummings name on the ballot. People, when I took the office to which you elected me, I took an oath, to administer the laws which I feel I have done to the best of my ability with reference to this matter even though it affects one of my best friends and former associates. My course of action in this matter would have been the same had Quinton been my brother.

Yours truly,
M. D. TINGLE,
Judge of Probate Chilton County, Alabama.

Phony Peach Disease Funds Increased

Rep. Armistead Selden announced today that the House Appropriations Committee has increased funds for the phony peach disease control program by $100,000. These funds are included in the Department of Agriculture appropriations and will be available during fiscal 1955.

The Agriculture budget submitted to the House Appropriations Committee earlier this year included only $39,000 for combating the phony peach disease for fiscal 1955 When hearings were had last month on appropriations for the Department of Agriculture, Congressman Selden appeared before the Committee to urge approval of more than $39,000 for control of phony disease. In his testimony he pointed out that the phony peach control program protects an industry with an estimated value of $17 million and that failure to control the disease in any one state because of lack of funds might endanger the peach industry. He also emphasized that if an up-surge of this disease occurred, the amount of expenditures necessary to again bring the disease under control would undoubtedly be much larger than the amount now expended for control work

In commenting on the House Appropriations Committee's recommendation of $139,000 for the peach phony control program, Congressman Selden said, "The greatest obstacle in the fight for funds for this program has, I believe, been surrounded. I feel reasonably certain the House and Senate will approve this particular recommendation of the Appropriations Committee."

CCHS Glee Club To Present Program

The Chilton County High School Glee Club in their annual Spring Concert April 27, at 7 p.m. will present Fred Warings "The Song of America," as the main presentation. "The Song of America" is a musical saga of our country's founding with lyrics from the poetic works of Bryant, Emerson, Lowell, Whitter, Longfellow, Holmes, Whitman, and many others, set to music and narration by the masterful arranger, Roy Ringwald

"The Song of America" is one of the longest works that the glee club has ever attempted. Both choral narration plus the four handed piano is so masterfully arranged that American history, from Columbus to Lincoln, is unveiled in forty musical minutes.

Fred Warring had this to say: "Roy Ringwalds 'The Song of America" is to me the finest musical chronicle ever composed about our nation's early struggles. Through inspired music and narration, with lyrics based on the writings of our country's greatest poets, 'The Song of America" portrays our history from the voyages of Columbus to the death of Abraham Lincoln. Here is not only a work of beauty, but a musical memorial of lasting importance. That freedom of conscience and action which our forefathers fought and found . . . and which we today must protect with everlasting vigilance, is Ringwald's dominant theme." Fred Waring

Other numbers to be presented on the same proram are: "They Call it iSiHeioeySytypti dl eucitiogyhi::: America" (But I Call it Home), "Are You Sleeping Brother John," "DE Animals A-Coming," "Dry Bones," and "Through The Years."

UNSUNG HEROES

Our army of Chilton County citizens who go out each month on some kind of "drive" are our unsung heroes.

All of the "drives" are necessary and for a good cause but the same unselfish citizens go out on each drive to try and make it a success and to try to hold their county, and our county, among the top when it comes to sharing our wealth with those less fortunate or for whatever the cause may be.

This army of unsung heroes donate hours and days, and weeks sometimes of their valuable time but seldom do we stop to think what they are sacrificing for the public good.

Say a prayer for them. Thank your lucky stars for them. And tell them how much you appreciate their community spirit the next time one comes to solicit your contribution instead of acting like he was a bill collector coming to collect a past due-bill.

TWO BRING HONORS

The Medical Association of Alabama will honor two Chilton Countians at their convention this week at Mobile.

Those honored will be Dr. C. S. Strock and Dr. John S. Williamson both of Verbena, for their having served in the practice of medicine for more than fifty years.

There will be a celebration at Verbena in recognition of the service rendered by these two men and our heartiest congratulations go out to them both. May their future hold a just reward.

IS THE RUMOR TRUE?

"Henry Sweet, running hard for sixth place in the gubernatorial race, has been doing a neat hatchet job on the financial affairs of James E. Folsom.

For a while it seemed that "Honest" Henry was unselfishly sacrificing himself for the purpose of eliminating Mr. Folsom as a threat. A laudable project indeed.

But now it seems that another bug has bitten Mr. Sweet. That was apparent Monday night in Montgomery when "Honest" Henry lowered the boom on Jimmy Faulkner. Among other things he accused Faulkner of association with certain Alabama newspaper editors not to the Sweet taste, including the editor of this paper. Furthermore he announced that he intends henceforth to make Faulkner his "prime target."

Now that "Honest" Henry has adopted the Joe McCarthy smear attack it is possible that (1) he really thinks he has a chance to ride it to a run-off spot in the second primary or (2) that he has fallen heir to the same sort of "support" that makes possible the Alabama Newsmagazine running?"—Lee County Bulletin.

Typical anti-Folsom propaganda. So long as Sweet was attacking Folsom everything was rosy but when the big guns were turned on Jimmy Faulkner it all of a sudden became a "smear attack."

SIMPLE STEPS TO KEEP ALUMINUM PANS SHINY

AUBURN, Ala.—Keep your aluminum pots and pans shiny, advises Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist.

Clean the inside thoroughly with very fine steel wool and soap. Wash in hot soapy water; rinse in clear water and dry. Never scrape aluminum utensils with a knife or any other metallic kitchen tool, and don't use strong alkalies. If foods stick, explains the home leader, boil water in the pan for a few minutes. Then scrape with a wooden spoon or even a wooden clothespin.

To remove stains, add two tablespoons of cream of tartar to each quart of water and boil in the utensil for about 10 minutes. Cooking rhubarb or tomatoes will also remove harmless discoloration. To give the outside of your pan an extra sparkle, use silver polish.

To keep cauliflower snowy white, soak it for half an hour in cold salt water before cooking.

United States Poll

DEMOCRATS SHOW GAIN IN RACE FOR CONTROL OF CONGRESS

Princeton, New Jersey. — How would the two major political parties stand in the nation if U. S. citizens were voting for Congressmen today instead of in November, 1954—less than 7 months from now?

By a margin of 5 per cent, a cross-section of the nation's voters interviewed by United States Poll staff reporters say that if they were voting for Congressmen (House of Representatives) today, they would favor the Democratic ticket over the Republican party.

Here are the figures that show present day Republican-Democratic strength across the nation:

"If the election [illegible] were being held [illegible] would you like to see [illegible] state—the Republican or the Democratic?

The following table [illegible] results nationally, among those who had an opinion on the above question, or who, if undecided, lean toward which party they "leaned."

Nationwide Vote for Congressmen (House of Representatives)

Democratic	52.5 per cent
Republican	47.5 per cent per cent; Republican, 49 per cent. Thus today's findings represent a 1.5 per cent gain for the Democrats.

Seven weeks ago the [illegible] same question was [illegible] and a 1.5 per cent loss [illegible] publicans since February.

A clearer picture of the [illegible] can be had by examining [illegible] separately in the traditionally Democratic South on the one hand and in the area outside the South the other.

SOUTH ONLY
(House of Representatives)

	Rep.	Dem.
1950 Election	02%	80
1952 Election	20%	80
TODAY	21%	79

And here is the vote outside the South since 1950:

OUTSIDE THE SOUTH
(House of Representatives)

	Rep.	Dem.
1950 Election	53¾	47
1952 Election	55%	45
TODAY	50.5%	49.5

From the above, it can be seen that the big [illegible] the GOP in this year's Congressional elections—one that it faces in every Congressional Election—is that the Democrats can always count on a solid block of Congressional seats from the south. (In the past five Congressional elections, the Democrats have never [illegible] than 7 Congressional seats to the Republicans in the South and have always won at least 111 seats.

And today, [illegible] can be expected that these [illegible] will be dropped this year.

This means that the Democrats start with more than one-half of the 218 seats that they need to regain control [illegible]

And that the Democrats need to pick up [illegible] of the 82 seats across the South to win.

Another [illegible] subject to be kept in mind is that since during the 20th Century has the party in power increased [illegible] in an off year election. That was in 1934, when the Democrats gained 9 seats.

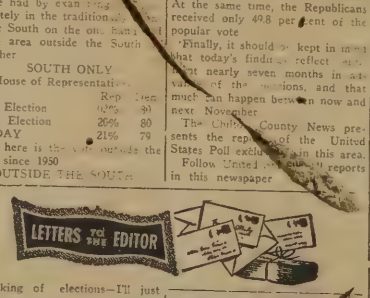
Despite the seeming advantages of the Democratic Party in Congressional districts the past two have resulted in very close races.

For example, in 1950, the Democrats won control of the House by a margin of 19 seats, receiving 50.3 per cent of the popular vote.

And in 1952, the GOP won control by a margin of 5 seats. At the same time, the Republicans received only 49.8 per cent of the popular vote.

Finally, it should be kept in mind that today's findings reflect sentiment nearly seven months in advance of the elections, and that much can happen between now and next November.

The Chilton County News presents the report of the United States Poll exclusively in this area. Follow United [illegible] reports in this newspaper.



Speaking of elections—I'll just tell you right to start off that I'm mighty interested in the outcome of this governor's race. I see where they have already started that old mud slinging already. Seems like all of them ganged up on Mr. Folsom and tried to make some sort of booger out of him. I'm for Folsom and I hope Folsom's for me because I think he's the man. He's not too common for some folks and me.

When a man is common that is running for a high office and doesn't hide behind the false actions of being a big shot politician with big words and nasty things to say about the other fellow, then the rest of us common folks kinda believe in him.

I believe in him because he did what he said he would last time and I believe he'll do it again. I believe what we need in our state is a man that will do what he says he will for his fellow. I hope he is a God fearing man.

I saw where one of the muddy slingers said Mr. Folsom was a physical giant and a mental midget. This fellow could better himself by leaving off such talk that he thinks is cute. We don't want cute governors; we want one that will think about us common folks.

I'm not as educated as some of those men but I think Mr. Folsom is as big hearted and minded as he is tall. One thing is good—He's the only one of that bunch that has proved what he stands for and will do for us and that is what we want!

I'm saying Y'all Come!

TO DO EVITA'S LIFE . . . French actress Andrea Debar, 23, has been approved by Argentina's Pres. Peron to play film role of his late wife, Evita.

As a group, lawyers were the best educated men in early Alabama, and the legal profession was the one profession in those days that was well represented.

Things we -SEE- and Hear by "Tuck"

Some people aren't as habitual with their pessimism as you'd think. It's just that some folks don't stand out any other way except griping. In other words, that's the thing they do best.

Heard where our friend Robert Lane got took for a sizable amount here a week or so ago. It seems there were these book salesmen and Bobby and he seems to be somewhat of a bookworm and they absconded some of his well earned money. Needless to say his lesson is learned as far as some book "worms" are concerned.

It's hard to believe that folks have come to accept getting run down by a car as part of it all. Getting so a motorist isn't safe anymore because of the folks who like to cross the streets of our fair city (especially on Saturday) without so much as looking to see what make and model is going to run them down. Seems to us while warning motorists with warnings the pedestrians need a little shaking and awaking. We're all pedestrians at one time or another you know.

Farmer Jones was showing his city friend over his spread and when they came to the dairy barn the friend began asking questions about the cattle. He asked about the ability of numerous cows to give milk. The farmer answered with the exact average of each cow which seemed to be an impressive amount. They came to one and the friend said, "How much does that one give, she looks like a pretty able giver." "Well said the farmer that ones pretty useful but it doesn't give any milk." "Never heard of anything so outrageous" says the friend, how can you afford to keep one." "Well," replied the farmer, "she's a bull."

There is no excuse for carelessness, carelessness is an excuse.

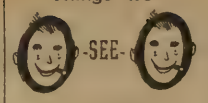
Sorry we didn't get to mention Ralph Johnston's sale down at Upchurch's last week, but we hope you noticed that we were absent from this here column last week. Anyhow maybe if you'll hurry you can still get a bargain for one cent. That's the trick see, you go down and buy two of everything and then put the first one back, that way you might get away with more bargains.

Think how dull things would be if tales didn't change from mouth to mouth.

If you could see yourself as others do what kind of person would you be?

Heard a fella say the other day that if they didn't take those meter change buckets on telephone polls (put there for your convenience, shoppers) down before "Big Jim" got to town he might take them for "suds buckets."

So many folks are spending so much time yapping about who they don't like in the numerous runnings that I don't see where they're going to find time to conclude an honest opinion of who they do want in the office. As the old darkey put it: "Not liking one gennamun sho ain't gonna do annuda one better."



SUNDAY'S SERMON

Christ the Living Lord (Easter).
Lesson for April 18: John 20: 24-29, 21: 15-17.
Golden Text: 20: 29.

Thomas was absent when Jesus first appeared unto the disciples and when told of it he declared that he would not believe unless he could put his hands on the prints of the nails and thrust his hand into the side of the Lord.

There is the old saying that "Seeing is believing," and thus did Thomas ask to see. But he really insisted upon the lowest order of proof of spiritual things. Such things can not be measured with a yardstick and weighed in the scales. Spiritual things are spiritually discerned. And Thomas was to learn that there is an evidence greater than that of all the senses, the evidence of faith. So did Jesus give his last beatitude, "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

On the seashore, after Jesus and Peter and several others of the disciples had eaten the meal their Lord had prepared, the Master, doubtless drawing Peter apart, began his three-fold questioning of the disciple. Peter knew well that the three-fold questioning was connected with his denial of his Lord in the palace of the high priest. With each avowal of Peter's devotion, Jesus bade Peter to feed his flock.

The risen Christ had robbed death of its sting and stripped the grave of its victory. How necessary to the Christian faith is the resurrection! Let us rejoice anew in the blessed truth and give ourselves with great consecration to the work Jesus has left us to do.

Better quality feeds are a big factor in lowering production cost and increasing profits of most livestock products.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

April—

There is sunshine over the woodland and shadows across the hill.
The willows quiver, bend, and shiver. Cow down by the laughing rill.
Lake silver, the rain is pelting flowers that were fast asleep,
Till in glad surprise they wake and arise from their earth beds deep.
Now Robin comes home in the dawning, and cries with his old time cheer,
Birds, flowers, weather proclaim together, "Lo, April is here, is here"

Easter—

It is Easter time again. Nature is bursting her band of captive winter late in essence everywhere; as the Angel rolled away the stone from the sepulcher they also rolled away the stones of defeat and hopelessness and Christ arose from the dead to bring new hope and life to mankind. People should take every opportunity to rededicate their lives to His service and the service of others.

"Not what we take but what we Give." God made the sun, moon, stars, air, skies, earth, sea, trees, grass, flowers, the seas. God made the plan—all of these give, God gives; God made man—he—?"

John 11:25 "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Job 19:25 "For I know that my Redeemer liveth."

Mrs. Elena Cost Hostess—

The Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. Elena Cost Tuesday, April 8, at 12:30 for luncheon. The group enjoyed fried chicken, congealed salad, turnip greens, creamed potatoes, corn sticks, rolls, cake, pie, relishes and coffee.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Elena Cost. Members sang "Jesus Bear the Cross Alone." Mrs. Elena Cost gave the devotional, reading I Cor. 13:4-8 and making appropriate remarks and leading the prayer. Mrs. Cost having attended leadership school, gave the demonstration, "Family Problems — Work them out yourself." Mrs. Louise Wells gave short information.

The Chilton County Fair is to be held 1st week in September. Mrs. Wells suggested a community exhibit, also hand made articles to be on exhibit as a stimulus for members, also articles for sale to be made.

The County Council gave a report on citizenship and pennies for friendship were collected. Members responded to roll call by stating why they liked April. The "Creed" was read as a benediction.

Junior GA's Hold Meeting—

On Friday afternoon, the Junior GA's met at the church at three o'clock.

Willie Lee Blackmon, president, called the meeting to order. All members are learning scripture relative to the particular step they have to take in the organization. After repeating these verses, they sang the GA hymn, "We've a Story to Tell."

The group discussed going to Shocco Springs in the Summer. Mrs. Tom Cost, the counselor, will chaperone the girls. Mrs. Cost dismissed the group with prayer.

Meeting of Intermediate GA's—

The Intermediate GA's met at the church, Friday, April 9, at 3:00. Elaine Davenport, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Louis Brasher, counselor, read Psalm 73 and made a short talk. As a Community Mission act, the group decided to send fruit to Larry Cobb. Members repeated the watch word, our ideals, and allegiance. Elaine Davenport led the closing prayer. Present, Jo Ann Lewis, Annie Sue Cofer, Judy Reeves, Sandra Peterson, Joyce Wells, Peggy Blackmon, and those already mentioned.

Miss Sue Bratton Hostess—

Friday night, April 9 at 6:30, Miss Sue Bratton, bride-elect of Lamar McKinney, whose wedding will take place April 18, entertained her attendants at a buffet supper.

The lace covered dining table was centered with a miniature church decorated in white narcisii. Near it was a doll-sized bride held pink ribbons, these extending to tiny pink net bags of rice, tied with pink ribbon. White burning tapers were in crystal holders.

Following the delightful meal, the girls, with their dates, were off to the Drive-In for further enjoyment.

The year (1819) Alabama became a state a depression swept the nation and Alabama was beset with more severe financial troubles than most other states.

As in most frontier groups, there was little actual money in early Alabama, and when the 1819 panic hit, those who had money were reluctant to spend it, thus making conditions worse.

To Relieve Misery of COLDS take 666

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The five-year-old's interest in [illegible] and [illegible] has been at [illegible] pitch, and enthusiastic one-year-old trots along with him when he sets out on a collecting expedition around the yard.

Early in the morning, while the seven-years-old gets ready for school, they begin their rounds, he with an empty mayonnaise jar to hold their catch and she with a fistful of leftover breakfast toast to sustain them on their hunt.

Together they dig along the edges of the flower beds and turn over bricks and rocks to expose the creeping, crawling things hidden beneath them. He works seriously, picking up each bug carefully and depositing it in the jar. But not the one-year-old! She snatches at the flailing bugs, clutches them gleefully in her chubby fingers and puts them into the jar only because the five-year-old requires it.

When the jar contains a variety of squirming prisoners and the toast is all gone, the collectors come back into the house. As they came in this sultry morning, the five-year-old exclaimed,

"Whew! It's hot. I've got to get out of this pupa skin!"

And he began wriggling out of his T-shirt. But, thank goodness, he didn't split it down the back the way a bug does its skin.

These warm days have prompted mothers all over the neighborhood to cut off the legs of their youngsters' blue jeans.

The cut-off legs are put to many uses; some mothers use them for cleaning cloths, some polish shoes with them, some make hot dish mats of them, some convert them into miniature overalls for dolls and some save them for patches.

The mother down the street, the one with the big family, uses the old blue jean legs to make marble bags for her boys. She sews up the bottoms, makes a wide hem at the top and runs stout string through the hem. Her boys like their sturdy marble bags.

The next door neighbor was working on an unusual Easter novelties when we stopped by. She had taken egg shells, dyed them in pastel colors and filled them with loose dirt. In each shell she planted either a tiny coleus or begonia.

She used paper drinking cups to hold her eggshell pots. She painted the cups, turned them upside down and cut away enough of each cup so that the eggshell rested firmly on its base. Around the edge of each cup she wrote the name of the person who will get the novelty.

The neighbor around the corner was late for an important committee meeting the other afternoon because she lost so much time looking for the belt for the dress she planned to wear.

Misplaced belts won't be the cause of her tardiness again though. The head of her house has screwed a row of cup hooks across the inside of her closet door, and all her belts now hang from the hooks.

Our good cook neighbor recommends this new cake filling:

Combine 1-2 cup pineapple juice, 1-2 cup water, 3 tablespoons cornstarch and 3-4 cup sugar in saucepan and cook over low heat until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Add 2-3 cup crushed pineapple and 2 tablespoons lemon juice to 1 large mashed banana. Add to cornstarch mixture and cook 2 or 3 minutes longer. Cool and spread between layers of plain cake.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The House passed legislation last week that will permit the introduction of wiretap evidence in the Federal courts in cases involving treason, espionage, and sedition. In order to understand the need for such legislation, it is important to understand its history.

In 1928, in the case of Olmstead against the United States, the Supreme Court of the United States, by a margin of 5 to 4 held that the introduction of wiretap evidence did not violate the defendant's rights against unlawful search and seizure under the fourth amendment, nor his rights against self-incrimination under the fifth amendment. In other words, there was nothing in the Constitution that would bar the admission of evidence obtained by wiretapping.

Six years later, in 1934, Congress passed the Federal Communications Act. Section 605 of this Act provides that "No person" . . . shall intercept any communication and divulge . . . such intercepted communication to any person." In 1937, in the case of Nardone against the United States, the Supreme Court construed section 605 to mean that wiretap conversation are not admissible as evidence in any case in the Federal courts. We see then that the admission of wiretap evidence is barred by the 1934 statute.

In 1952, the effect of this statute was spotlighted in the celebrated Judith Coplon case. Judith Coplon had been convicted of espionage while she worked in the Justice Department, but her conviction was reversed on appeal when it was held that wiretap evidence was not admissible in the Federal courts. The release of Judith Coplon made it apparent that legislation was badly needed that would permit the introduction of wiretap evidence in cases involving espionage and treason.

Against this background a number of bills were introduced in an effort to remedy the situation. Last week the Administration-backed Keating bill reached the floor of the House. The primary purpose of the bill was to admit intercepted information as evidence in the criminal prosecution of spies and traitors. There was very little opposition to this portion of Congressman Keating's bill. There was strong opposition, however, to a section of the bill giving the Attorney General of the United States unrestricted power to authorize wiretaps by the FBI and military intelligence agents in criminal cases.

Many members of both parties felt very strongly that [illegible] job of espionage should not be [illegible] the Federal courts. [illegible] the House [illegible] power [illegible] were adopted, [illegible] the Attorney General [illegible] of the Administration [illegible] should not be involved in the Federal courts.

[illegible] the House [illegible] the Keating [illegible] ate adopts the House bill, it will undoubtedly be necessary for the courts to decide whether Congress can legislate retroactively, making court evidence valid in the Coplon case which was installed at the time of the crime.

In any event, the House bill in its final form gives to the Justice Department a means whereby it may more effectively protect our nation against spies and traitors. At the same time, it provides that the federal courts shall act as a safeguard against the abuses of power that could result from the passage of less restricted legislation.

Coosa River Development

There is a good possibility that legislation will be introduced this week in both the House and Senate that, if enacted, will make it possible for the Alabama Power Company to go forward with their plans to build five additional dams on the Coosa River. The U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Alabama Power Company have already agreed upon the provisions to be included in such legislation and an official spokesman for the Corps of Engineers has stated that he believes these provisions "adequately protect the Federal interest."

A MATTER OF OPINION

By Denny McClung

"BUT I thought they were as good as engaged," Gus Wheeler was saying. "Leastways, that's what I been hearin' for the past month or so."

Scowling, Eoin Feeney packed his stubby pipe. "Not by a long shot, they ain't. Not so long as I got any say in my own home."

"Well, what're you holdin' again' the boy?" Gus asked. "Far as I know, he's one of the finest boys in the country. A real comer, they say."

"I don't gainsay your word," Eoin said. He applied a match to the pipe and puffed furiously until it was burning to his satisfaction. "But that ain't the thing of it."

"That ain't it? Feeney, it 'peers to me you're a mite hard to understand."

"Mebbe so—mebbe so. But I don't see as how my Norrie's got any business marryin' up with a lawyer. No sir, if farmin's good enough for me and my Pa before me, what does she want to go marryin' up with a lawyer feller. It ain't right, I say."

"Why not?" Gus asked. "Seems to me how that's up to Norrie and Davy."

"I ain't got nothin' again' Davy personally," Eoin said. "But for the life o' me, I can't take to what he's gone and done. Why, his Pa was one of the best farmers in this section; and if farmin' was good enough for old man Walsh, why weren't it good enough for Davy? But look at him, goin' and gettin' himself educated so's he can be a lawyer."

"You're just gettin' old and set in your ways," Gus said. "Ain't nothin' wrong with what the boy did. Maybe everybody don't like farmin' the way you do. I say the boy's got a right to be what he wants."

Gus Wheeler mournfully shook his head as Eoin picked up his box of groceries and left the store.

Three weeks later, Eoin Feeney was in the store once again, puffing his stubby pipe at a jaunty angle, a satisfied smile on his seamed and craggy face.

"Howdy, Eoin," Gus said. "Heard tell you been havin' a little land trouble. You and Cam Slaughter. 'Course it ain't hard for anybody to have trouble with him, seems like that's one man just about nobody can get along with."

"Danged if you ain't right, Gus. That Cam Slaughter's crooked as a bent nail. You know what that feller did? Well, it seems like he was over at the county seat snoopin' around the court house and he run across somethin' in the land books—somethin' that gave him the notion he could twist around a few legal corners and grab part of my land that joins him. The northern acreage, it was; my best pasture field. But I guess we showed him; yes sir, I guess we sure did."

"What'd you do about it?" Gus asked.

"Well sir, it kind o' had me stumped. And that's when Norrie started workin' on me. Finally got so I couldn't stand to listen to another word from her. So she packed me in to see Davy.

"Well, Davy listens to what I got to say and then runs over to the county seat for a look at the land books. A few days later, he goes into the magistrate's court and proves that Slaughter was just tryin' to take advantage of a legal technicality; proves that Slaughter ain't got no right at all to that pasture land."

"Well," Gus said, "looks kind of like you got your comeuppance this time, after all that big talk again' Davy learn' to be a lawyer."

"Yes sir," Eoin said, "much as I hate to admit it, I guess I did. That Davy's a right clever boy. After what he done for me, I guess I ain't got no rightful complaint again' him and Norrie gettin' married. I guess mebbe I'm goin' to be right proud to have that boy in the family."

a peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

THERE is no question about it—there are just some shows that should never attempt to do on the night side what they find to be a successful format in the daytime . . . A few years back, Don McNeill transferred his highly successful "Breakfast Club" on radio to a once-a-week night schedule on television with rather horrible results . . . The show, in fact, was such a colossal flop that it took two years for the network moguls to decide on a possible simulcast of the "Breakfast Club" intact . . . Result: simply terrific . . . Why? Perhaps because the cast are at home on the morning show—they're natural and unassuming, whereas on the night experiment they were trying too hard to impress . . .

Big name celebrities were brought in as guest stars in an effort to match other night time variety shows . . . Don was stilted and ill at ease and be transmitted that feeling not only to the cast but to the audience . . . And—let's face it—corn can be digested in the morning but it leaves one flat in the evening . . . Realizing that, the cast strived to be what they were not—sophisticated . . . Now as their own selves they are wonderful on TV and we predict an even rosier future for the show than it had on radio, if that is possible.

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPITOL: More of those wonderful 33⅓ long-playing discs, comprising a full album . . . There is a delightful one starring Marguerite Piazza and Gordon MacRae doing the entire score from that Victor Herbert favorite—"Naughty Marietta" . . . Billy May does a fine job on a brilliant selection of operetta favorites including "One Kiss," "Serenade" from "Student Prince," "Rose Marie," "Huggie Wuggie," "Vilia," "Softly, As In a Morning Sunrise," "Italian Street Song" and "The Desert Song."

ARCTIC TEST . . . Navy Lt. R. E. Darby of Beckley, W. Va., looks frosty in cold weather garb during arctic survival tests in Alaska.

COUNTY FHA MEETING

On March 31, 26 homemakers were awarded their Junior Homemaker Degree. This impressive ceremony took place in Chilton County High School library, which was decorated beautifully with white dogwood and red camelias, which are the FHA colors This color scheme was further carried out by the red and white emblem and a small key pin given to each new member. After repeating the purposes and the creed, we sang the FHA song. After this 18 girls and our leader, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Porch, went to Jemison to the county wide FHA meeting, where we were met by the county president. There were four schools represented—Isabella, Maplesville, Jemison, and Chilton County High. After the meeting was called to order, we discussed where the selection of Miss FHA would take place and who would be the judges. We also discussed having more than one county wide meeting a year and decided on having two. After the business we had a delightful program, which was given to us by Isabella which consisted of the F. H. A. song and creed and then group singing. We then went into the dining room where we were served delightful refreshments

The Man With A Plan To Build Alabama

Pd. pol. adv. by C. C. (Jack) Owen, Centreville, Ala.

TRUMAN THRASH

Wants You And Your Friends To Help Him Be Your Next Sheriff!

A long-time resident of Chilton county.

Son of W. O. Thrash of Clanton and grand son of Rev. E. B. Tucker of Enterprise community.

Veteran of four years in World War II with overseas service in China, Burma, and India.

TRUMAN THRASH

Worked with International Harvester Company before the war.

Presently employed as a construction man with Ingalls Iron Works.

I have done hard work all my life, and if elected, will work hard at the job as your Sheriff of Chilton county.

The Sheriff's job is a big job and you need a big man for that job.

They say big men are usually good natured. I try to be. At least I know that I like people and like to work with them. In my experience as a hard working man and as a soldier, I have always worked with people.

If elected your next Sheriff, I will try to enforce the law in Chilton County with fairness and equality for all the people. I will not be partial to any group and I will not use my office to persecute any person or group.

If elected your next Sheriff, I will concern myself only with enforcing the law in Chilton county, and will run my office to the best of my ability.

I will try to arrest all those who violate the law, and I believe the sheriff can do much to prevent crime. I want every person arrested to respect the sheriff as the servant of the people of Chilton county. I only want to see justice done; will use only the amount of force necessary to properly make an arrest. I will not make a personal issue with any man who does wrong, but will try to conduct myself so that the person being arrested, and all other people, will respect the sheriff as the servant of the people of Chilton county.

Young people are a special problem to your sheriff. I believe each case of young people doing wrong needs individual attention. I would be more proud of preventing one kid from taking the wrong road than anything I could do as your sheriff.

If elected your sheriff, I promise you that all the whiskey and alcoholic drinks confiscated by the sheriff's force will be publicly destroyed.

Chilton county is a good place to live and work. If we can get some new industry here, there will be more jobs for everybody here at home. I have had to work in Birmingham for the past three years. All of you who have to drive back and forth every day like I do know that it is a handicap for the working people not to be able to find more suitable jobs in this county. We need new industry more than anything else at this time. I believe that the sheriff can do a lot to help this situation. If elected your next sheriff, I hope I can be known more for looking after a peaceful, respectable, wholesome community, with a low crime rate. That is the kind of thing that will make new industry and new people want to come to our county.

I believe in the people of Chilton county, and I hope you will let me serve you as your next sheriff. I need your help now to put this program into effect.

THE INFLAMED APPENDIX

Appendicitis is still a common disease in that it occurs frequently. However, appendicitis is no longer the common cause of death that it once was.

The appendix is the small finger-like ending of the small intestine, and it varies in length from one to six inches. It is found in the lower right side of the abdomen. Because of its location near the bladder and the rectum, inflamation or infection of the appendix may produce symptoms which are related to these organs.

The symptoms of appendicitis in children and adults are about the same except that the disease progresses more rapidly in children than in adults. Pain in the abdomen is the first sign and is found in nearly all the patients. Usually the pain is located first in the mid portion of the upper abdomen, changing within a few hours to the right lower section. The rupture or bursting of the appendix usually comes during the time the pain is shifting. When this happens, the infection spreads rapidly through the abdominal cavity and causes an inflamation of its lining which is called the peritoneum. Thus peritonitis develops.

Vomiting is not found in all cases, but it usually occurs after the appendix bursts. However, because nausea and vomiting are apt to develop and because these symptoms often go with "upset stomachs," the sick person is apt to attempt to relieve himself with the aid of laxatives. This can prove dangerous. The old saying "never give cathartics for abdominal pain" is wise advice to follow. Remember that appendicitis still occurs frequently and that there is always the danger of perforation. Don't take home remedies to ease the pain.

SUNLIGHT CAN CAUSE OFF FLAVOR IN MILK

Auburn, Ala.—With warm, sunny weather coming on it's more important than ever to protect milk from sunlight.

A very noticeable off flavor may develop in milk exposed to sunlight for only 15 minutes, warns Oscar D. Crosby, APJ Extension assistant dairyman. Longer exposure periods result in even more intense flavor defects.

"At the same time flavor is deteriorating," he explains, "certain vitamins are also being destroyed. Usually, 30 minutes in the sun is enough to destroy all the vitamin C in milk and 20 per cent of its vitamin B content.

"To prevent this problem," concludes Crosby, "dairymen should use light-proof insulated boxes or amber-colored milk bottles."

TRAFFIC TOLL UP THIS YEAR

MONTGOMERY—Alabama's offi[illegible]-scored traffic toll stood this w[illegible] (April 9) at 187, four higher than the toll durin gthe comparable period of 1953.

State Public Safety Director L. [illegible] Sullivan sai da drop in hte weekly death toll was continuing. Both three and five-week trends were down sharply from their peak levels during March.

He credited the "Make Courtesy Your Code of the Road" campaign, sponsored during March by the automotive Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee and the civic groups' National Committee for Traffic Safety, an dthe Alabama Safety Council, with a sizeable portion of this drop.

"It was a good campaign, well-executed, and very timely in Alabama, Sullivan said. "Our motor manners were getting sloppy, and highway murder was the inevitable result."

AS YOUR CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR
REPRESENTING
AUTAUGA, CHILTON AND SHELBY COUNTIES
THIS IS WHERE I STAND

I AM FOR a state legislative program which gives fair and just treatment to all segments of our people—labor, agriculture, and business. Progress in our state cannot be promoted by favoring certain groups at the expense of other groups. If elected, I intend to work with all groups.

I AM FOR an educational program which will enable our children to compete with young people from any other state.

I AM FOR operating our state's activities in a business-like manner, thereby preventing additional tax burdens on our people.

I AM FOR encouraging the establishment of new industries in our state and particularly in the district in which I am a candidate, thereby making new jobs for our people and more markets for the produce of our farms.

IF YOU ELECT ME as State Senator, 15th Senatorial District, I shall do all in my power to represent ALL the district. I am not opposed to any governor whom the people of Alabama choose to elect. As your Senator, I intend to work with the governor you elect to the best interest of District 15.

YOUR INTEREST, YOUR INFLUENCE AND YOUR VOTE IS RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED

DAVE L. YARBROUGH
(Pd. pol. adv. by Dave L. Yarbrough, Prattville, Alabama.)

Re-elect
JOHN SPARKMAN
U. S. SENATOR

EXPERIENCED STATESMAN

LOYAL DEMOCRAT

There is positive photostatic proof that present opposition to Senator Sparkman stems from the same Republican-Dixiecrat leaders who would have led Alabama into the Republican ranks in 1952. They are more anxious than ever now to defeat Sparkman, 1952 Democratic nominee for vice-president of the United States, in order to destroy National Democratic Party prestige and thereby help defeat Democratic candidates throughout the Nation

THIS IS THE "CHANGE"—How Do You Like It?

A campaign slogan of the recent presidential campaign was "We want a Change." Now we have the change—a Republican administration.

1. Prosperity has changed to a gathering storm of depression.
2. Volume of retail sales is declining and industrial plants are closing down for lack of orders.
3. Full employment has changed to thousands out of jobs.
4. Farm prosperity has changed to falling farm prices while the cost of living has gone up.
5. REA, TVA and all low-cost power are more seriously attacked than ever before.
6. Low interest rates have changed to high interest rates. Home loans and small business loans cost much more, when one can be found. On a $10,000 house, this costs the home buyer $800 extra. Higher interest rates cost the consuming public billions of dollars extra on consumer time payments on all kinds of merchandise.
7. Promised tax reductions are now opposed by the Republican administration, the budget is unbalanced and the public debt is growing.
8. Hill-Burton hospital funds have been reduced.
9. REA, and rural telephones and soil conservation funds have been reduced.
10. World communism is more rampant and insolent than ever.
11. World peace still is a dream for the future as peace conferences fail.
12. Race hatred and prejudice is fanned into higher and higher flames.

Remember these things when you vote May 4. Your vote for re-election of John Sparkman will be a vote against the National Republican Party and against Republican-Dixiecrat reactionaries who are engineering this "change."

Would you trade a Penny for a Dollar?

● You can if you use Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda for your top-dressing and side-dressing needs. It costs a little more because it's worth more. But the difference in cost usually can be measured in pennies per acre, while the difference in value often amounts to dollars per acre.

Chilean "Bulldog" Soda gives you generous extra value. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate. It's 100 per cent available (quick-acting); 100 per cent dependable. The minor elements make crops stronger, healthier. The sodium—26 pounds in every 100-pound sack—is a key to maximum returns on your entire fertilizer investment. It offsets the bad effects of acid-forming fertilizers...increases the efficiency of mixed fertilizers containing them. It releases "locked-up" potash in the soil...increases the availability and efficiency of soil phosphate...reduces potash, calcium and magnesium losses by leaching...develops larger, deeper root systems.

Sodium builds up the productivity of your land—more each year. It's an essential element for some crops...beneficial to most and necessary for maximum yields of many.

Pennies-per-acre difference in cost may mean dollars-per-acre difference in value to you. Chilean "Bulldog" Soda is the best fertilizer your money can buy. Use it for all of your top-dressing and side-dressing needs.

Vote For Lawrence F. Gerald, Jr. For County Solicitor

To the Citizens of Chilton County, Alabama:

I wish I could see everyone of you and personally ask you to vote for me in the May 4 Primary for the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County. This being impossible, I thought it would be a good idea to write this letter to you and ask you to vote for me.

I was born and have lived all my life in Chilton County, and attended its public schools. I was graduated from the Law School of the University of Alabama in 1940, and since then have been engaged in the general practice of law in Chilton County.

I assure you that if elected to the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County, I will, at all times, diligently look after and protect the interests of the taxpayers and citizens of the County.

Yours very truly,
LAWRENCE F. GERALD, Jr.

With Men Who Know State Government Best

(Your State Legislators)

it's JIM ALLEN 3 to 1 for Governor

Few have the opportunity to know and judge the qualifications of a candidate for Governor like those who have worked closely with him. In a secret poll, members of the 1953 Alabama Legislature named Jim Allen as the "man we would like to see elected Governor" by a vote of more than 3 to 1 over their next choice.

Here Is How Legislators Voted:

for JIM ALLEN	47
for Jim Folsom	15
for Jimmy Faulkner	9
for Bruce Henderson	5

Other votes were divided among 15 nominees —none of whom is a candidate for Governor.

Thinking voters everywhere in Alabama are swinging to Jim Allen in growing numbers because he is the best qualified candidate on his record of service to all the people.

Jim Allen has forged to the front in the Governor's race and is gaining day by day because the people want a forceful leader—not a showman—to chart the straight course for Alabama's forward march these next four years.

LIBRARY: When we were in college, science had been gaining in importance and many people were departing from an indigestion. They thought that to believe science one would have to overthrow religion. Our science teacher was a sincere Christian. Our philosophy teacher was a sincere Christian and they were too well-grounded in belief in God and in the subjects they taught to see any cause for throwing religion or science out of the window. So science was never a stumbling block to their students.

Often during the year I read from a life of Jesus by Mary Austin. It is very beautiful and stimulating, in spite of the fact that she did not have as wise teaching as we did and gently but firmly refuses all miracles. I have just read parts of it and I would like to quote— "Jesus came teaching, more than any other man that the mystical is the practical. All those high states which had been the exclusive privilege of ... and phophets Jesus made part of the common use and possession. Mind, Spirit, whatever it is which flows between God and man and between man and his brother, he constituted the daily instrument, accessible alike to learned and unlearned. God is as free as air, and heaven as close at hand in a fishing boat as in Jerusalem ... He made no more of the stupendous issues of spiritual regeneration than of the springing of wheat in the field."

—Mrs. Harding.

Huddleston Answers False Rumors

To The Voters:

I hear that at Tallassee, in Elmore County, and other places a rumor is current that if elected Solicitor, I will retire and have another appointed. This is false on its face.

First, I can't retire with pay. I could become a supernumerary, and serve any county where sent at a salary of $4,000.00. I now receive $7,000.00. Would I desire such a change? Second, I have no assurance that the next Governor would take any recommendation from me, much less such a fraud on the people as this would be.

It is not in my nature to make such vicious attacks on the personal integrity of my opponent, and I hope my friends will confine themselves to proper issues such as set out below:

I do not believe the issue in this race is to confer a favor on me or any candidate; but that it is whether or not I can well serve your interest and that of your county, based on the following propositions:

(1) The criminal docket often has 100 or more cases. If all or many of these were tried, it would take weeks, and ruin the County Treasury. But if defendants at fault make reasonable compromises rather than chance a jury with a highly capable Solicitor, your County will be saved thousands of dollars each year. Am I such a capable Solicitor?

(2) Does my experience and ability enable me to assist the Judge in protecting the record from errors, thus preventing reversals and great extra expense on you?

(3) Should there occur a serious crime against your family or community, could you trust me to prosecute, or would you pay out of your pocket for a special prosecutor?

(4) Sufficient experience is desirable for each of the Solicitors, Circuit and County, but lack of it for both could be disastrous.

(5) Certain types of mind, though ever so brilliant and adapted to some callings, can never make a good lawyer, though having a diploma; because they cannot grasp abstract principles of law. Am I such a lawyer?

(6) Every Supreme, Appellate and Circuit Court Judge in the State can become a supernumerary after 15 years service, and any Solicitor after 25 years. The Solicitor law had two opposing votes in the House and none in the Senate. Such Supernumerary Solicitor must serve in any County where sent. Should I, at 54 years of age, and lately pronounced in perfect health, thus impose the burden of two salaries on the people, and deprive them the chance of my further services?

I understand also that at times the Chilton County trials have been mentioned in connection with this campaign. The Attorney General took over these cases in the beginning. His office drew the indictments, and managed all matters from beginning to end. The Code provides that the Attorney General has this right and in such event, the Solicitor is only his assistant. In every instance I did whatever I was told to do. In the trial, I was assigned to cross examination and argument to the jury. Whether I did this ably and fearlessly ask any juryman, the opposing counsel, or the State examiners, who praised me profusely, saying "You are the best Solicitor in Alabama." Every defendant was convicted.

Two cases were reversed by the Supreme Court, but I had no part or responsibility in that. The law provides the Attorney General "must" handle all such cases in the Supreme Court. No Solicitor in Alabama ever has any part in such appeals.

Speaking of false rumors and statements, since writing the above, my attention is just called to my opponent's newspaper article in which he signs himself as "capable," and says that I can retire on a $4,000.00 pension and that 25 years is long enough.

Of all people, a lawyer, and especially one running for office and discussing the matter publicly, should know that the Constitution and Supreme Court rulings prohibit any officer from retiring on pension. And incredible as it may seem the very law which he cites sets out in detail that such Solicitor can only become a "Supernumerary," and must be subject to call by the Governor, the Supreme Court and the Attorney General to go anywhere in the State to handle any criminal cases and also any other matters in which the State is interested. This work would doubtless be much more arduous than being Solicitor.

This gross carelessness in so vital a matter lends no weight to the assertion that he is "capable" and that 25 years is long enough. Certainly I feel that if I made such mistakes in the every day important matters of the Solicitor's Office, half my cases would be reversed, and the new trials would be an intolerable expense on the people.

I ask my friends to brand as false any further such rumors, and others are likely to arise if the opposition feels their cause is losing.

Respectfully,
WINSTON HUDDLESTON.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

In the early days of Alabama statehood there were a few medical doctors practicing their profession in the state. But, unfortunately there were many "quacks" among them

Many of Alabama's early doctors had no professional training at all and there were no strict laws then as there are today regulating the practice of medicine.

Of the doctors practicing in early Alabama, there were some who had no more training than what they had received in listening to a few lectures by a real doctor. It can be said that they truly "practiced" on many people.

While doctors, like preachers, were in many instances not trained men they were sincere and did their best to perform some service for the people in early Alabama.

t A Stop To Cannibalism Within Your Poultry Flocks

AUBURN, Ala. — Cannabalism pickouts, feather picking, and egg eating are serious problems on many poultry farm.

According to API Extension Poultryman John Weeks, these vices usually start from overcrowding, poorly designed nests, insufficient feed hopper space, or poor distribution of light in the pen. To put a halt to these habits, correct the cause and debeak the birds.

"Debeaking is a simple operation that removes a part or all of the chicken's upper beak without disturbing the lower beak," explains Weeks. "With the hot chisel of an electrical debeaker, cut the beak off half way between the tip and the nostril and carefully cauterize the wound to stop excessive bleeding.

"Remember, enough of the beak must be cut off to keep it from growing out again. If just the tip is removed, the beak will grow out in a short time and the vice may start all over again.

"Don't let bleeding become a problem. Be sure wounds are completely cauterized with the red hot chisel before releasing the birds. Check the whole flock carefully when debeaking is completed. Catch any bleeders and cauterize their beaks again.

"Chickens will start to eat immediately after being released, and egg production drops no more than it would from handling the birds for other reasons," concludes Weeks "After debeaking, feed grain in hoppers instead of on the ground. And remove the oyster shell hopper for one day to prevent hens from pecking the hard material and starting to bleed."

Careful walking, careful bike-riding, careful driving, careful auto and roadway maintenance would eliminate every accident."

The textile industrialist urged parents and teachers to "impress upon your youngsters the importance of being alert in traffic—crossing at cross-walks and with traffic signals, and never playing in the street."

He warned motorists to always expect the unexpected where children are present. "Drive slowly. Children move fast. Be especially alert in areas of schools, playgrounds and residential districts."

It was argued in Alabama when the 1819 depression was on that the way to restore good times was to get more sound money into circulation. Because private banks had not serve dthis purpose, it was further argued, the state should enter the banking business.

EIGHT-WEEK WEANING STILL THE BEST WAY

Market hog growers are asking about weaning baby pigs early, reports G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

"Some experiment stations have weaned pigs at two to three weeks," says the farm leader. "But that system is for experts and is not practical under farm conditions. Some advocate weaning at five weeks. This can be done but requires unusually good feeding methods and disease control measures. Weaning at eight weeks is still the best for most farms. After all there's no substitute for the brood sow and her time is not all that valuable. Help the sow along during the weaning period by giving her a balanced ration and by creep feeding her litter."

A State Bank was organized at Cahaba in July, 1824. After being in existence approximately 16 years, with many of its transactions questionable, it went out of business after the election of Benjamin Fitzpatrick as Governor in 1841.

BANK FACTS FOR YOU

Why there are service charges on some checking accounts

Depositors who maintain balances large enough to produce bank earnings that offset the cost of the checking service they use pay no service charge. Other depositors who prefer to carry smaller balances pay moderate monthly service charges to cover the expenses involved in servicing their accounts.

Either way, a checking account offers priceless bill-paying convenience at economical cost. Come in: open your account at our bank — and make full use of it.

TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

R. Odell Payton

In offering myself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County I would appreciate any and all consideration shown us.

I have lived in Chilton County all of my life and have worked for several business firms in Clanton.

I am a member of Providence Baptist Church.

I do not believe in showing any favoritism to any particular community, party or person.

I have been a J. P. and notary for the past 4 years for best 16, Chilton County.

I have not made any promises to anyone. I will say this, if I am fortunate enough to be elected Sheriff of Chilton County, I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the Sheriff's force.

Should I be your next Sheriff and public servant, there are two things I would like for the people of Chilton County to know, what I would say and expect of the men who would work with me.

1. First, I would like to know if they could take the job at the wage it paid, and make a living.

2. Second. Do they think they can take the oath of this office and live by it as a public servant for the people of Chilton County as a whole regardless of party, community or person.

If elected, I will do my very best to make you, the people of Chilton County, one of the best public servants for this office you have ever had.

I will try to see you during this campaign, should I fail to see any one it will certainly not be done so intentionally.

And to them that don't know me personally ask about me in the community in which I live.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

Sincerely yours,

R. ODELL PAYTON

CLEAN AND SPRAY RUGS FOR MOTHS AND BEETLE

Protect wool rugs and carpets against moths and carpet beetles during spring and summer.

Frequent vacuuming keeps down accumulations of dust, lint, and hair that offer extra food for these pests, says API Extension Home Furnishings Specialist Alice Peavy. Vacuuming will also remove the insects themselves and their eggs.

Spray rugs and carpets every 12 to 18 months, adds Miss Peavy. Most satisfactory is a spray of five per cent DDT oil solution or two per cent chlordane. - Approximately two quarts of spray will be needed for a 9 by 12 foot rug of average weight.

LAURIE BATTLE'S Home Newspaper Recommends Him for U. S. Senator and scores Sparkman's turnabout Stand on Civil Rights

LAURIE C. BATTLE

LAURIE BATTLE has received the strong endorsement of many Alabama newspapers that know his fine record in Congress and are disgusted with Sparkman's turnabout stand on the vital Civil Rights issue. Latest in the list is the:

BIRMINGHAM POST-HERALD

It Had This to Say:

"In his unsuccessful bid for the vice presidency Senator Sparkman tried to be all things to all people. As Laurie Battle puts it, he attempted to carry water on both shoulders. . . . In Alabama he tried to tell us he was the same 'Old John.'

Sparkman Helped Write Civil Rights Plank

"But it was John Sparkman who helped to write the civil rights plank in the Democratic platform and time and again in public appearances during the campaign he stated that he stood four-square on it. Now he comes back to Alabama seeking to retain his seat in the Senate and tells us he has always vigorously opposed the civil rights program and has never deviated from that position. But the record speaks for itself and no matter what Mr. Sparkman says now he cannot change one letter of it.

Sparkman Has Lost Touch With the People

"During his long years in Washington Senator Sparkman has lost touch with the people of his own State. By his own acts and of his own free choice he has destroyed his usefulness as a representative of the people of Alabama. It is time to bring him home and to put in his place a man who not only is in sympathy with and capable of representing Alabama but who will be sincere and forthright about it. Laurie Battle is such a man. His experience in the House as Congressmen from the Ninth District qualifies him for the promotion he asks. His record recommends him highly."

Contributions to help Battle win are needed and will be appreciated.

Mrs. Haywood's Fifth Grade Visits Laundry

OUR TRIP TO THE LAUNDRY

Mrs. Haywood's Fifth grade room had an invitation to the laundry by Mrs. Thomas Lawson.

We left at 12:15 and came back at 35 minutes till 2:00

Our patrolmen, Tommey Shelton and Bobby Little, led us across the safe walks of Clanton Elementary School. We also crossed the railroad and saw many beautiful flowers on the way.

When we got there, Mrs. Lawson took us through the laundry and out in a small building. There was a big boiler where hot water goes into the laundry and into the washers.

There were little holes in the washers. When they dry clean, they have other washers that go around real fast. This slings out the water.

We went to a big presser and saw how they press blue jeans, pants, and shirts. There was a presser for suits also.

There was another big presser, that when they had finished washing sheets, pillow cases, and other things, they would run them through in. On one side, there were two girls that were putting sheets and other things on a roller. On the other side, there were two more girls folding the things when it came out of the press.

There was a woman that put numbers on things; she showed us the way they could tell them apart. You could not see the numbers until she put it under a blue light.

Mrs. Lawson told us how they could tell packages from each other.

She took us to the place where they dry clean. A woman showed us how to dry clean coats.

They served refreshments to us. Then we went back to school.

By Barbara Kay Turner.

A TRIP TO THE LAUNDRY

Mrs Haywood's Good American Club went to The Clanton Laundry on Thursday, April 2, 1954. Mrs. Thomas Lawson gave us the invitation. Bobby Little and Tommy Shelton were the patrols.

I will tell about the laundry first we went to a small house where the machines are that run the laundry. The water is run by gas, the air compressor, and the hot water heater.

First the clothes are stamped. After they are stamped they are put into two huge tanks that are washed. When they are taken out, the clothes are put into tanks that sling the water out of them. Then they are then ironed. The shirts are the most interesting of all. They are put on ironers of two kinds.

The steam ironing is interesting too. The coats are put on to stands. The steam is turned on. A woman takes a broom and smooths down the coat until it is clean. When the clothes are cleaned, they are put into their right bundles. There are bundles for each family. The we can also has storage for summer and winter clothes.

We enjoyed our trip, and thank Mrs Lawson for allowing us to come to show us around.

OUR TRIP TO THE LAUNDRY

On Thursday April 2, 1954, Mrs. Haywood's Good American Club went to the Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Co. We walked to the laundry after lunch at 20 minutes after twelve. We saw many beautiful flowers in the yards.

We went to the laundry on an invitation from Mrs. Thomas Lawson. When we got there, Mrs. Lawson took us to the back. We saw a boiler that was heated by gas. It was 1,000 degrees in the boiler. There was other cars, boxes and tanks of different things.

We went back into the front of the laundry. First, we saw a machine that sorts the clothes and puts the numbers on them. We saw where the clothes are washed and ironed. The clothes go over and over in a tank until clean. We saw a machine that was air compressure. There was a blackgord which the workers used to write the number of hours they worked. There was machines that dryed and ironed the same clothes on the same machine at the same time. We saw where jeans, pants, and overalls are washed, and folded. We say where the coats, hats, and purses are put that belong to the workers. Then she showed us where they put the clothes before taken to the owners.

After we saw the laundry, we bought drinks, cookies, peanuts, and got a free sucker. Mrs. Lawson gave us booklets to give to our mothers.

Our president, Bobby Little thanked Mrs. Lawson for showing us through. Tommy Shelton and Bobby Little were patrols.

We enjoyed the trip very much.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR of CHILTON COUNTY

George D. Smith

In announcing my candidacy for the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County, I stated that I was asking for, and would greatly appreciate the help of anyone. Since that time, I have driven my car several hundred miles over this county in an attempt to personally make that announcement to each of you and to those who are helping me, I am truly grateful.

I would greatly appreciate the opportunity to prove to the people of this county that I can be just as honest, just as efficient, and just as friendly as any Tax Collector we have ever had.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated by me.

GEORGE D. SMITH

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

Children have more faith — in their parents, in the goodness of human beings, in most everything. At least, they start out that way.

Is there anything more wonderful than the faith and trust of an infant, often needing only the soft touch of a mother's hand to bring contentment? And what is it but faith and trust that brings an injured child running to mother or dad for comfort?

Sure, it's faith. But, how do you make it last? I need to know because my two-year-old is already losing faith in me. Once I had him wrapped around my thumb, very nicely. But, young as he is, I can tell he knows that I don't know all the things I should.

He used to come running to me with every little thing. Not now. He's gotten mighty independent. And, you know where I slipped up? In College — studied Journalism rather than Engineering.

Sounds far fetched, but it's true. Had I studied Engineering, it would be no problem at all to readjust the mechanism of one of those "Little Boy Blue Jet Bombers" when it ran down. I might even understand the workings of these junior-size tanks that have as many gears as a $50 watch. But they leave me high and dry.

My young son's two favorite words once were, "Daddy, fix." After several vain efforts on my part, he's dropped the word "fix" from his vocabulary. His mother, apparently enjoying my helplessness, has taught him a new phrase: "Tom broke, Daddy buy more."

But faith, I have always heard, becomes the poor as well as the children.

IT MUST BE SPRING

By Grace Schillinger

GRAMPS and Davey Grant sat side by side on the lawn seat beneath Gran's kitchen window. They were whittling some perches for bird houses.

"Gramps, how do you know it's Spring?" eleven-year-old Davey asked.

"Well, some folks know it's spring when the grass turns green. Or when the bluebirds fly back from down south. Why do you want to know?" Gramps asked.

"But, how does stuff know when to start in growing?"

"Reckon it's lessons they learned in Old Mother Nature's school. At a certain time all the birds and flowers and animals have a feeling inside 'em; they know they've got a summer's job."

Davey smiled. "Now, take wrens, for instance," Gramps went on. "We'll soon behearin' 'em out there in the lilacs. They'll be looking for their favorite house. If we don't have 'em cleaned they'll have extra work. We better get busy, Davey. Seems like every mother thing on earth likes to get her house-cleanin' done early or else . . ."

"Or else she's madder'n an old wet hen!" Gran's voice came from directly above their heads. "You're right, Gramps! No time better'n right now to get started on that basement!"

"We haven't got a basement!" Gramps hollered.

"That's just it. You're going to dig it out. I want a big basement for my canned fruit. I want . . ."

"Listen, Gran, we've lived here for fifty years and the little fruit cave has done us fine . . . besides . . ." Gramps resumed whittling. "Besides, what about that front porch?" He grinned slyly.

"Well, I want that front porch torn off too this spring. Make the house look real modern-like without that old sore thumb sticking out and keeping all the sun from my geraniums. When can you start tearing the porch off, Gramps?"

"Well, I thought maybe we'd let the front porch go for a spell. Heard you was thinkin' about making your flower garden bigger . . . them new roses."

"Wait, Grampa!" Gran scuttled away from the window. "I'm coming out with a pencil." Gramps heard her hurrying out the back door. "Where'll we put the roses, behind the pansy bed?"

"Not the best place. If you'd plant some right next to that white picket fence you want around the yard . . . wouldn't that be a right smart place?" Gramps lifted his gnarled hands to point to their property's edge.

"Good idea! Along our white fence would be fine. Shall I write that down?" Gramps saw her begin to draw a picket fence on the paper.

"While you're at it, Gran, just make another line or two like this . . ." Gramps took the pencil, made a few deft lines and a rustic bird house took form on her paper. "This wren's house is going to be the best Davey and me ever made. Going to make lots of 'em."

"Yes, the wrens will soon be here. They'll need lots of houses . . . remember all the babies hatched last summer? Oh, I can hardly wait till the wrens come." She turned toward the house. "I'll go bake some spice cookies. You'll be hungry when you're through with your building."

After she'd gone Gramps said softly, "Let's go out to the workshop, Davey."

"But, Gramps . . ." Davey began, "has Gran forgotten all about her remodeling, the basement and all?"

"Reckon so. Like I said, every mother thing on earth wants to get started on things, come spring."

"After you tellin' me all that stuff, Gramps, guess it must be Spring!" Davey lifted a small brown birdhouse down from the shelf.

"Yep, it must be Spring." And in Gramps' voice was no worry about how he knew. He was once more accepting the miracle that he was permitted to enjoy it.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From H. V. Clark, Hot Springs, Montana: I remember over fifty years ago at Plew, Missouri, when folks in our neighborhood, including ourselves didn't bother to gather eggs except for family use.

The stores would pay two and one-half cents per dozen and that would have to be taken in trade. The kids over the countryside would take eggs to the store and accept candy in trade.

Most of the people didn't let many hens set in the chicken house, as enough hid their nests outside to keep the increase needed for the size flock they wanted to keep.

From George Tucker, Tallulah, Louisiana: I remember years ago as a little boy in Faunsdale, Alabama, there were no iron-bean plows. All were wood except the point which was hand-made of steel. My twin brother would "drive" and I would hold the plow.

From Mrs. Sybil Pendery, Cincinnati, Ohio: I remember my childhood on a Mississippi farm when mother took two ears of corn and made two lovely dolls for twin sister and me. She left the bright colored corn silk on the cob for the hair. We were so delighted we ran down to the road and waited for the mailman to drive up in his horse and buggy so we could show the dolls to him. I also remember our large family sitting around an open fireplace, harmonizing in song.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Now everybody knows that Ralph Morrison is a sharp trader. But that daughter of his, who is all of three years old, can lay him in the shade. The other night Ralph had to come back to the store for something and while in town was going to get some gasoline. Barbara Lynn kept after "Daddy" to get her some ice cream but upon each request Ralph would tell her that he was going to buy exactly one dollar and fifty cents worth of gasoline. "No you not" says Barbara Lynn, "you going to buy Barbara Lynn ice cream and the rest in gasoline." So she got an ice cream cone and, Ralph got one dollar and forty-five cents worth of gasoline.

Got to get Buck Roberts out of the Tax Collector's race and back in the tax assessors race. Last week in his ad we put him down as a candidate for tax collector—it should have been tax assessor. We're sorry. Candidates for tax collector are Jack Hayes, Red Fulmer and George Smith, as if you didn't know.

Chief of Police Charles Tucker reports that things in Clanton are really quiet this week. According to his report there were two arrests for speeding and two arrests for public drunkeness—that is all.

And speaking of traffic violations the Mayor C. Fenn Jones, wants the motorists to dim their lights while driving through our city. It is not only against the law to fail to dim your lights but it is very rude and discourteous. The Mayor urges all motorists, both local and foreign, please remember to be careful about dimming their lights upon entering the city.

Got a cute letter this week from another of these people who are afraid to sign their name to what they write. However, they did have a point. What they wanted to know was why some old people want to get like "brats" instead of acting their age. The only way we can answer that is to say that whoever wrote the letter must be envious of someone. As for ourself nothing would make us happier than to be able to "act like a brat" once in awhile instead of acting like an old "stick-in-the-mud."

On March 21 Dr. Joe Moore delivered twins to Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Lee Clark of Verbena, Alabama. Dr. Joe also delivered triplets a few months ago to Mr. and Mrs. William Baker of Clanton. All deliveries made by Mr. Stork were made are of Central Alabama Hospital, Clanton, Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sansom visited us the other day. Mr. George will be 79 years old this July. He always has a big party and home coming on his birthday and we suppose this year will be no exception.

Auburn Jones' new creosote plant up the highway behind Ike's Place was written up last week as a concrete plant. Auburn dips posts in creosote not concrete. You'll probably have to look Little Ed Edwards up to get any concrete information.

Gresham Smith Writes Voters

GRESHAM SMITH

Once again the voters of Chilton County are face to face with the responsibility of electing a Representative in the next Legislature. The office of Representative is an important one, an office which affects the economy of every man, woman and child of our County. Through this office all our laws are made, schools, roads and our economy in general provide for. It is therefore most important that the voters consider well the public and private records of the candidates for this office, what they stand for and the ability of each to fairly represent all persons and sections of our county. What we need in this County is a Representative imbued with the idea of building Chilton County for Chilton Countians. The man you elect cannot hope to accomplish much if he is for half the voters and opposed to the other half. If you honor me on May 4th I promise to represent all the people in such a way as will promote unity, harmony and good will among our people.

I would like to see greater economy in our government. I mean by this that I would like to see more services and results from the hard earned tax dollars we are spending. Without an increase in taxes I believe the people are entitled to more benefits. If elected, I hope to help bring some of these services and benefits to the people.

I would like to see our old people better provided for through old age pensions. I will support legislation which tends to make secure our old people when they are unable to care for themselves.

As one interested in education I propose to aid and work for any legislation which means progress to our schools. Something has to be done to relieve the crowded conditions of our schools, lack of school facilities, low teacher salaries and poor pay to bus drivers.

In asking for your vote and will greatly appreciate your help in my efforts to serve as your next Representative in the legislature.

GRESHAM SMITH.

RED CROSS DRIVE SHORT OF QUOTA

The annual drive of the Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross is about to bog down short of its quota if some public spirited citizens dont come forward with contributions.

The quota this year was reduced to $4220 which is much less than last year's quota, it having been $5000.

The fund drive last year netted $4,472.00, but to this date only $3,897.64 has been collected this year.

The record in the office of the Red Cross Chapter shows the following communities unreported to date. Cooper, Mt. Pleasant, Maple Springs, Poplar Springs, Lay Dam West End, Bell Lane and Walnut Creek.

Judge M. D. Tingle, Chairman of the drive, stated this week that it would be appreciated if all communities that have not made their report to do so by May 1st in order that the local Chapter may be able to make the necessary reports to Sutheastern Area office.

He added that with the assistance of these communities the local quota may be reached, and requested that all communities please assist in closing out the fund raising campaign as quickly as possible.

TIME LIMIT ON APPLICATIONS IS EXPLAINED

Mr. John W. Godbold, acting director U. S. Civil Service Region, announces that in the future the postmark on the envelope, rather than the date the letter is received, will determine whether or not applications for examinations with closing dates have been submitted in time. Applications postmarked not later than the closing date will be considered to have been filed in time.

The commission's practice heretofore required the applications to be received not later than the closing date announced for an examination.

Mr. Godbold stated that the commission will allow a reasonable period for time in transit where letters received after the closing date have illegible postmarks.

Judge Paul Rules In Favor Of Jack Hayes

In the suit brought by Quinton Cummings against M. C. (Jack) Hayes to mandamus ... tor to place the name ... ttl on the list of paid poll taxees Tuesday, Judge Eris Paul Bilba, ruled in favor of the tax collector.

Much interest has been shown in this case throughout, but accordi... to testimony manifested ... was shown ... justly a ... favor of Cummings.

The suit was entered when Cummings found that his name was not on the list of qualified voters published two weeks ago in Chilton County News. On checking with the tax collector and records in the Probate Office it was learned that Cummings poll tax had not been paid for the years 1952 or 1953. This disqualified him as a candidate in the May 4th Democratic Primary.

Hayes was represented by T. B. Hill of Montgomery and Cummings was represented by Holly Milner & Holly of Wetumpka, Ala.

WHAT is out military "New Look?" What is meant by "instant retaliation?"

According to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, it is a "basic decision . . . to depend primarily upon a great capacity to retaliate, instantly, by means and at places of our own choosing." Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, once referred to the New Look as preparation "for the long pull; not a year-of-crisis." Both these explanations, made some months ago, have been considerably retouched in a series of explanations.

Secretary Dulles later said this: "Initially this reshaping of the military program was misconstrued in various respects." He emphasized then that the U. S. does not intend to rely wholly on large-scale strategic bombing; insisted that the program is by no means a move away from collective security; explained that while some troop withdrawals are appropriate following the end of the Korean fighting, the striking force of these remaining is still great; and there is no intention of pulling U. S. troops out of Europe.

Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland has been quoted this version of the New Look: "Instant retaliation means that if and when the United States national interest requires active resistance to further Communist aggression, reprisal would be appropriate to the area and the objective."

In more general terms, President Eisenhower told a news conference that the New Look is only an attempt by intelligent people to keep abreast of the times.

Representative of doubts in the minds of foreign leaders was the warning by Canadian Secretary for External Affairs Lester B. Pearson that means for working together must be found "in any new defense policy . . . if the great coalition which we have formed for peace is not to be replaced by an entrenched continentalism."

Mr. Pearson made his remarks in Washington, as a prelude to discussions of the Joint Economic Board of the U. S.—Canadian Commission on Trade and Economics. He wished to emphasize, he declared "the uneasiness that enters into the minds of some Canadians who realize that they are quite unable to escape the consequences of what you (the Americans) do—or don't do."

The dock strike in New York could be considered a big showdown. Most observers concluded that the problem was primarily induced by a small corrupt group of racketeers seeking to retain their lush pickings. The showdown and its importance lies in one great indication: the days of mob rule on the waterfront are definitely numbered.

They have already appeared in the High School and the Concord grade school. Rev. Wilkerson has announced plans for an interdenominational childrens service Friday evening at the Temple. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF CLANTON SETS NEW RECORDS

Easter Sunday morning the First Baptist Church of Clanton, of which Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson is the pastor, set an all-time record in Sunday school attendance. The previous record attendance was 726, and a goal of 750 had been set for Sunday school on Easter Sunday; but even this new goal was not high enough, as the attendance proved to be 813. During Easter week the church also met the goal in the Million More in '54 campaign for Sunday school enrollment. In this program Southern Baptists are striving to enroll a million new Sunday school members during the year 1954. A quota has been given to all Sunday schools which is to be reached the last Sunday of September.

Since the first of October, 1953, the First Baptist Church here has enrolled 223 new members. This is more than 25 new members in the excess of its quota. The church attributes the wonderful progress in its Sunday school to the grading program and the faithful work that is being done in the Sunday school organization. There are nineteen departments in the Sunday school. Five of these are adult departments and these are graded on a 10-year basis.

The record-breaking program has not been confined to the Sunday school, as the Training Union on its high attendance Sunday, April 11th, set an all-time high in Training Union attendance. On this date there were 210 in Training Union and the church feels that in the near future even a higher record than this will be reached.

Mr. A. H. Meacham is the Training Union Director, and Mr. Russell A. Williams is the Sunday School Superintendent.

Easter Sunday morning two Worship Services were held in the church and the auditorium was filled for both of these services.

The First Baptist Church is rejoicing in the wonderful blessings which God has been showering upon it.

To the Citizens of Chilton County, Alabama:

I wish I could see everyone of you and personally ask you to vote for me in the May 4 Primary for the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County. This being impossible, I thought it would be a good idea to write this letter to you and ask you to vote for me.

I was born and have lived all my life in Chilton County, and attended its public schools. I was graduated from the Law School of the University of Alabama in 1940, and since then have been engaged in the general practice of law in Chilton County.

I assure you that if elected to the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County, I will, at all times, diligently look after and protect the interests of the taxpayers and citizens of the County.

Yours very truly,
LAWRENCE F. GERALD, Jr.

TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

R. Odell Payton

In offering myself as a candidate the office of Sheriff of Chilton County I would appreciate any and all consideration shown us.

I have lived in Chilton County all of my life and have worked for several business firms in Clanton.

I am a member of Providence Baptist Church.

I do not believe in showing any favoritism to any particular community, party or person.

I have been a J. P. and notary for the past 4 years for beat 16, Chilton County.

I have not made any promises to anyone. I will say this, if I am fortunate enough to be elected Sheriff of Chilton County, I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the Sheriff's force.

Should I be your next Sheriff and public servant, there are two things I would like for the people of Chilton County to know, what I would say and expect of the men who would work with me.

1. First, I would like to know if they could take the job at the wage it paid, and make a living.

2. Second. Do they think they can take the oath of this office and live by it as a public servant for the people of Chilton County as a whole regardless of party, community or person.

If elected, I will do my very best to make you, the people of Chilton County, one of the best public servants for this office you have ever had.

I will try to see you during this campaign, should I fail to see any one it will certainly not be done so intentionally.

And to them that don't know me personally ask about me in the community in which I live.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

Sincerely yours,
R. ODELL PAYTON

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Little boys never cease to be amazing.

It never occurred to any of us around our house that the five-year old was at all clothes conscious. He seemed perfectly happy playing in his patched blue jeans every day, and it sometimes was difficult to persuade him to change into more presentable corduroys for Sunday or special occasions.

It came as something of a shock when he came in from play the other morning and said:

"I need some new pants. Some pretty ones."

So off we went to town to look for some new pants, some pretty ones. He was completely satisfied with the first pair the clerk could get to meet around his middle, and he came happily home with his purchase.

I got out the scissors to cut the tags off the pants so he could wear them, but he protested.

"Oh, no! Don't cut off the tags; I want everybody to know I have brand new pants!"

Nearly every household in the neighborhood has been busy with Spring cleaning, and lots of the neighbors have been doing some painting around their houses.

The neighbor around the corner was getting ready to paint the woodwork in her bedroom when we stopped by to see her. She had her paint and brushes ready, and we were a little surprised when she said she would start work as soon as she found a pair of her husband's old wool socks. We were even more puzzled when she put the socks on her feet right over her shoes!

"Looks silly," she admitted, "but it's a good idea. When I drop paint on the floor, as I always do, I just wipe it up with the socks. A Charleston step is excellent for this purpose. Saves stooping."

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, has painted the inside of her linen closet a deep blue. This new color scheme, she says, will keep her linens from turning yellow.

She used to keep her seldom-used linens wrapped in blue paper to preserve their whiteness, but painting her linen closet blue is much simpler and more satisfactory.

We learned another trick by peeping into this neighbor's linen closet. We noticed that a good many of her sheets had colored thread sewed along the hem. At first we figured this was her system of making sheets for the beds they fit, but is wasn't.

"When I patch a sheet," she said, "I put colored thread in the hem. If the sheet is badly patched, I use two or three colors to mark it. Then when I need good sheets in a hurry, like when company comes to spend the night, I can see quickly which sheets to avoid."

One more painting hint; the next door neighbor says that a large onion cut in two and left in a freshly painted room overnight will absorb all paint odors.

To give a year-round favorite a special April tang, top grilled hamburgers with sliced green onions which have been gently pan-fried and seasoned to taste.

Book Review—
YOURS TILL DEATH

Civil War letters of John W. Cotton edited by Lucille Griffith, Assistant Professor of History at Alabama College.

John W. Cotton, owner of a small farm in Coosa County, Alabama, served throughout the War between the States as a private in the Confederate Army. His letters to his wife, which were carefully preserved by his family, record his army experiences, his feelings about the war, his advice to his wife on running the farm, his attitude toward his officers, and his reports on living conditions, battles, commodity prices and troop morale.

John W. Cotton represents the middle class farmers who fought the battles but rarely wrote memoirs. A man of little formal schooling, he describes army life and the campaigns of his unit from the point of view of an intelligent, perceptive, patriotic, home-loving citizen-soldier.

This book was given to the A. A. U. W. library this week and is recommended for adults and students.

Handy and Easy "Sign Up"

[illegible] safety drive was a big success—almost. Every one signed. The schools ran movies on safe driving. Rotary put up posters, and Handy and Easy [illegible] went out on their own.

The boys put up a big sign by the side of the highway. It said, "Slow down — the life you save may be your own." It was a good idea—after the police moved the sign back twelve feet.

In their enthusiasm Handy and Easy put it too close to the road—in fact, right on the sharpest curve on the highway. They made driving unsafe by cutting off the view around the curve.

From where I sit, lots of people—even though they mean well—suffer from short-sightedness now and again. For instance, some can never see any further than their own preferences. They even go so far as to object to my choice of a glass of beer with supper. Shouldn't we always take the "long view"... and respect our neighbors' rights?

JAMES E. FOLSOM

Cullman County, not to be outdone by home towns of other candidates, has just released plans for a mass homecoming rally and state wide broadcast for their home town candidate for governor, James E. Folsom. At the same time the Cullman Times backed the former governor's candidacy.

Chairman Ben Holmes of the Cullman County Committee for James E. Folsom announced today that [illegible] nated as homecoming day for "Big Jim."

Said Holmes, we want to let every one know that Cullman county is [illegible] behind Jim Folsom. [illegible] matter, made up of [illegible] every [illegible] every walk of life in Cullman county, has spent a great deal of time in raising funds and making the plans for the Folsom homecoming on May 1st.

Feature of the homecoming will be a talk by James E. Folsom, [illegible] Cullman county court house steps at 2:00 p.m. This talk will be broadcast on Monday, May 3rd. Funds for the Broadcast were raised by the Cullman committee for Folsom and donated in entirety by residents of Cullman county.

The homecoming announcement over the Cullman Radio station was made the same day as an article appeared in the Cullman Times, putting this Cullman weekly on the favor of Folsom's candidacy.

Folsom will go by motorcade to Birmingham where he will talk to the people of Jefferson county on the court house steps at 8:00 a.

LABOR SAVING LABELS

Many efficiency methods and arrangements developed in industry [illegible] stores [illegible] an example how carefully stores label and inventory their wares.

Time spent on labels and lists of articles stored [illegible] this spring may be saved many days later in the year. Mrs. Sarah Cox, Vocational Homemaking teacher at Verbena High School suggests. For example, she advises taking time to label each bag or box of winter clothing in order of contents as clothes are put away, and then keep a list of what is stored where. At any time when you want to get out one item—a sweater or a wool skirt for a summer vacation trip perhaps —you won't have to hunt and tumble out all the stored clothes Next fall you can bring out clothes systematically as you need them.

The easiest and often most efficient way to store winter clothes, blankets or other seasonal items is on the installment plan. First to put away safe against moth damage are the midwinter items—furs, heavy coats and blankets and snowsuits. Later, as the weather is warmer and the need for lighter wools is over, these can be packed away. By storing little by little you can sandwich these jobs into the regular house work routine.

Or, you may prefer to store as you spring-clean, taking one room at a time, and packing winter clothes from closets and bureau drawers as you clean and spray. Either way, it pays to label and list as you go, however good your memory is.

HERE'S A TIP FOR WASH DAYS

Correct soaking loosens stubborn dirt and prepare heavily soiled clothes for successful laundering.

API Extension Home Management Specialist Stella Mitchell suggests these effective soaking methods for soiled items familiar in family washes. Cover greasy overalls and cotton work shirts with hot sudsy water containing one-half cup of household ammonia. Soak 15 to 20 minutes in the tub of the washer, then spin or wring out, and wash.

Over-soiled cotton slipcovers, curtains, or play clothes should be soaked 10 to 20 minutes in warm water containing a detergent or non-precipitating water - softener (use one-half to one tablespoon for each gallon of water. After soaking, wring out water and wash as usual.

ALABAMA INDUSTRY DAYS TO BE OBSERVED

The week of April 26 through May 1 has been designated as Alabama Industry Days by Governor Gordon Persons in a recent proclamation.

This will be the fifth annual state-wide celebration honoring industry.

In a salute to the occasion L. M. Smith, state chairman of the Days this year, and president of the Alabama Power Company said:

"The people of Alabama have gone all out in the past in their observance of Alabama Industry Days and there is a reason to believe this year will be no exception."

For the past five years the University of Alabama, the Alabama Press Association and the Associated Industries have jointly sponsored the program working with leaders in many communities.

Community leaders join with the Chamber of Commerce, the civic organizations, P.T.A. organizations, school groups and 4-H clubs to help make the Days a success.

Alabama's stake in industry is readily seen when it is realized that production means payrolls of over $480 million and that the value added by manufacture is up from $876 million in 1947 to over $1 billion now.

"The people of this state are entitled to know better the industrial concerns and their products which have made possible the full utilization of the best resources of this state," Governor Gordon Persons states in his proclamation setting aside the last week in April as Alabama Industry Days. "What Alabama Makes, Makes Alabama" is again the slogan.

IMPROVE SCHOOLS TO NATIONAL LEVEL—FOLSOM

"Education will be one of the prime interests of my next administration," ex-governor Folsom states, regarding his education program.

"I shall work toward increasing teachers salaries in Alabama in order to at least bring them up to the national average. We are losing too many of our fine young men and women teachers who are going to other states for such employment, because the salaries of those states are higher than they can receive in Alabama.

"I desire to stop this migration of our teachers by providing a salary system that is commensurate and within keeping of their training and position.

"I shall work to strengthen the present teachers retirement system.

"One of the pledges made during my 1946 race was to increase the average teacher's salary to $1800, from the then $1398 low level. By 1950 this pledge was not only fulfilled, but it was increased to an average salary of just over $2000.

"Education received sixty cents out of every tax dollar collected during my administration.

"Far-reaching progress was made in school building construction during these same four years. Your tax dollar built 386 new buildings—228 for the white folks and 158 for Negroes, and in addition to this, 305 existing schools had additional rooms added to them. These provided thousands of school children with comfortable accommodations in which to better grasp their educational training.

"During my four years in Montgomery, the school system of this State began operatiog universally on a nine-month schedule.

"In order to increase the skilled labor reserve, so vitally needed in any expanding industry, a bill was passed during my administration to build five additional trade schools. These were located in Weenona, near Birmingham; at Napier Field, near Dothan; in Tuscaloosa, Mobile and Decatur.

"If, during my next administration, there is any crisis brought about to our educational system through decisions of our Supreme Court, I shall meet such a crisis in keeping with the traditions and customs of the people of Alabama.

"I personally am in favor of the present system of separate educational institutions for white and colored!"

A SUMMARY OF THE MARKETING PICTURE

Here's how the 1954 marketing situation is shaping up, according to A. W. Jones, AFI Extension marketing specialist:

A slight rise in average prices farmers received but a little greater increase in farm costs pushed the parity ratio down from 92 in January to 90 in mid-March, four per cent under March, 1953.

Sharp changes have occurred in individual commodities. In mid-March hog prices showed a 10 per cent rise over their December figure. There have also been advances in prices paid for cotton, calves, beef cattle, chickens, sweetpotatoes, and soybeans. Prices have declined for cottonseed, eggs, and wholesale milk. Most other major products have held fairly steady.

PUT MORE ALFALFA ON ALABAMA FARMS

Auburn, Ala.—More alfalfa should be appearing on Alabama farms, believes D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist.

"An excellent supplementary summer pasture and hay crop, alfalfa can be successfully grown on most well drained soils in the state," he explains. "And it's an economical crop. Usually the first cutting, and always the first and second cuttings, will pay the complete costs of establishment.

"Three to five tons of high quality hay can be expected annually from each acre of alfalfa. And with good management practices the stand can be kept from three to five years.

"Now's a good time to select land for planting alfalfa this fall. Plant the crop of fertile, well drained soil not infested with bermuda grass, Johnson grass, or nut grass."

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Funds for next year's operation of one of the larger departments of our government were approved by the House last week. A total of slightly over $1 billion was authorized for the Department of Agriculture for fiscal 1955. The House-approved bill carries $719.7 million in direct cash and $320.5 million in loan authorizations for agricultural or rural purposes. The measure has been sent to the Senate for further debate and vote.

Sixth District residents, particularly those in Chilton County, will be interested to know that the bill includes a total of $239,000 for continuance of the federal-state program for control of the phony peach disease. The Budget Bureau had recommended only $39,000 for this program, but the Appropriations Committee raised the amount to $139,000 before reporting the bill to the House.

If the many letters I have received on the subject are any indication, quite a number of people in the District are interested in the appropriation for the school lunch program. The House bill designates a total of over $83 million for this service. The Appropriations Committee had asked for an increase of $9 million over the amount provided in the budget, and members of the House approved an additional $6 million increase. This adds up to a total increase of $15 imillion over the amount originally included in the budget for the school lunch program.

Other major funds included in the Agriculture Appropriations bill are: agricultural research, $92 million; extension service, $48 million; commodity stabilization service, $9 million; fores service $74 million; soil conservation service, $71 million.

The bill also authorizes the Department of Agriculture to lend farmers over the nation up to $320.5 million to develop rural electrification and rural telephone services.

Highway Funds Increase

Both the House and the Senate approved and sent to the White House last week a compromise bil authorizing $966 million in federal-aid highway funds to be appropriated in each of the fiscal years 1956 and 1957. This legislation authorizes about $400 million a year more than is authorized under present law, and Alabama will, of course be eligible to share in this increase.

The compromise bill authorizes $875 million a year in federal contributions for highway projects in which state and local governments share in financing. Of this amount, $315 million will go to primary roads; and $175 million is earmarked for an interstate system of highways.

Of the remaining $91 million authorized in the compromise bill, $81 million is for federally built roads and $10 million for non-federal roads.

The bill in its final form contains for the first time in any federal highway legislation a clause making collusion and conspiracy to defraud a federal criminal offense. This should be a restraining force on any malpractices that may have heretofore existed in highway construction.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

ON AN ordinary Saturday afternoon one of my good neighbors set out to fix himself a bologna and cheese sandwich. Nothing unusual about that, since he is fond of both bologna and cheese. A bit out of the ordinary, tho, were the things which prevented him from getting his sandwich.

The principal reason was that he couldn't get the refrigerator door open to get the ingredients he needed. The handle was wedged tight. Another reason was that he lost his appetite. He remembered that he was supposed to be babysitting and he hadn't seen Junior in 30 minutes.

He made a frienzied dash through every room, but Junior was not in sight. He put two and two together and came up with a terrifying thought. Junior was in the refrigerator! That's why it wouldn't open. He'd read about kids getting into things and pulling the doors shut.

He pulled. The handle wouldn't budge. He tried a broom handle for leverage. It broke, after bending the door handle considerably without opening the door. He remembered the crowbar in the basement. He flew down the steps, grabbed the tool, then dashed back to the kitchen.

There, with the refrigerator door wide open, making themselves a bologna sandwich were mother and Junior. What had happened: Junior wedged three pennies under the door handle, that's why it wouldn't open and why he hid in the closet. Mother, since she had experienced the same thing before, took a hair pin and got out the pennies. And, they used the last two pieces of bologna in making their sandwiches.

U. S. sheep numbers are now less than 75 per cent the average of the last 10 years.

A two-year rotation of a crimson clover-ryegrass mixture, grain sorghum, and oats builds soil and also produces lots of feed.

Plan to grow at least one bushel of corn for each pullet going into the laying house this fall.

1 OUT OF EVERY 6 IN U. S. TODAY IS LOOKING FOR A PLACE TO LIVE

Princeton, N. J.—Just about 1 out of every 6 families in the nation would like to find another place to live.

This was the finding when United States Poll staff reporters recently put the following question to an accurate cross-section of the nation's voters:

"Are you looking right now for some other place to live?"

The results:

Yes 16 per cent
No 84 per cent

Exactly one year ago, the answers on the same question were as follows: Yes, 19 per cent; No. 81 per cent.

In other words, today, 3 per cent fewer people across the nation than a year ago was looking for some other place to live.

Whether you are looking for a place to live depends to a great extent on whether you own or rent your home, or whether you live in a big city or rural area, and on whether you are a young adult or an older one.

For example, 31 out of every 100 home renters across the nation say they are looking for some other place to live; whereas only 4 in every 100 home owners say this.

Here's the way the nation's home owners and home renters answered:

Home Owners—Home Renters
Yes 4 per cent; 31 per cent.
No 96 per cent; 69 per cent.

Survey findings also show that the bigger the community you live in, the more likely you are to be looking for another place to live.

For example, 27 out of every 100 residents of the nation's cities with populations of 100,000 or more—places like Akron, Ohio; Baltimore, Maryland; Boston, Mass.; New York, N. Y.; Jersey City, New Jersey; Chicago, Ill.; Cincinnati O.; Kansas City, Missouri; St. Louis, Missouri; Seattle, Washington; and New Orleans, La., interviewed in the survey said they were looking for other places to live.

And nearly as high a proportion of those living in cities and towns with populations between 25,000 and 100,000 said the same thing.

And in communities between 2,500 and 25,000, the proportion is somewhat less—about 1 in every 6.

In rural areas, fewer than 1 in 10 say they are looking for another dwelling place.

The housing situation across the nation by size of community:

Nationwide—	Yes	No
Cities 100,00 & over	27%	73%
25,00-99,999	22%	78%
2,500-24,999	15%	85%
Rural areas	8%	92%

Younger families evidence more dissatisfaction with their present housing than do older ones:

The vote by age groups:

21-29—30-44—45 years
[illegible] per cent; 18 per cent; 10 per cent.

No 76 per cent; 82 per cent; 90 per cent.

Interestingly, satisfaction with their present living quarters is just about the same among manual workers and white-collar workers throughout the nation.

The Chilton County News presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area.

SOUTHERN UNION CONGRESS MEETS AT CHATTANOOGA

Today, youth is on the march for Christ. It is estimated there were more than six thousand, including parents and leaders at the Southern Union Youth Congress in Chattanooga on April 15, 16, and 17th. The auditorium has never been the scene of a more inspirational meeting. Nothing is more marvelous than to meet young people who find their deepest joy in sharing their faith.

To find more effective ways of telling young people that life is richer and fuller for the individual who accepts and follows Christ, was the object of the Congress. The Juniors as well as the Senior young people had an important part in the meeting.

Delegates and others from the Clanton Adventist church attending were, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Walker, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Willis and Pat, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crowson, Sinderia and Randall, Mrs. J. F. Conerly, Jerry, Mrs. J. J. Pickens, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Crowson and their guest Miss Bobbie Jean Bryant of Verbena, Mr. and Mrs. Rosie Johnson of Montgomery.

Things we -SEE- and Hear by "Tuck"

Good deed of the week: One of our good friends up at Joe Smith's was driving by the house the other day and stopped, like the good neighbor he is, to give a fella a hand with a flat tire or somethin' or other. He taxied his old Ford right up in front of this fellow so he could make a clear take-off and helped the guy all he could and then he took off, literally. Showered the poor fella good with sand and gravel. What kinda good deed was that? ? ?

Some wise guy asked Woody Deason the other day if one of those lawn mowers he's selling would even cut his hair, much less grass. Woody told the funny fellow that if he'd cut his hair with it he'd buy it for him. I think what he actually meant, though, was his throat, how about that Woody?

I predict: By Drew Peers On, That an election will be held May 4. A run-off will be held approximately June 1, and there will probably be some new officers in Chilton County. Check me if I'm wrong.

Did you go to Church Easter Sunday? If you didn't you missed a very good chance to begin going regularly.

Never have heard so much talk about a governor's race. They're even trying to run "Big Jim" Folsom for President. Heard that at the barber shop so don't put too much on it. Besides, we think they aughta let him try for governor right at the present. Getting a little ahead of themselves anyway, pore old Ike still has time left to do something. He has improved though, he seems to be getting a little tired of golf. No foolin,' disregarding the rest of the crowd, Mr. Eisenhower has proved himself a better man for the job and a better American than many thought he'd be.

Folks are always saying how early they have to go to work. Work in a printing office and you can see who comes to work from midnight on.

Call it a believe it or not, or call it proof of what God has given us, Brother Vickers at the first Methodist Church Easter Sunday held dedication services for infants and had present two sets of four generations. Children, parents, grandparents and great grand-parents. All this twice. We agree Brother Vickers, it is something that doesn't happen every day and is something to be proud of. The families were the Ropers and the McSwains.

office is still second to none . . .

Quite a crowd in and around the old courthouse last Saturday.

Folks in the country (and a few dudes too) enjoying strawberries and cream for breakfast.

Brother Vickers tore up his lawn mower and claimed it was unintentional. You know the old saying, "the mowing looks better when someone else is doing it."

THE LEGEND OF THE DOGWOOD TREE

Once with regal height it stood
The tallest of the tall;
This giant of the forest was
The strongest of them all.

Then came the day they cut it down
And formed a cross of wood
To bear our Lord unto His death
On Calvary it stood.

And since that time the tree grows small,
A dwarf amongst the rest;
Each Easter blossoms forth to tell
The story of the Blest

Each blossom is a tiny cross
Of white for purity;
Each petal shows a nail pierced scar
Which held him to the tree.

The center is the crown of thorns
Which crowned our Saviour King.
Thus, the beauty of the Dogwood tells
Its story every spring.

American Legion To Honor Local High School Boy

Clanton Post No 6, American Legion has made arrangements to sponsor some boy now in the Junior Class to attend Boys State at the University of Alabaam, Tuscaloosa from May 29th through June 4th. No one knows the name of the boy who will represent Clanton High School but he will be a school next year. He must be outstanding in character, leadership ability and possess traits of good citizenship. Commander Fullen has asked J. Reed Thompson, Teacher, Francis Speaks, Vet teacher and attorney and S. E. Waters, Principal to cooperate with him in making the selection of a candidate to be sponsored by the local Legion Chapter.

The purpose of Boys State is to educate our youth in the duties and privileges of American citizenship. It is a program of training in the practical aspects of government. It is functional in that applications of the principles of democratic government are made in every possible way. The Constitution of the State of Alabama and the statutes are the patterns from which the fundamental law of Boys State is developed.

Citizens of Boys State will not only review their knowledge of the political machinery of a republic but will find themselves doing exactly the same chores as are done by real office-holders in the every-day world. They choose their own officials in accordance with regular electoral procedure. They learn the duties of the various city, county and state officials. They introduce and argue their own bills in their Boys State Legislature.

The outstanding citizens of Alabama's Boys State will be selected to attend Boys Nation, sponsored by the National organization of The American Legion, to be held in Washington, D. C. later in the summer. Here they will participate in a program as it is projected on a national scale with all expenses paid by the American Legion.

The administrative officers, instructional counselors and, supervisors of recreation, who are in charge of the program, are well trained and experienced leaders of boys. They are men of nigh ideals, who are recognized as being responsible person in their respective communities. These educators and leading citizens give free time to insure that Boys State are given proper counsel and instruciton.

Commander Fullen said to be selected to attend Boys State is one of the highest honors conferred on and leading citizens fully endorse a high school student. Educators this citizenship training program sponsored by The American Legion.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

YOUR FEET

When your feet ache, you ache all over. Usually painful feet can be avoided by giving proper attention to their care. Proper attention is wearing the right size shoes and hoisery, carefully cleaning the feet, and wearing the right type of shoe for the various activities we call on our feet to perform.

One problem that can be prevented is the corn, which is a horny thickening of the skin caused by friction or pressure. They are commonly found on the skin covering the small joints of the toes. Pressure and friction which cause corns, can be avoided by wearing shoes of the proper size and shape. Calluses are similar to corns in that they too are caused by pressure and friction, but a larger area of the skin is affected. Calluses occur most frequently on the sole of the foot or over the heel area. Again properly fitting shoes and hosiery will help prevent further calluses. Bunions, seen most commonly in women, develop from wearing shoes that are too short and too pointed.

Foot strain is another condition causing tired, aching feet. It is a frequent complaint of persons who must stand on their feet for long periods of time and who are not wearing the proper footgear. It can be overcome with comfortable and well fitting shoes. Very often special arch snpports or pads may be required. These should not be selected at random by an individual, for they may produce even further strain.

Older people, especially those with hardening of the arteries and diabetes, must be particularly careful of their feet. Their feet should be kept very clean and free from pressure spots to prevent irritation and inflammation. Especial care should be paid to trimming the toenails to avoid any cut or scratch which could easily become infected, a real hazard to persons with poor circulation and diabetes.

Be kind to your feet. Care for them well so they can take you where you want to go in the years ahead.

TOMATOES SHOULD BE PRUNED AND STAKED

Auburn, Ala.—Pruning and staking are two steps toward perfect bright red tomatoes in home gardens.

These simple management jobs make plants easier to work and reduce chances of rotting because tomatoes are kept up off the ground, says API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby. He advises gardeners to start pruning and staking tomatoes when plants are 10 to 12 inches tall.

"In pruning," explains the garden expert, "select one or two healthy shoots between leaf and stem and leave these to make additional stems. Pick out the first shoot eight to 10 inches above the ground. A second shoot can be selected on the opposite side of the plant four to five inches above the first one. Keep all other shoots pinched out. One or two healthy shoots will give you a plant with two or three stems—and three are enough for desired yields.

"To stake tomatoes, place a five foot stake four inches from the plant in the center of the row. Using strips of cloth about one-half an inch wide, make the first tie 10 to 12 inches from the ground, the second tie eight to 10 inches above the first, and so on as it grows. Three or four tyings should do the job. Don't use small string to tie plants—it may cut them.

"Then when plants begin to bloom," concludes Bagby, "give each one a teaspoonful of nitrate of soda. Work the fertilizer into the soil six to five inches from the plant. To control blight and leaf spot, dust with six per cent copper dust or spray, with two pounds of zineb to 100 gallons of water. Six per cent rotnane will control worms."

Harvest crimson clover when three-fourths of the seed heads have turned brown and the seed can be easily from the seed head.

All lambs weighing 70 pounds or more should be sold in May.

ELECT

(Pd. Pol. Adv. by Abner Johnson, B'ham)

JIMMY FAULKNER AS GOVERNOR

Mr. and Mrs. Voter:

We are now rapidly approaching the day where each of you will have the exalted yet sacred privilege of casting your personal vote for the person you would like best to have represent you in various State and County offices for the next few years.

I hope all of you who read this article have seen me and learned to know me well enough that you already know whether or not you want to vote for me to represent you as your Sheriff for a term of office. If, however I have not been fortunate enough to see you and let you begin learning of me I hope I may make the necessary contact before May 4th which is only about 12 days ahead of us.

You, the voters of this county have been very courteous and kind to me in my campaign. You have also been very lenient in your demands, therefore I have not been forced to answer unexpected questions and make far-fetched promises and have also had a better chance to obtain the general public's opinion of what an enforcement officer and County official should be to succesfully represent "you" the people of this County.

I trust you appreciate the fact that my love for Chilton County and her good people are largely the reason I am living here with you all as I have for many years.

I feel that because you have made so few demands on me as a candidate with reference to promises and etc., that you do have a proper amount of confidence in me.

I told you in my last newspaper article that I had observed the City law enforcement of the various towns in our County and found them well organized and very cooperative with State and County law enforcement.

I find also that the State Highway Department has since the late years of the nineteen-twenties and thirties and early thirties kept a dependable force of their officers stationed in this county. Also that since the State has maintained an enforcement Division of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board they have also furnished this and all other Counties with enforcement officers who like the State Highway Patrolmen are both efficient and cooperative and are officers who enjoy their work therefore when I ask your voting confidence I "must," beyond question, be honest, honorable and trust worthy in all things and I must of necessity be able to choose wisely the enforcement officers of the County who would work with my administrative term of office, these qualifications, I feel sure I have.

Sure I realize being Sheriff of our County is important and requires ability, integrity and humbleness, plus efficiency, not only in the Sheriff himself, but by all his appointees.

You may not have stopped to think of the importance of them "each," including the jailer whose duty is to be host to all public citizens, court officials and enforcement officers who wish to visit the prisoners being held in jail, the jailer also is expected to be on hand at all hours of the night to admit any violators that have been apprehended.

You may not know but it is true the State of Alabama spends more than a thousand dollars per month for crime apprehension to enforcement officers in this county each month. Also all apprehensions of major or felony crime made by City enforcement and admitted to our County jail, therefore, you can easily see that with such support from City and State enforcement division our County jail is used by them about as much as by your Sheriff and his deputies.

Our towns of this County spend approximately $2000 per month for law enforcement and of course the County pays for three deputies and a jailer to assist the Sheriff at all times.

Therefore if you see fit to nominate and elect me as your Sheriff for a term of office I shall endeavor at all times to merit the confidence you have bestowed with service, efficiency and humbleness and shall make all Administrative Appointments to men who likewise will serve willingly, cooperatively and efficiently.

I sincerely thank each of you for your kind and considerate support and hope it shall be my privilege to have your vote and influence on May 4th.

Tom Carter, Joe Mullins and Pete Giles ordered kudzu seed and plan to establish it on cultivated land. Kudzo can be established by seed and a crop of corn with it the first year.

L. E. Foshee and Erskine Parrish received some Bicolor seed and they are planting it for quail feed.

R. C. Williams applied 150 lbs of ammonia nitrate per acre to his Rescue last week.

Fertilizer will pay big dividends if applied to Sericea, Kudzu, Bermuda and other sod crops.

Adventist Church

"The Truth as it is in Jesus," will be considered in next Sabbath's sermon

Nothing so aroused the wrath of the religionists back in Jesus' day as when he attacked the shallowness and the hypocrisy of the religious "traditions of men" which were observed with great pomp and show —while at the same time they were violating the "commandments of God." Jesus called such worshippers "hypocrites," saying, "this people honor me with their lips but their heart is far from me."

We are living those days over again. Modern Christendom is today just where the Jewish religion was when Je sus came the first time. Last Sunday "the fashion parade" was on display in all the worldly churches. People everywhere "went to church" who had scarcely looked into the church since last "Easter." Most of them to see "who had on what."

This celebration of the day which was originally dedicated to the ancient "heathen goddesses of sex" gave the preachers a much-needed opportunity to preach about "Sunday Sacredness." The people were told that beginning early in the morning and continuing all the day through, the resurrection day was a day of gladness and joy; that the followers of Jesus were happy and full of gladness and for this reason "we should keep the first day of the week." Very little was said about the place and importance of the resurrection of Jesus as the only hope of life beyond the grave. Since most of them, perhaps all, teach that people go to heaven the next minute after death, it would have been a contradiction to say too much about the importance of the resurrection at the Second Coming.

But the records of the gospel writers prove that instead of that day being a day of joy and gladness it was a day of gloom and sadness. Speaking of their state of mind on that Sunday Mark says: "They were affrighted," "They were afraid," "they mourned and wept." "They believed not." Then, that night, after the close of the day Mary says, Jesus "upbraided them for their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after He was risen." All this is in Mark 16th chapter. Luke says that during that day "they were much perplexed," "they were afraid," "ye walk and are sad" and Jesus said, "O, fools and slow of heart to believe." And [illegible] after the day had [illegible] and Jesus came in and showed Himself to them "as they sat at [illegible] and thought they had seen joyfulness and Sunday keeping." a spirit." Then after showing them His hands and feet, Luke says, "they yet believed not."

So instead of them being in a state of joy and gladness that day these inspired writers reveal they were "affrighted," "Amazed," "afraid," "perplexed," "sad,"; they "mourned," they "wept," they "believed not," they felt as though they were listening to "idle tales," they were terrified," they were slow of heart to believe." Such was the state of their mind until that first day of the week expired at sunset. In the face of these Bible facts, there is not much evidence "Easter joyfulness and Snnday keeping."

Alabama Farmers Need

LAURIE C. BATTLE

in the U. S. Senate to Represent Them on

AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE

Not since the death of the late, great Senator John H. Bankhead have Alabama farmers had a representative on the Agriculture Committee of the U. S. Senate. Laurie Battle's foremost aim will be to get on this Committee, where he can best serve the farmers of Alabama.

Laurie Battle has always been a staunch friend of the farmer. Battle's vigorous and wholehearted support in Congress of legislation to help farmers brought warm praise from the Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee when the Democrats were in power. He wrote:

"Hon. Laurie C. Battle, Member of Congress.
My dear Laurie:
I am writing to thank you for the splendid cooperation you have always given me as chairman of this great committee. You have always been very helpful, interested and cooperative and I shall always be grateful to you. I know of your great interest in the success of a well-rounded farm program, and I think all of our Democratic colleagues can take just pride in the program which has been built during Democratic administrations.
(Signed) Harold D. Cooley, Chairman,
U.S. House of Representatives Agriculture Committee."

Thousands of farmers have pledged Battle their support because in Congress he has a record of getting things done.

Proposed Bill Would Curb Excessive Local Legislation

Montgomery, Ala.—Proposed legislation to cut down on the number of local, special and private bills introduced in the Alabama Legislature has been drafted by the State Legislature Reference Service and presented to the Alabama Legislative Council for consideration.

The proposed bills and a report were prepared by the Legislative Reference Service at the request of the Council.

In its report, the LRS suggested (1) that a classification system be established for purposes of certain legislation relating to counties, and (2) that certain claims be handled not by private relief acts of the Legislature, but by the State Board of Adjustment and the county governing bodies.

The bill to curb excessive local legislation is in the form of a proposed amendment to the constitution and it deals with counties because it is for them that most of the local bills are introduced.

"The problem involved in establishing a classification system lies in creating a series of classes which are broad enough to provide a certain stability to the laws applicable to each county, and at the same time narrow enough to fit the laws and needs of each county," Legislative Reference Service Director Charles M. Cooper said.

For that reason, Cooper added, the proposed amendment would set up eight classes based on population as determined by each decennial federal census.

The classes and counties in each class are:

Class I, counties with 400,000 populations or more—Jefferson.

Class II, counties with population of 200,000 and less than 400,000—Mobile.

Class III, counties with populations of 100,000 and less than 200,000—Montgomery.

Class IV, counties with populations of 75,000 and less than 100,000—Tuscaloosa, Etowah and Calhoun.

Class V, counties with populations of 50,000 and less than 75,000 — Madison, Walker, Talladega, Dallas, Lauderdale and Morgan.

Class VI, counties with populations of 20,000 and less than 50,000—Cullman, Houston, Marshall, Lee, DeKalb, Baldwin, Covington, Russell, Colbert, Chambers, Jackson, Limestone and Tallapoosa.

Class VII, counties with populations of 20,000 and less than 35,000 — Elmore, Escambia, Coffee, Pike, Macon, Shelby, Marengo, Butler, Blount, Barbour, Marion, Lawrence, Chilton, St. Clair, Clarke, Geneva, Monroe, Franklin, Pickens, Sumter, Wilcox, Randolph, Connecuh, Hale, Dale and Perry.

Class VIII, counties with populations of less than 20,000—Fayette, Choctaw, Crenshaw, Henry, Winston, Autauga, Lowndes, Bibb, Cherokee, Greene, Lamar, Bullock, Washington, Clay, Cleburne and Coosa.

The proposed amendment provides that the Legislature shall pass no local or special act in any of the following cases:

Establishing and maintaining county civil service systems, providing for or regulating procedural matters in relations of county budget system or systems of fiscal management; regulating the jurisdiction of county governing bodies, prescribing the compensation of county officers and employees, except that the Legislature may pass local acts in those cases where it is authorized by amendments to the consuse, disposition or sale of county stitution to do so; regulating the property, or providing for or levying county taxes.

The amendment would require the Legislature to pass general laws on these subjects, as well as those named in Setcion 104 of the Constitution, and the general laws would have to apply equally in terms and effects either to all counties or to one or more of the eight established classes.

The secretary of state would be required to certify any change in classification, either up or down, to the probate judges after each regular decennial census.

Cooper points out in the report that there is no doubt that the Legislature has the power to create a Board of Adjustment in 1935 intended that it function somewhat as a court for the settlement of claims against the state.

A proposed constitutional amendment drafted by the LRS would prohibit private relief bills in the Legislature in cases where relief may be had under existing provisions of law.

It would also permit county governing bodies to pay just claims, though not legally enforceable, and prohibit the Legislature from passing private relief acts in such cases.

Qualifies For State Com. Of Agriculture

Ray A. Tomlin, young Clay County farmer and veteran vocational agriculture teacher, has filed qualification papers with the State Democratic Committee and Secretary of State and declares himself a candidate for State Commissioner of Agriculture in the May Primary.

Tomlin, the son of Thomas A. and Abbie Ray Tomlin, of Ashland, Alabama, states that he entered the race after much deliberation, which dates back to college days where the nucleus of this ambition was born.

Born on a farm, he entered the Army soon after his graduation from Clay County High School. Serving three years with the U. S. Army during World War II, as a non-commissioned officer, he served a twenty-five months tour of duty in the Pacific Theatre.

He is a graduate of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, with a B. S. Degree in Agricultural Science, class of 1949. While at Auburn, for outstanding scholarship, character, and leadership, he was selected for membership in two of Agriculture's highest National Honorary Fraternities.

Since his graduation from Auburn, he has followed his profession both as a farmer and as a teacher in the Veterans' Vocational Agricultural Training Program. Active in civic improvement of his community, he is a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Baptist Church.

Tomlin, when questioned regarding his entrance in this race states, "I am seeking this office because I feel that I am qualified to discharge the duties of this office, not only from a technical, but also an administrative point of view, and in a manner and fashion that will be a credit to the people of Alabama." He added, "if I didn't feel qualified for the office I seek, I would not ask the voters of this great state to give me the privilege and honor of being their commissioner."

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From H. W. Springfield, Woodbine, Kansas: I remember when the Grand Army of the Republic (G. A. R.) held their annual camp meeting at Wadena, Minnesota. I shook hands with General Vansant who was one of the boys.

They were something of a small army as they marched down the streets of Wadena. They would roast an ox at the celebration and one year a neighbor of mine carried the ox tail over his shoulder in the parade. At the celebrations they sold lemonade from a large stone jar at 5 cents a glass.

From Jessamine S. Burgum, Arthur, N. D.: I remember when everyone looked forward for months to "going to the State Fair." Transportation was either a one-horse buggy or a fringed-top surrey, or—if the family was large—a three-seated lumber wagon.

My parents drove a fringe-topped phaeton—but, oh joy,—sometimes the current young man of he had the courage and the cash drove to our door in a top buggy with two prancing horses from the "livery barn."

We were equal to the occasion with a "Gibson Girl" stylish costume, white shirtwaist, puffed sleeves and lace insertion, full dark skirt, high button shoes—and black cotton stockings. The skirts swept the ground, for ankles were not to be seen.

SCANNING THE NEWS

AS USUAL, not too many businessmen and industrialists are in complete agreement as to exactly what lies ahead for American business. For many months the opinion generally expressed was that things would level off during the second quarter of 1954, possible pull up a bit from the "recession" in scattered areas during the first quarter of the year.

The National Industrial Conference Board announced recently a "Spot Check" of 157 manufacturing companies, studying figures for January and February 1954, and comparing them with the same months of 1953.

Comments from 61 per cent of the participating companies indicated that their business had been significantly affected by the slowdown in general business activity, with metal industries (71 per cent) being the hardest hit.

Fifty-seven of the companies met the situation by reducing their work force. Sixty-two instituted shorter work weeks. Overtime work was sharply curtailed and payrolls declined correspondingly. Forty-six companies reported that profits had been adversely affected.

One of the significant facts brought out was that fewer than ten companies indicated they had any plans for curtailing capital expenditure programs, although six out of ten were significantly affected by the business decline. Executives felt that business improvement would surely come during the 2nd quarter.

Most of the companies reported that production in February, 1954, was only slightly lower than in January, although decidedly lower than a year ago, when business generally was at peak levels.

Four out of ten companies expect production in the second quarter to exceed first-quarter levels —with less than half that number predicting a decline through the first half of the year.

Backlogs of unfilled orders declined considerably during the first quarter, far below pre-year levels. Most feel, however, that the low point in backlogs is now at hand and second-quarter backlogs will definitely increase.

New orders received in February, 1954, by the majority of companies were above January levels, but in only two out of ten cases did they exceed February, 1953 figures. Only one out of eight cooperators felt the decline would continue.

Raw materials and goods-in-process inventories were lower in February than the month before and the year before, although finished-goods inventories were higher than a year ago. Total inventories will be reduced in the second quarter according to the majority opinion.

Business, then, has an attitude of guarded optimism. Thirty-four of the 55 executives cooperating in the survey believe their businesses will begin to show marked improvement by the middle of the year. Most, however, are uncertain as to the permanence of any upturn. They say long-range success will hinge to a large extent on better selling and more efficient production.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont, West Virginia: I remember when girls and women with bare legs in wintertime would have been considered fit subjects for the insane asylum.

When a reserved seat, downstairs, in the opera house for a repertoire show cost 50 cents and some of the companies gave remarkably good performances.

When children were taught to respect old folks, to speak only when spoken to, and to wait for the second table if the diners were numerous.

When a young man who wanted "to make something out of himself" began his career as a schoolteacher.

From Mrs. Mildred Bryant, Madison, Maine: I remember when I was a child in North Anson, Maine, women, girls and babies wore thick dark green, brown or black veils over their faces on cold winter days; and women and girls wore black stockings and high-button shoes.

Every family owned a fringed shawl, which the feminine members took turns wearing. My father, in the fall, always put a high banking of garden soil around the house, to keep out winter winds. The soil was covered with green fir boughs.

Mother sent me to school every day, despite heavy snow storms and sometimes I was the only rider in the school hack with the driver. When the snow was up to the horse's belly, I was tipped out several times in the snow. I remember how I cried and how frightened I was.

BETTY BARNES IS TO REPRESENT MAPLESVILLE IN MISS FHA CONTEST

Betty Barnes, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Barnes, has been selected to represent Maplesville in the county-wide Miss FHA Contest. Betty is a junior in high school grade at Maplesville where she is secretary of the Beta Club and reporter for the school paper. Her contest entry form, as an active future farmer, said of Agriculture, "the most outstanding word in it is working, thinking, relationships, and the true sense of homemaking."

The title of Miss FHA is indeed an honor, for the girls are judged not only on beauty, poise and personality but they must have demonstrated satisfactory skills in all areas of homemaking, be active in FHA work, be willing workers and maintain high ideals.

The other girls who took part in the Maplesville contest were Faye Ann Dennie daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Dennis; Betty Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams; Betty Carole Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart; Erma Atcheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Atcheson; Helen Trott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Trott; Hazel Chandler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Chandler; Silvia Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Moore; Maudine Maddox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Maddox; Otha Lee Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Wright; and Sue Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ulmon Nichols.

The County Miss FHA Contest will be April 30th at the Clanton City Hall.

AETC ASKS FOR CHANNEL TWO

Montgomery, Ala.—The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has been asked by the Alabama Educational Television Commission to assign Channel 2 to Alabama for an educational television station to be located at Andalusia.

It was just a few days ago that the FCC announced it had allocated Channel 7 to Alabama for an educational TV station to be located atop Mt. Cheaha near Munford.

In asking for Channel 2, a very high frequency (VHF) channel, the Educational TV Commission requested it be assigned to Andalusia instead of to Havan, Fla.

Alabama's petition to the FCC said it would be in the public interest to assign the channel to the state. When and if established, the Andalusia station will be a part of a planned educational television network in Alabama.

HERMAN LECROY WRITES VOTERS

Herman A. Lecroy

I wish to take this opportunity to ask you for your support in my race for Place No. 5 on the County board of education.

Before going into business in Clanton I taught school for 9 years and in that time I learned the needs of our schools. My mother, Mrs. A. J Lecroy, has taught school for 36 years and my wife has served as Collins Chapel and Clanton Elementary for the past 17 years. I am giving these facts so that you will know that all of my life my family has been interested in the educational development of our county.

Since there is no salary connected with the office I have not made an extensive campaign but I want you to know that I do want and appreciate your support. I have served on our school board for four years and consider it a privilege to serve on the Board of Education.

I feel that though background and training I can be of a real service to the children and parents of Chilton County and if you will give me your vote on next Tuesday when you go to the polls I will be forever grateful.

Sincerely,
HERMAN LECROY.

Moscow recently announced that what is now known as the American bicycle was invented in 1803 by a Russian serf named Artamanov in the Ural Mountains. The first American bike was manufactured in Hartford, Conn., in 1877.

American business last year invested $37.8 billion for new plants and equipment, while the rate of investment during the first quarter of this year is estimated at $38 billion. This heavy investment is cited by many as evidence that the country is not headed for serious economic trouble.

A MAN CAN'T WIN

By Irma Reitci

"WHAT'S a Texas leaguer, Ed?"

I swallow my bacon without chewing it. I've been married to Bertha for ten years, but she still manages to catch me off guard.

I sigh. That flushed look means only one thing. Bertha is about to launch another hobby.

"When did you hear from your sister?" I ask.

This question is not beside the point. Bertha's hobbies always originate with her sister Grace, who lives in California. Whatever hobby Grace can't get organized via mail, she saves up for Bertha's annual visit. Only this year I put my foot down on Bertha going to California.

"I had a letter from Grace, yesterday," Bertha informs me nonchalantly. "But, let me tell you about Trudy's grand idea—"

That does it. Trudy's husband, Gus, is my partner in the plumbing business, so I know Trudy. She never had an idea in her life, let alone a grand one.

"Trudy says," Bertha continues, "that it's our Civic duty to support our Milwaukee Braves."

I groan. This could be even worse than Bertha's crocheting spree last year. For months it wasn't safe to sit down anywhere.

I see I have to do some quick thinking. "You girls wouldn't enjoy the games. You don't know a thing about baseball," I protest.

"We can learn," Bertha answers frostily. "You can explain the games to us while we're watching."

"Here's a picture of the team," Bertha says dreamily, paging through the morning paper. "Aren't the boys handsome? Oh, we'll have the grandest time this summer.—"

I shudder. My idea of a grand time doesn't include listening to Bertha and Trudy exchanging recipes for sauer braten while I'm trying to concentrate on Ed Mathew's fielding.

I'm beating my brains looking for an out, when I get an idea. "How is Grace these days?" I ask exploringly.

"She's fine," Bertha answers shortly.

I quickly play my trump card. "The Los Angeles Angels are a mighty fine baseball team. You and Grace would enjoy watching them."

"It would be nice to see Grace," Bertha says, gazing off into space, "I'd have to give up baseball, though—"

"Give up baseball?" I gasp.

"Grace detests baseball." Bertha says airily. "But, I suppose, I could learn about baseball next year just as well." She smiles sweetly at me. "Oh, Ed, you have the most marvelous ideas. I just can't wait to see Grace again."

"But, for Pete's sake," I ask, completely bewildered, "how come your sudden interest in baseball when Grace hates it?"

"I was just trying to be a pal to you," Bertha pouts.

"I give up," I groan.

"If I stay at Grace's a month, that ought to give you enough time," Bertha continues, ignoring my groan.

"Time for what?" I stammer.

"Why to fix up that room in the attic. Six cages ought to be enough to start with—"

"Cages?" I manage, trying to ignore my blood pressure.

"Grace says they're the easiest thing in the world to raise," Bertha continues.

"They?" I don't expect an answer. The word just slips out.

"Why, budgies, of course," Bertha says. "You know, parakeets. I think we'll start with three pair. Oh, they're the cutest things, Ed. I just know you'll love them."

What's the use? A man can't win.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

THE little woman has been asking me questions about baseball lately and it has me worried. When she starts asking questions, I always wind up in trouble.

When she discovered one time that my duties included the editing of a farm column, she began asking questions, just as she's doing now. I came home to find out that she had paid some fellow $15 to plow the back yard and had spent several more on garden tools for me.

A few years ago, when television first came to the town we lived in at the time, she plied me with questions about the astonishing new medium. Not being too versed myself, I solved the situation by taking her down to a department store to see one of the things in action. She was impressed, but not as much as she was carried away by an expensive washing machine she spied in the store. When I say she was carried away by the machine, I should make it clear that the machine carried away, to our house—along with a little envelope containing an easy payment plan.

Like I say, when my wife asks questions, she's not just making conversation. I don't think that she has discovered my plans to go to the big city next month to see a major league ball game. I believe, instead, that she is trying to plant the idea in my head. Then she will have an excuse to go along and "shop" the city.

It's nice to know that she won't mind my going to the ball game. I only wonder now if I can afford it.

ARE you keeping house as efficiently as you should to save your time and energies? Here are some tips which will help make you a better homemaker.

Dust on walls hangs downward so when you clean them, brush in an upward motion to prevent smearing and streaking. If the walls are very dirty, wrap a cheesecloth around the wall brush, and change frequently until the job is finished.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Tuna-Potato Salad
(Serves 10)

6-6 cooked potatoes
½ cup French dressing
2 7-ounce cans tuna
2 cups diced celery
1 tablespoon grated onion
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup salad dressing
Juice of ½ lemon

Cube pared potatoes and marinate in French dressing while they chill. Put tuna in sieve and pour boiling water over it. Chill fish. Toss together gently the potatoes, tuna, celery, onion, salt and pepper. Moisten with salad dressing and lemon juice. Chill and serve on salad greens.

Before using your grater for peel, rub a washed lemon diagonally across the grater in long strokes. This will also prevent discoloration of the peel.

Add a tablespoon of kerosene to a gallon of warm water before washing woodwork if you want to cut the grease. Waxing the woodwork after it is cleaned will make it easier to keep clean.

Add ammonia or vinegar to your dish water if you want to remove onion or fish odors from them easily. Rinse thoroughly with clear water.

Sew rubber padding underneath throwrugs to keep them from slipping. If the rug is small, sew canning rubbers to each of the corners to prevent the ends from curling and slipping.

FRENCH STOP REDS . . . Battle-weary defenders of Dien Bien Phu rest in trenches after halting communist attack with destruction of one enemy company in war for Indo China.

ACROSS the DESK
ideas from other editors

From the Duncannon Record, Duncannon, Pennsylvania: How easily we can hide our heads in the sands of time is reflected in the recent tragic ignoring of the beleaguered Indochinese. Slowly the enemy tightened a noose of Korean proportion while more and more of the legislative and administrative time was taken up with solving the McCarthy dilemma. Pathetically enough all the Communist hunters were caught in a web of distraction manufactured by the Great Red Hunter himself, while in another part of the world hordes of Communists were overrunning our outposts. It was then—and remains—much easier to cast opinions on what should be a comparitively minor publicized part of the danger. Part of this is because it is easier to associate our national welfare with what happens within our boundaries; part is suspicion of our chosen allies, but most of it is the instinctive knowledge that the more important decisions can be postponed if only we can find a minor but more irritable area in which to cast our moments of passionate feeling. And, too, the vague hope that may-be if we don't face Indochina and the H Bomb, they will slowly fade away.

From the Empire News, Empire, California: The atomic scientists had selected the widest deserted region in the world—the Pacific Ocean—for the test, and yet they were not able to assure the safety of the human beings nor of food for human consumption.

It would be useless to say that it is time to stop atomic experimentation now. Scholars will never agree that any field of knowledge has been studied enough, least of all the fascinating new field of nuclear physics. Experimentation will continue forever, and would continue on a small scale, even if every government in the whole world got sick of the whole deal and illegalized every proton the atom possesses.

If there is no way to investigate the atom without exposing . . . seamen to radiation, the least that science can do for people who may become guinea pigs without their consent is to warn them in advance. In other words, everything that the scientists know will happen or suspect might happen, should be explained thoroughly to everybody within the range of the experiment.

Instead of being hush hush, top secret, mustn't touch it, and don't tell it, atomic science should become a part of the general knowledge of every man, woman, and youth in Japan, in the United States, and in every country where radiation effects may be felt.

KNOWN ONLY TO GOD

By Ruth McKay

THORA LINDQUIST O'HARA, called The Widow O'Hara, was reading the Chisholm HERALD, and for the moment neglecting the blueberry pies she was making for the church festival. She was tall, willowy, vital and wore her yellow hair about her head in braids. Glancing from her reading, she saw the man at the screen door, and the paper dropped to the floor.

"HE CAME BACK . . . KEVIN, MY HUSBAND . . . HOW COULD HE WHEN HE IS BURIED HERE IN CHISHOLM?"

The tall, lithe, graying man removed his hat and said: "I did not mean to startle you." THE VOICE WAS KEVIN'S, so were the words. "Would you wrap up a few sandwiches for me? I have a friend waiting."

"Yes. Sit down." She indicated the porch swing. Her voice sounded like dry ashes in her ringing ears as she said: "I will give you some cold fish and waffles."

The fish would tell the story, if there was a story to tell. Kevin loathed fish of any description, and claimed waffles were unfit for human consumption.

"Anything, ma'am. Thank you."

Pa hadn't wanted her to marry Kevin and go from place to place with him. Kevin was a newspaperman with the red god of wanderlust in his heels. He always wanted to go somewhere, and when he got there he wished he was back where he came from. They'd lived in Chisholm, Minneapolis, Pierre, Omaha, Leadville, Denver, Raton and Santa Fe, and she was soul-weary of living in hotels and furnished rooms, so when he left the Santa Fe NEW MEXICAN to go to Tucson and work on THE REPUBLICAN, she said she would go back to her parents until he found a house.

"I'll get a furnished house," he promised, "in two weeks." He kissed her goodbye, put her on the train. His letters came every day. He loved her. He missed her. He was trying to get a place to live. Houses were hard to find. Three weeks, four weeks, five weeks, and then—the telegram: Kevin O'Hara—by his social security card and other personal papers—was in the morgue awaiting identification. His car and a train met at a crossing at the same time. The car was demolished.

Pa went to Tucson with her, made the identification, brought her Kevin's watch, fountain pen, two letters she had written him, and the billfold with her picture.

COULD PA HAVE MADE A MISTAKE?

She was trembling when she came to the porch with the package and said: "Cold fish and waffles."

"Thank you."

She watched him go through the gate and down the road toward the edge of the town.

The man with the lunch, called Harry, because it seemed appropriate in view of the words he repeated in his sleep, went to the old ice house where his friend Bucky was waiting.

"Cold fish and waffles," Harry said.

Bucky opened the package. "No such a thing! Ham sandwiches, pickles, pie, cookies, cheese and two bottles of orangeade," said he and went to work to satiate his hunger.

"You know every word in the dictionary, Harry, except your name and home town—four words that would open the door to a better life.

"Did you have a car? Did you pick a hiker? Is your name Harry?"

I do not recall any name but Harry, nor do I remember having a car."

"Back to the rambler roses: Did you see any today?"

"Yes, crossing through the cemetery I noticed a large bouquet on a grave and stopped to admire. The inscription on the headstone was KEVIN O'HARA."

"Come on," said Bucky. "We're wasting time."

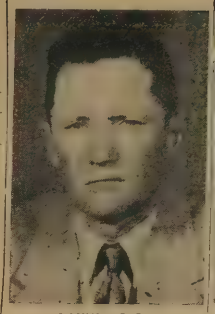
LONNIE COST WRITES VOTERS



LONNIE COST

This will be the last opportunity which I will have to express to you the voters the appreciation which I have for the kindness which you have extended to me during the campaign. As you know I am a stranger to Chilton County. I have liver here for forty-one years now live within three miles of the place of my birth. My father and mother are also natives of this county, their entire lives having been spent here. My mother is Mrs. Nahalie Sammons Cost and my father, who is Rev. John Robert Cost, has been a Baptist minister in this County for a period of more than thirty years.

Having been a lifelong resident of this County, I feel I am acquainted with many of the problems of our people, and I will, if elected, work faithfully to carry out the wishes of every person in this county. If elected, I will work diligently for every foot of paved roads possible for the farmers of our county. I will make every effort to aid the old and needy of our county and will at all times cooperate with county officials in these endeavors.

I have been questioned time and time again about my stand on the Road System and what I would do if elected, concerning the building of a County Court House and Jail. The laws governing the road system are laws made by the Legislature of this State. I as a member of the Board of Revenue, would make every effort to carry out my duties in conformity with these laws and the wishes of the people. I have never expressed any opposition to the Board of Revenue as it now exist, but am looking forward to the opportunity to serve you people as a member of this Board.

I believe in a wise and careful spending of the taxpayers money. I also believe in spending this money as the people thinks best fit. I will oppose the construction of a Court House and Jail until such time as it is shown by the vote of the people that this is their wish.

These things I will work for. If elected to serve on the Board of Revenue and Control. On these grounds I am earnestly asking for your vote on May 5th and if I am elected and can be of any service to anyone, please feel free to call on me at any time.

A LETTER FROM JULIUS SMITH

JULIUS SMITH

We are now entering the final phase of a primary election campaign in which you will choose your next Tax Assessor and several other officials of Chilton County.

In the Democratic Primaries on May 4th and June 1st you will choose your next Tax Assessor. I cannot over emphasize the fact that the Democratic nominee will be elected next Fall. Therefore, it is extremely important to the citizens and tax payers that your Democratic Nominee be a man of good will and good faith. He should be a man who will serve impartially the needs of all citizens and taxpayers without regard to their party affiliation. He should be a man large enough to treat all citizens fairly regardless of whether they voted for him or not. He should be a man who will not place the selfish interests of one family or one clique above the interests of his county or his country.

I have undertaken this campaign in a spirit of good will toward my opponents. It is my determination to fight a clean fight and fight a good fight.

I have lived here in Chilton County all my life. I have been able to accomplish a little something for myself. This has been made possible because of the good will of honest and fair dealings of me by many citizens here.

I would like to have the satisfaction of serving you as your Assessor. I would like to feel that I be able to say at the end of my term that Julius E. Smith has given you a honorable job. I earnestly solicit your support in these last few days and for your vote on election day.

JULIUS E. SMITH

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

I would like to take this opportunity to ask you to consider seriously the qualifications of my friend, Howard Boockholdt, who is a candidate for Superintendent of Education in Chilton County.

Mr. Boockholdt has 21 years of experience as a teacher, principal, supervisor and superintendent. He has had four years of college work in training for teaching and one year of college work training to be a school administrator. He has both his Bachelor's and Master's degrees.

Education is facing many crucial problems. Let a man who is trained and who has the experience help solve them. He is far more capable than one who is inexperienced in this field.

Mr. Boockholdt is a friend of Education. His one aim is to see that Chilton County schools are the best, and that fairness and impartiality are adhered to at all times.

Mr. Boockholdt will make no promises which he knows he cannot fulfill. He will always keep uppermost in his mind the school system, the teachers, boys and girls, and the taxpayers.

A vote for Howard Boockholdt on May 4th will mean fair, honest and progressive operation for the greatest school system in the county.

(Pd. pol. adv. by a Teacher friend of Howard Boockholdt.)

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

At this time I want to say a few words through your good paper in regard to Mr. Payton, a candidate for Sheriff.

I never knew Mr. Payton until he got in the race for Sheriff. During this time I have learned to appreciate and to love him.

When Mr. Payton came to see me he said, you don't know me. I refer you to the people in my community or over sixteen, check my record, my life, for yourself. I have done so and I find his record good and he is living a clean Christian life in the church and community.

Dear friends, before I recommend Mr. Payton to you I want to say a few words to Mr. Payton, stands for law and order when we have law and order we have better churches and better communities in which to live.

Now dear friends and voters on next Tuesday lets every one of us go to the polls and elect good up right men to all offices and not Dictators as we now have.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mert Sage, Maple Farm Cambridge, Vermont: I remember when it was possible to get a doctor within hours after you called him. Every town had one old "Doc" and most of them had a young one breaking in, who was always ready to "strike out."

Many's the time I've seen old Doc's horse turn into our yard with Doc bundled up sound asleep in his sleigh. Dad would go out and wake him up to invite him in for coffee and, if he wanted, Dad would water his horse and tend to him while Doc got the "lowdown" on our family.

Then, off he'd go to answer his next call, refreshed and rested, like as not sound asleep when he got there. He never neglected his patients and if you had gout, he called it gout. I really enjoyed the assorted candy and peppermint sticks he carried and always had a bag of apples for him.

It wasn't until years afterward I learned that some more needy family than ours got all the gifts I gave him for, being a shrewd old gent, he gave his gifts in the far corners of town, rather than to someone in the neighborhood.

I wish I could see everyone of you and personally ask you to vote for me in the May 4 Primary for the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County. This being impossible, I thought it would be a good idea to write this letter to you and ask you to vote for me.

I was born and have lived all my life in Chilton County, and attended its public schools. I was graduated from the Law School of the University of Alabama in 1940, and since then have been engaged in the general practice of law in Chilton County.

I assure you that if elected to the office of County Solicitor for Chilton County, I will, at all times, diligently look after and protect the interests of the taxpayers and citizens of the County.

2, Experience—Howard Boockholdt has had 21 years experience in public school work, including every phase of school activity from driving a school bus to eight years experience as county superintendent of education. In any office of government administration there is no substitute for experience.

3, Howard Boockholdt is not connected with any special group, and is not under any obligations to any individual, or group of individuals.

TODAY, I'M THE BOSS

(Editor's Note: The following copy was furnished us by Mrs. Olive Figuette. It is just as appropriate today as it was the day it was written. It appeared as an ad for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston, Mass.)

Today, May 4, 1954, I will walk into a voting booth just around the corner from home and tell everybody how I want my country run.

Today, I am the boss.

In a way, of course, I'm boss in my country every day of the year. Government by the people, they say. The people, when you come down to it, is me.

But I don't work full time at governing. I've got my own job to do—a living to earn, a lawn to mow, kids to play with and bawl out and love and look after. So, for the hard job of running the country, I hire other men—smarter fellows than myself, I hope, but with the same kind of heart and purpose.

They govern for me—but I keep tabs. I listen to what they say. I watch what they do. It's a big country I live in, and there's room for different ways of looking at things. I vote for the people who see things as I do, and if enough other people agree, that's the way the thing gets done.

That's what it means to be the boss in your own country.

Now, there are places in the world where a man like me is not the boss. They don't let him vote. Or they march him to some public place and tell him whom to vote for. I think the voiceless people of those lands are watching me as I leave my house today saying: "There goes a lucky man."

In this country of mine we love freedom so much, and hate force so much, that I am not even forced to vote. I could stay home today if I liked. I could sleep late and take it easy and let others do the job of choosing.

I could—but who'd want to? What spirited man or woman would loaft through a day like this, when he can go out and write boldly on the page of history: "Here's how I want things run in my country."

No, today I am the boss and I must act like a boss. Today, I must vote. My freedom, my happiness, my pride as an American, are bound up in that simple and wonderful act.

HEALTHY BODIES NEED HEALTHY MINDS

Mental Health Week is here again—May 2-8—and Clanton is proud to participate in its observance. This year's theme, "Healthy Bodies Need Healthy Minds," stresses the important principle that being healthy means being mentally healthy as well as physically healthy. Children who may score a perfect mark in all the characteristics of physical health are not really healthy unless they also enjoy good mental and emotional adjustment. Undue aggressiveness, destructiveness, anti-social tendencies, fearfulness, unusual shyness, and other characteristics of poor mental health in children need to be given as much attention as malutrition, poor vision, dental deficiencies and other faults in bodily structure or development.

Science has achieved miracles in improving our physical health through the development of preventive measures and through the discovery of miracle drugs to fight disease. It is now time that science turned its attention to the prevention of the mental disorders, and to more effective treatment of these disorders.

We urge the people in Clanton to join with the Alabama Association for Mental Health, the State Division of Mental Hygiene, and the National Association for Mental Health in observing Mental Health Week. Why not get in touch with the Alabama Association for Mental, learn more about mental health, and join in the fight against mental illness. Fight mental illness! Ring the bell for mental health!

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

JOSEPH ARAUJO, 2932 Alabama Street, La Crescenta, California, learned through an experience that has served him in good stead that if you spend all your time worrying, you don't have time to think about solving your problem, and that if you crowd worry out of your mind, and work with calm, your problems work themselves out.

Half a dozen years ago he went into business for himself. He borrowed some money from his family and with a little he had saved, he opened a haberdashery.

The first year all went well; business was good. But as he started the second year, business dropped off; there were days when all he sold was a handkerchief.

Worries? He had them. Bills had to be met and in addition, his family had to live. He didn't worry only when at the store either. That wasn't enough. He went home and worried half the night. He says how his wife was able to live with him he will never understand.

CARNEGIE

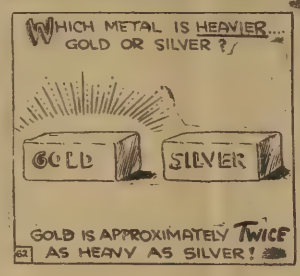
After about three months with his waking hours filled with worry, and his nights filled with restless turning and tossing, business began to pick up and he was making a fair living. Then he decided to put the store up for sale. Three more months went by and he had prospects but no buyers. In the meantime, he again started to worry.

Finally he said to himself, "Joe, worrying didn't help business three months ago, and it isn't going to help sell the store, so you might as well stop." Worrying had hindered not helped.

Three months later he sold the store.

TELL ME....

HOW DID WE GET THE WORD "CHAUFFEUR" ?
FROM THE FRENCH "CHAUFFEUR"... A LIGHT-HOUSE CARETAKER WHO HEATED THE STRUCTURE. LATER, THE WORD APPLIED TO STOKERS, FIREMEN AND AUTO DRIVERS!



CAN THE DIRECT HEAT OF THE SUN KILL A RATTLESNAKE ?
YES! IT HAS BEEN PROVEN THAT WHEN DIRECT SUNLIGHT HEATS A SNAKE'S BODY TO ABOUT 115 DEGREES FAHRENHEIT.... IT WILL DIE!

Things We -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

You've heard of changing horses in the middle of the stream. Looks like in the coming elections the horse that started across is going to change quite a few riders before he reaches the right side.

We aren't sure under what head it would come, but we feel that there is an urgent need for some action on the looks of our local cemetery. Possibly, someone already shoulders that responsibility and we're all for 'em, but it is evident that it isn't kept exactly as it should be. Some worthy organization in Clanton could take, as a project, the improvement of our cemetery and benefit all of us. We're not saying that this isn't a personal matter that should be attended to as the individual or family sees fit, but we do say it isn't being done properly at present. It could easily be worked out so as to respect the wishes of persons not wishing these services and also benefit those who did. All in all, it would help the looks of our community considerably.

We know a certain candidate for governor who is spending too much of his time answering questions and not enough time asking them.

Been noticing a lot of mention about industry the past few weeks and thinkin' how proud most of us would be to have Chilton County on the list some of the time. They say '54 is to be a good year; why not make it an even bigger year for our citizens by bringing some new industry into Chilton?

With the advancement of science and the machine age, in another couple' centuries instead of saying, "I wonder what that guy thinks of me," you'll be saying, "so that's what that guy thinks of me."

Those boys running in the Sheriff's race are in for more than they bargained for. It's pretty rough, this being sheriff. We saw, and heard, the sheriff and a deputy go through town the other day lickety split and when we called to check on it some fellow said Luke had gone to supper, he thought. Now fellas, when you get that hungry, you must have been working pretty hard.

Friend of mine said that he enjoyed sleeping more when he set the alarm for about two o'clock and then cut it off and went back to sleep. Said that second half was twice as restful. Maybe you could educate your rooster if you lack an alarm clock. At any rate, this fella is the lazy type.

We all like to hear and tell of the other fellow's mistakes or mishaps, the minor ones we mean. Two fellows were fishing down below the dam some time back and it seems that one of them had never bothered to learn how to swim. The other, experienced fisherman, told this fellow to hold onto something while he tied the boat up. He grabbed a wire in the cement, but it seemed his experienced friend couldn't keep the boat from drifting long enough to tie up. He tied up anyway, and the boat drifted anyway, and the fellow hung onto the wire for all he was worth, which was a good bit as he had just been paid. Needless to say, he, his money, and his pride got all wet and the other fellow said he pulled in a whopper of a poor fish that day.

Things We're Seeing and Hearing—

A helicopter scaring some poor old lady on the street Saturday and causing much attention in general around town.

Marshall Williams looking mighty snappy in that officer's uniform.

Women, bless 'em, "Lowering their ears" now instead of letting the men do something by themselves. What'll they take next, fellas?

Some of the candidates forgetting what their mother's told them about being overconfident. To much confidence looks like conceit.

UNITED STATES POLL

SOME OF PROBLEMS FACING PEOPLE OVER 65 YEARS

Princeton, N. J.—One of the most important problems facing the nation today is that of taking care of older people—those 65 years of age and over.

To determine what the American public consider the biggest problems facing older people today, the United States Poll this month asked a representative cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"Among people 65 years of age and older that you know, what would you say is their biggest problem?"

Results of the survey show three problems uppermost on American people's minds at the present time:

1. Money: Not getting enough money to live on; not enough money; can't support themselves; financial; economic problems; need more money (56 per cent named it).

2. Getting work: Finding a job; employers opposed to employing older people; getting a job if physically able to work; fear of losing their jobs; hard to get work; can't get jobs. (27 per cent mention).

3. Social security payments not big enough: Not enough social security to take care of them; can't live on pensions; social security is inadequate; should be permitted to earn more; pensions not big enough (16 per cent named it).

Next most important problems facing older people today, judging by the number of mentions are these:

4. Lack of security; security; don't feel secure; the insecurity.

5. Keeping busy; being occupied; finding something to do with their time; not enough to do.

6. Housing: need for decent living quarters.

7. Sickness and medical expense: sickness; doctor bills; getting proper medical attention at a minimum cost; no one wants to take care of them when ill; hospitals too crowded.

8. High cost of living: getting enough to live on; money cut in half with today's prices; getting enough to eat.

9. Some one to care for and want them: no one wants to care for them; no one wants them.

10. Problem of adjusting themselves to a new way of life: personality adjustment; loneliness; too early retirement while still capable; lack of hobbies and interests; lack of friends, and the need for clubs for older people also received some mention.

Following are some typical comments that sum up the thinking of many of the nation's citizens:

Getting enough money to live on is the biggest problem facing older people today.

Old people need and must have security.

Getting work and being occupied are the things older people need most.

They don't get enough money from social security.

The biggest problem will always be money.

Not being able to work when they are able to.

Adequate medical attention at a minimum cost.

Keeping themselves occupied.

Social security payments aren't big enough.

Finding a secure place where they can be at home.

Getting a living wage; being able to make enough to live.

SUMMER HAZARDS

Summer months offer many chances for fun and good healthful living. Because warnings are ignored and common sense forgotten, outdoor attractions of summer too often result in sickness and even death for numbers of people.

Summertime, for most people, means more time spent in the outdoors. Automobile trips, golf, tennis, swimming and just sitting in the sun can cause painful sunburn. Take the sun in small doses and allow your skin to become "seasoned."

Swimming is one of the most pleasant of all outdoor sports, but injuries and death from swimming are too numerous. Dives into unknown waters may result in broken necks and other bad injuries. Overexertion while swimming produces a fatigue and exhaustion that may end in drowning. Swimming in unsanitary waters may be responsible for inrections.

The mosquito is a hazard of summer. Aside from its general nuisance value, a certain species of this little insect, called the Anopheles mosquito, transmits malaria.

Typhoid fever is another hazard of summer. Caused by a germ called the typhoid bacilluds, this infectious disease is usually associated with dirt and filth conditions. Because the disease starts when the germ enters the victim's mouth, cleanliness is of first importance in avoiding this condition. Drinking contaminated water or milk and eating food prepared by a person who is unclean should be avoided.

These are but a few of the hazards of summer. They can be avoided, if care and wisdom are applied to outdoor activities.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

"He Shall Surely Be Put to Death," will be the Sabbath, 11 am sermon topic.

Text: "And the man that committeth adultry with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultry with his neighbor's wife, the adulterer and the adultress shall surely be put to death." Lev. 20:10.

It is being preached in our day that since God does not put to death the violators of his law—that this proves the law has been done away. The devil has invented all kinds of crooked arguments and put these arguments in the mouths of his spokesmen to encourage the transgression of God's holy law.

The death penalty for adultry, as well as for all the commandments, has not been lifted. It has been put off until the day of executive judgment. In John 3:4 we read that "sin is the transgression of the law" and in Rom. 6:23 that "the wages of sin is death." But this death sentence is not executed immediately, as in the wilderness. But in 2 Pet. 2:9 we read that the Lord as "reserved the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." All who are deceived into believing that the wilful violators of God's law will go unpunished should read and heed Rev. 21:8.

THIN PEACH TREES FOR BETTER FRUIT

Auburn, Ala.—Thin peach trees for larger fruit of better quality. Peach trees often set more fruit than they can mature to good size, according to API Extens on Horticulturist John Bagby. Trees can take up only a certain amount of water and plant food, and this material will support only a given volume of peaches.

"For that reason," explains the farm leader, "it's wiser to thin trees so all the fruit will be at least two inches or larger. This practice means improved fruit quality and higher market profits.

"When thinning peaches, break up all the clusters, leaving only one peach. Then space the remainder of the clusters three to four inches apart along the branches."

ARE WE IN THE SOUTH

Going Down The Primrose Path

TO POVERTY

Thousands of Alabama voters today know beyond all question that the Republican Party and their southern wing, the Dixiecrat leaders, are leading the nation along a path that can only mean misery for millions. You have seen the danger signals for the past few months . . . the high interest rates; the attacks on TVA, REA and other great social reforms of the Democratic Party; the dropping prices to farmers for farm products, cattle and milk; the ever-growing army of unemployed! Where does it lead? To economic chaos, of course! Can you stop it? Yes! You and your neighbors, and other voters of this district, can go to the polls on May 4th and vote for regular, old-line Democrats, . . . men who will follow the concepts of Jefferson, Jackson, Wilson and Roosevelt . . . men who are devoted to Southern traditions and happiness for the average man.

Here Is The Barometer:

- STOCK MARKET FLUCTUATING ABNORMALLY—New York speculators want it!
- INTEREST RATES INCREASING—Big City Bankers and other Mortgagees want it!
- ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED GROWING—Our very existence depends on full employment.
- PRICES TO FARMER FOR CATTLE, MILK and PRODUCE DROPPING—The farmer is entitled to a fair price for his crop.
- TVA AND REA UNDER ATTACK—Millions are benefitted by low cost electricity.

YOUR VOTE FOR THE DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE CANDIDATES IS DECISIVE!

The State Democratic Executive Committee is the policy making body of the Democratic Party in Alabama. By deluding the voters, the Dixiecrat leaders seized control of the committee and made it impossible for us to support the national party nominees in 1948. The ONLY way Alabama voters can help elect a Democratic administration in 1956 is to make SURE now that the Executive Committee remains loyal to the principles of the Democratic Party, and is not traded off again to the Republicans.

JACK'S PLAN . . . TO BUILD ALABAMA

★ TAXES I will not advocate nor support any additional taxes unless the voters of Alabama go to the polls and decide additional taxes are necessary.

★ LABOR My father was a coal miner. I realize the vast improvement of working conditions under Collective Bargaining. I feel we should preserve the right of Labor to bargain collectively. I favor the "Right to Work" bill.

★ INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT My plan calls for an intensive world-wide search for new and old industry alike to locate in Alabama. Industrial capital is fast waking up to the fact that Alabama and the South should be their natural headquarters. Too long have we watched our natural resources, such as iron, steel, lumber and cotton, being shipped out of Alabama to some highly industrialized northern city to be manufactured into the finished product, which eventually finds its way back to the Alabama supplier in the form of tractors, bathtubs, toys and overalls.

★ LOCAL GOVERNMENT I believe in local government and shall do all within my power to support any measure that will strengthen local self-government.

★ A.B.C. I am in accord with the principle of local option. It is the democratic privilege of a majority of the people of each locality to decide the alcoholic beverage control question for themselves.

★ OLD AGE ASSISTANCE Alabama aged and dependents are entitled to payments equal to or exceeding the national average. This shall be my constant goal.

★ EDUCATION The financial needs of our schools are greater than can be met under the present economy of the State. I promise to exert every effort to determine where economies can be effected to fulfill these needs without further increasing the burden on our already overburdened taxpayer.

★ HEALTH I pledge to expand the efforts of our State Government to provide more adequate public health, industrial hygiene and maternal and child care and to provide more hospitals and Health Centers and better health protection for all our people.

★ AGRICULTURE With the help of the Legislature, I will seek by every means the achievement of an adequate research, educational, and assistance program for the farmers of Alabama.

★ STATE PURCHASING I will see that all purchases are made on a competitive bid basis. I think the Alabama tax dollar should be spent for materials manufactured here in Alabama by Alabama taxpayers.

★ REAPPORTIONMENT We are taxing and governing great numbers of our people without granting them equal representation in our State Government. This condition is not only un-Democratic; it is un-American. My plan is to recommend that the Legislature perform its duties immediately by taking steps to reapportion the great State of Alabama.

THE MAN WITH A PLAN — TO BUILD ALABAMA

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

If the House is to meet the Administration's proposed July 31 adjournment date, its legislative pace will have to increase considerably during the next three months. House sessions were resumed Monday after a week's Easter recess, with a heavy schedule of controversial and major issues lying ahead.

More than 200 specific recommendations were made to Congress by President Eisenhower at the beginning of the session. Although many of them can be termed minor, the committee dockets remain crowded with unfinished business.

Major Issues Ahead

Even though the House is ahead of schedule on appropriations bills, it still must consider five major "money" bills before adjournment. These appropriations bills, which provide operating funds for all the departments and agencies of our government, must originate in the House of Representatives. In addition to the Defense Department Appropriations bill that is under consideration this week, the House will take up before adjournment measures providing funds for the Department of Labor, the Department of Health Education and Welfare, the District of Columbia, the Mutual Security Administration and the legislative and judicial branches of the national government.

The Ways and Means Committee is still conducting extensive hearings on legislation to expand Social Security coverage by about 10 million people. Committee members believe a bill will be ready for House action sometime this month.

[illegible] by approximately 24 [illegible] year is awaiting House action after being reported from the Post Office and Civil Service Committee earlier in the session. This legislation, introduced in an effort to reduce the large annual deficit of the Post Office Department, will raise certain rates on first, second and third class mail. Committee action is still pending on proposals to increase salaries for postal employees and other federal workers.

Although the Senate Labor Committee has reported a measure containing revisions to the Taft-Hartley Law, the House Education and Labor Committee has made no final recommendations as yet. The House committee has made an exhaustive study of proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley Law during both sessions of the 83rd Congress, and there is some question as to whether or not any changes will be recommended by the committee during this session.

The Senate has passed and the House Public Works Committee has recommended the St. Lawrence Seaway bill. This measure will make it possible for the United States to join Canada in developing a navigable waterway from Duluth, Minn., at the head of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean. The seaway bill is now being held up in the House Rules Committee, but [illegible] will be considered before the House adjourns.

Legislation to admit Hawaii and Alaska as the 49 and 50th states is according to Speaker Martin, "resting comfortably" on his desk and is likely to remain there for some time." The House passed a bill last year granting statehood to Hawaii, but the measure was amended by the Senate to include both territories. It is extremely doubtful that the House will vote to admit Hawaii and Alaska at this time unless real pressure is brought by the Administration. There is no indication at the moment that such pressure will be exerted.

Pending farm issues includes price supports, marketing quotas and tariff policies. President Eisenhower has made more than 30 recommendations pertaining to these farm issues, and these recommendations have been referred to the House Agriculture Committee. There will undoubtedly be House action on many of the President's agricultural recommendations before we adjourn.

Limited space makes it possible for me to mention only a few of the major issues now pending in the House. Legislation concerning veterans, foreign aid, reciprocal trade, future uses of atomic energy and other important subjects will probably be voted on before adjournment.

To Give Radio Report

I am returning to Alabama to cast my vote in Tuesday's Democratic primary. THE MOST IMPORTANT QUALITY

WHAT is most important in industrial development? Some say ample raw materials. They're important; you can't extract minerals or cut wood or supply agricultural products for processing where such raw materials aren't available.

And there must be customers. No need to make something if you can't sell it.

Some say electric power is most important. There is ample power. Others say transportation. If raw materials and customers exist in sufficient quantities, transportation will be provided if it doesn't exist.

What, then, is

THE MOST IMPORTANT QUALITY?

IT is friendliness toward the industry which a community hopes will become a part of it. A community's reputation for friendliness is built by repeated friendly acts toward not only the stranger and the newcomer but to the oldtimer as well. A reputation for friendliness with the oldtimer and all who come after him is certain to become known to the visitor soon; it often does much to sway him and his associates in their decision on where to locate a new plant or warehouse.

And often community friendliness is an important factor in the decision of an industry to expand where it is now or to build its expansion elsewhere.

In this Alabama Industry Week, perhaps it is well again to recall to mind the admonition to "seek new friends but in the seeking do not forsake the old."

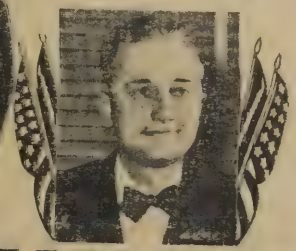
★ FAULKNER'S Administration Will Be Clean!

Teday Jimmy Faulkner is obviously far ahead in this important race for Governor . . . He is leading because the people of Alabama know that Jimmy Faulkner has the TRAINING and ABILITY plus a program of HONESTY, DECENCY and PROGRESS to benefit ALL ALABAMA CITIZENS.

Alabama people also APPROVE OF THE REFRESHINGLY CLEAN CAMPAIGN THAT FAULKNER HAS CONDUCTED!!



JIMMY FAULKNER

Because Jimmy Faulkner is so far ahead in this race, certain opposing candidates are now desperately "shooting at" this clean, forward-looking young man . . .

These candidates are shooting at Faulkner ONLY BECAUSE THEY KNOW HE IS WINNING! (Politicians don't waste their shots on political "dead ducks!")

But "you can't get blood out of a turnip!"—and YOU CAN'T FIND DIRT WHERE THERE IS NO DIRT! These candidates fighting Faulkner know how true this is . . . They HAVE TRIED DESPERATELY BUT HAVE FAILED to come up with one charge that will hold water! . . .

That's because JIMMY FAULKNER IS CLEAN AS A WHISTLE and because JIMMY FAULKNER HAS NO SECRETS!

Alabama's people know that JIMMY FAULKNER'S ADMINISTRATION WILL BE CLEAN, just as his campaign has been clean! That's one more reason why Alabamians from the Gulf to Tennessee are united as never before to ELECT JIMMY FAULKNER GOVERNOR!

FOLLOW THESE TIPS ON HOG MANAGEMENT

Auburn, Ala.—Castrate and vaccinate pigs at the right time, advises G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

Pigs castrated at 10 days to 6 weeks of age suffer very little shock and heal quickly with little chance of infection. On the other hand, older animals may be in shock as much as two weeks and are also be more subject to infection.

"Too often," continues Phillips, "vaccination for hog cholera is considered a rainy-day job. But here again time plays an important role. It's usually better to vaccinate healthy pigs two weeks after weaning. However, they may be vaccinated two weeks before weaning if necessary. Vaccinate on time and pigs can produce satisfactory cholera immunity.

"To assure prompt and efficient attention, make vaccination appointments with a veterinarian."

After selling lambs, confine the ewes in a dry lot for a few days to dry up their milk and feed them a hay ration.

Farm pond weeds make their greatest seasonal growth in May.

Under most farm conditions it is still best to wean pigs at eight weeks of age.

ETTER TO THE VOTERS

o the voters of Chilton County: I uld like to say something in belf of Howard Boockholdt as a ndidate for re-nomination for the fice of County Superintendent of ucation. In my thirty-three years perience as a teacher (twenty-six ars as a high school principal) I ve had the pleasure of teaching some very fine superintendents.
ne of these later became state perintendents of education, Dr.
eller, and Dr. E. B. Norton.

While I taught under the super-sion of Howard Boockholdt I und him to be an efficient, con-derate, fair minded superintendent.
course I did not get nearly all e things I asked for, but he was eful to point out why the school uld not have the things I want-
, or I could not do the things I shed to do.

One of the most discouraging things about being a county superintendent of education in Alabama is that there is five or six places where each dollar received by the board of education is badly needed.

In my work these last two years I have visited every school system in Alabama and Mississippi, and I find the Chilton County schools compare favorably with some of the best county systems of Alabama, and are superior to many systems in Mississippi. I am surprised that the Chilton County Board of Education does as well as it does with the funds it has to operate with. When you find a school system operating a successful school program, it is due to the efficient administration of the superintendent.

Let me solicit your vote and influence for Howard Boockholdt for County Superintendent of Education, a man who has proved himself by his successful administration of this office.

Let me also remind the reader that Howard Boockholdt, nor any other superintendent, or board of education has the authority, or power to discharge a teacher that has the protection of the Teacher Tenure Law, without said teacher can be proved guilty of some serious charge.

A voter of Chilton County last week was confused because she was under the impression Howard Boockholdt, and Dr. D. P. Culp were candidates for the same office. Your cooperation in helping such confused voters will be much appreciated.

I want to state in closing that I am not employed by the Chilton County Board of Education, and am under no obligation to it in any way whatever, or any of its employees, or its superintendent.

Very truly yours,
-s- Patterson Hicks

V. O. (Jack) Lenoir Writes The People Of Chilton County

Next Tuesday is ELECTION DAY in Alabama nd in Chilton Co. This das is and should be a very im-ortant event in the lives and affairs of the people of ur County. It is a day on which you, the voters, will hoose many of your State and County officials to rep-esent us during the next four years in the offices and n the boards of our State and County governments. his is a day when prejudices, spleen venting, mud-inging and personal ambitions should be forgotten. It s a day when the best that is in our citizenship should e conveyed through the ballot box to those most able nd capable of administering the affairs of our govern-ent. After all, your County government is Big Busi-ess, and the services to the people and the kind of gov-rnment we have cannot be any better than the abili-es of those we elect to run our government.

I am grateful for the honor of serving the people f Chilton County for the past several years as a mem-er of our Board of Revenue and Control. It is not easy o square our actions as a member of this Board with the ersonal ideas and ambitions of all the voters, but it is ome consolation to know that you have done the best ou could under the circumstances and conditions which ome up for consideration in the affairs of our County overnment. There's a lot of difference in "looking rom the outside in and in looking from the inside out." am also grateful to the voters for the encouragement hey are now giving me and for their support of my can-idacy for re-election as a member of the Board of Rev-nue and Control in next Tuesday's election.

Any man worthy of being a member of our Board f Revenue and Control should want to be a part of a ecord of accomplishments and good government. The oters of the County know of the record of accomplish-ents of the present Board and our efforts to serve the eople honestly and progressively. It is much easier at imes to be against something and somebody than it is o be for something and for somebody. In our public ffairs there is too much being against something, tear-ng down and destroying our institutions and fellow-itizens. In my efforts to serve the people as a mem-er of our board of Revenue and Control I have always ried to be for something and to be for somebody. It akes a lot of effort, patience and planning to build omething for the future, but it takes only a few min-tes to destroy something. By our efforts and good ill let's build something for Chilton County. That has een my idea as a member of the board and that will ontinue to be my idea if I am honored by you on next uesday.

I have been for the present road program of our ounty because it has gotten results. I will continue to avor this program until a better program is offered for aintaining our County roads.

I am in favor of the present system of County pur-hasing, because of the savings to the tax payers in dol-rs and cents. The record speaks for itself and the rec-rd is open to every person in the County.

In behalf of my candidacy for re-election to the oard of Revenue and Control I would like to say that have not been running anybody's campaign but my wn, I am not a part of or attached to any other candi-ate's campaign and I have not entered into a mud-linging campaign to be-cloud the issues and confuse he voters. I will humbly appreciate the vote and sup-ort of the people, and in return I will try to give the eople and our county my very best efforts at all times.

I believe the people of Chilton County want a busi-ess-like administered government. I believe they want heir government operated efficiently and honestly and believe they will vote next Tuesday to support a pro-ram which is getting results in savings to the tax pay-rs. On the basis of my record, experience as a mem-er of the board and my desire to humbly serve as one f your representatives on the Board of Revenue and ontrol during the next four years, I will appreciate our support next Tuesday when you go to the polls to ast your vote.

Sincerely,
V. O. (Jack) LENOIR.

Be Sure To Harvest Seed At The Right Time

Auburn, Ala.—Most spring seed crops will be ready for harvest during May.

And Ralph Jones, API Extension seed crops specialist, offers these guides to successful combining:

1. Harvest crimson clover when three-fourths of the seed heads have turned brown and the seed strip easily from the seed head.

2. Combine rescue when shattering starts. At this stage most of the seed will be pink to light brown in color and will be in the medium dough stage. Earlier harvesting will give light, low quality seed.

3. For highest yields harvest white clover when about 75 per cent of the seed in the second set of blooms are in the hard dough stage.

4. Harvest oats and other small grain crops when most of the seed kernels have passed from the hard dough to the vitreous stage.

"Don't lose your seed after harvest," warns Jones. "Hasty and careless handling permits the seed to heat thus lowering or even destroying germination. And once seed have heated, drying and treating will not restore lost vitality.

"To prevent heating, begin drying seed two to three hours after combining. Use one of these three methods: (1) On a clean tight floor in a well ventilated building spread newly harvested seed not more than three to four inches deep, and stir them thoroughly two or three times a day. (2) As they are combined, put seed in partially filled bags and store them in a well ventilated building. (3) Carry the seed immediately to a seed drying plant equipped to use forced ventilation of either natural or heated air."

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From M. D. Merry, Hudson, Wisconsin: It was my fortune while living in Montana to meet an aged miner, who told me many stories of his mining life. He had gone to California at the time of the gold rush in 1848.

Being disappointed, he and a party of twenty treked overland to Southwestern Montana, where it was reported that gold could be picked up on the hills.

They made their camp at what later became Bannack. Results were satisfactory, except for large brown rats, fearless things, which scampered across tables at mealtime and crawled into beds at night.

They decided the only remedy was cats, so two men took the wag on they had bought in California and started for the settlement in Idaho. They had no trouble getting cats, but their wagon upset on the way back and they lost half of their load.

On arriving in Bannack, they were hailed with delight. An auction was held and the cats were paid for in gold dust, bringing a nice profit to the promoters.

Any recommended cotton insecticide except calcium arsenate will control thrips; use BHC for aphid control.

FOR HIGHEST PRICE SELL LAMBS IN MAY

May is the shepherd's most profitable marketing season.

"All lambs weighing 70 pounds or more should be sold next month when prices are highest," explains API Extension Livestockman W. H. Gregory. "Market lambs on regular sale days because there are not enough lambs in Alabama to get a good market at the time."

Lamb sales will be held in Huntsville, May 8; Demopolis, May 12, and Montgomery, May 14. A second series of sales will take place in June.

Gregory advises farmers to sell their wool in a pool. This year Alabama will have at least three wool pools paying maximum prices. Dates for these will be announced later.

Those Who Want the Best Qualified Man for Governor have United for Jim Allen

Some voters in all elections select their candidate because of his sky-pie promises . . . smoothness, glibness, or glamour . . . ability to double-talk, straddle issues, and be all things to all the people everywhere.

HERE IS WHY ALLEN HAS FORGED TO FIRST PLACE IN THE GOVERNOR'S RACE

Thinking voters know that Jim Allen's record of service to our State and its people during 12 years in the Legislature and 4 years as Lieutenant Governor is one of the most outstanding in State history.

They know Jim Allen is a natural leader---a rugged, forceful, forthright statesman, who was voted by members of the 1953 Legislature as "the man we would like to see as Governor" by more than 3 to 1 over their next choice.

They approve Jim Allen's bold frankness in going to the heart of issues in his campaign for Governor and his flat refusal to make rash promises to any one.

They are convinced that Jim Allen has the demonstrated ability, fair-mindedness, sobriety, integrity and broad knowledge of State Government that the high office of Governor demands.

They approve Jim's forward-looking platform---his "Program of Progress," which charts the straight course for Alabama's forward march.

MEASURE THIS MAN BY WHAT HE HAS DONE – WHAT HE CAN DO FOR OUR STATE AND YOU WILL GIVE JIM ALLEN YOUR VOTE AND SUPPORT

(Pd. pol. adv. by Chilton County Friends of Jim Allen, John M. Higgins, Chrm.)

Huddleston Again Replies To False Rumors

To the Voters:

This campaign is closing. I have raised no issue against my opponent except that involved in answering attacks on me. Two attacks have been made; both are false.

First, my opponent flooded all the papers with a statement that I could retire on a pension. Three law books lying right on my desk deny this. The Alabama Constitution itself says no officer may retire on pay or a pension.

The truth is that Supreme, Appellate and Circuit Court Judges under certain conditions may be appointed Supernumerary Judges after 15 years continuous service. Any Solicitor in the State, if he applies and is appointed, may become a Supernumerary Solicitor after 25 years continuous service. But both such officers must continue to work if physically able. We have now one Supernumerary Solicitor but he is 81 years old. I am 54, and a recent check pronounced me in perfect health. I, if appointed a Supernumerary Solicitor, would be sent all over Alabama every day on criminal cases and other work. There was no excuse for this error.

Neither your Judge nor Solicitor can retire on a pension. But even if we could would you want us to thus impose two salaries on you?

The issue in this campaign should not be to do a favor to me or my opponent. My opponent if good enough lawyer to be a Solicitor can make fully as much money practicing law as being Solicitor. I can do the same. The issue should be what is best for you, your children, and your County. Which one of us would draw more bad indictments, or see draw under the wrong Code Sections and incur new trials and more expense? Which one could best help to keep our errors that would cause reversals and new trials? Which one of us from long experience would know best how to clean up a heavy docket and thus prevent continuous courts and heavy expense? Which one of us would you select to prosecute a bad crime against your family or community? With which one of us as Solicitor would you hire a special prosecutor? The Solicitor's office can waste or save more money than any office except the Commissioner's Court. Which of us would leave more money in the Treasury for roads, schools, and old age assistance?

The second attack on me has been concerning the Chilton County cases. No layman knows the law on this matter but every lawyer does. The Code makes the Attorney General the Supreme Prosecutor of the State, who can take charge of any case. He did this in these cases; just why he did I have never known. He managed the Grand Jury, drew the indictments in his office, and controlled the trial. The law says, under those facts, that the Solicitor is only his assistant and can do only as directed by him. I was directed to cross examine and address the jury. My work drew high praise from every one, the examiners saying "you are the best Solicitor in Alabama." Every defendant was convicted, but two got reversals in the Supreme Court. No solicitor can go to the Supreme Court on appeal. The law says the Attorney General "MUST" do that, and uses the word "MUST."

If there are any new trials set down in these cases, under the law, the Attorney General must do that; the Solicitor can't do it.

Pertinent to this question is the following letter addressed to the Circuit Judge and now on file in the Chilton County Circuit Clerk's office, dated March 15, 1954:

"Hon. Oakley Melton
Judge of the Circuit Court
19th Judicial Circuit
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Judge:

As you know, the Attorney General's Office has assumed control of certain cases now pending on the criminal docket in the Circuit Court of Chilton County. I note from the docket that these cases have been set beginning Wednesday, March 17, 1954.

I request that all of these cases be continued until the next call of the criminal docket, at which time I hope that some disposition may be made of each of them.

Very truly yours,
SI GARRETT,
Attorney General
By—
(Signed) BERNARD F. SYKES
Assistant Attorney General."

Please watch for and brand as false last hour attacks on me, too late for me to reply.

Sincerely your friend,
WINSTON HUDDLESTON.

COMBINE Art Linkletter's fondness for meeting people with his great curiosity and you have the reason why he makes his daily CBS radio "House Party" seem like as much fun for him as it is for the listeners . . . Every day he gets the chance to meet a dozen or so strangers and ask them all sorts of questions—about themselves, their jobs, their families and their neighbors . . . In addition, four young boys and girls come from various Los Angeles public schools every day to chat with Linkletter . .

"Sure, I like talking with people," Linkletter admits, "but best of all I enjoy talking with those four young people" . . . Linkletter confesses that he's not always sure how the youngsters will answer even the simplest of questions, but he says that's what makes that part of the program the most fun for him . . "I hope radio broadcasting will always be a source of entertainment—for me, I mean," he says "So long as it's as much fun as it is talking with people, I never want to quit." TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF CHILTON COUNTY

R. Odell Payton

In offering myself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County I would appreciate any and all consideration shown us.

I have lived in Chilton County all of my life and have worked for several business firms in Clanton.

I am a member of Providence Baptist Church.

I do not believe in showing any favoritism to any particular community, party or person.

I have been a J. P. and notary for the past 4 years for beat 16, Chilton County.

I have not made any promises to anyone. I will say this, if I am fortunate enough to be elected Sheriff of Chilton County, I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the Sheriff's force.

Should I be your next Sheriff and public servant, there are two things I would like for the people of Chilton County to know, what I would say and expect of the men who would work with me.

1. First, I would like to know if they could take the job at the wage it paid, and make a living.

2. Second. Do they think they can take the oath of this office and live by it as a public servant for the people of Chilton County as a whole regardless of party, community or person.

If elected, I will do my very best to make you, the people of Chilton County, one of the best public servants for this office you have ever had.

I will try to see you during this campaign, should I fail to see any one it will certainly not be done so intentionally.

And to them that don't know me personally ask about me in the community in which I live.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

Sincerely yours,
R. ODELL PAYTON

A Message To The Voters

As this is the last issue of the paper before the primary on May 4th I want to thank each and every one of you for the kind and courteous manner in which you have welcomed me into your homes, farms, stores, and factories. I feel sure that most of you have asked about and studied each Candidate for Sheriff as to whom you would like to have represent you as Sheriff of Chilton County. I would appreciate any and all consideration on May 4th.

I appreciate very much the interest you, the citizens, have shown by asking me the question you have concerning the enforcement of law. If I am fortunate enough to be your next Sheriff and public servant. If anyone should need help or assistance from this office, me or one of the deputies will and can be reached at any and all times of the day or night.

And the jailer will be on duty at all hours of the day and night to take care of any one apprehended or for any business for any one.

If I am chosen your next Sheriff and public servant for the next four years I will keep the door to the sheriff's office open for the public and will have some chairs for our older people to sit and rest while waiting to see about their business or to talk with me. Because this is the citizens and taxpayers of Chilton County building and if I am Sheriff I would only be a public servant for you the people.

I would want the cooperation of the people and them to be and feel welcome to come into the Sheriff's office at any time you are in town.

As to promises to any one I have not made any. Read the other Articles that I have run in both of our weekly papers for the past 4 weeks. Also in this week's paper under the heading "To Voters and Citizens of Chilton Co., R. Odell Payton."

As I have already stated in my newspaper article I am a Chilton County boy from childhood days up to the present time which is 41 years in Chilton County. And I am proud to be a Chilton Countian. Therefore I feel that I can understand the wishes of you, the good people of Chilton County. As to what you want and expect in rigid law enforcement. So if I am entrused to one of the most important offices of the county as Sheriff and public servant. If some one had some information for me, not even the men who work with me would ever know from what source that I got my information. I would just say men we've got a job to do, let's go and do it. In this way I feel that we could have the cooperation of the people and have peace and harmony in each community.

I am not tied to or by any political group or by and promises or by financial help from any one. In fact I am on my own merits, trying to be your next Sheriff and public servant for the next 4 years.

I am for better law enforcement to entice more people and more industries to come to Chilton County. In fact if I were Sheriff I would work with the majority of the people on anything for the betterment of you the people, young and old, of Chilton County and other counties.

If I am nominated and elected Sheriff, me and the men who work with me would wear same kind of uniform like unto for instance, our state foresters uniform say brown khaki or dark green and too, the car or cars if more than one to be used, have them painted two colors and with the words "Sheriff" on front and rear bumper and each side the words "Sheriff of Chilton County. My reason for saying this looks at our state Highway Ptrol cars for instance. It is a known fact that if for any reason any one needs help they are easily identified when you meet one by the way it is painted. Therefore by wearing some kind of uniform and the car or cars being painted two colors and the letters for identification any one needing help immediately can stop or contact the car or cars and know who he is stopping for help.

To you the Citizens and my friends of Chilton County that I have not had the pleasure of meeting and to talk to in person, please accept this as a personal message to you from me. I sincerely wish I had 30 more days to make contact with you but the time is short, only 4 more days to work before the election. So if I fail to see any one of you before election day it will not be done so intentionally. So please go to the polls on May 4th and vote your honest conviction. I sincerely solicit your vote and influence on May 4th.

Your friend,
R. ODELL PAYTON

LIBRARY: May I share some of my reading with you? Following is a question from Pierce Bertaux: "The first thing to be grasped about French Communism is how rigid and mechanical it is. To begin with its thinking is sterile. Since the death of Lenin Communism has had no thinkers at all, for Lenin was a genius and, like a great tree, nothing has been able to grow in communism beneath the shade. If one reads Lenin carefully one can always decide what the Communists plan next."

After Mr. Bertaux was retired from the headship of the French Surete Nationals, speaking of what he would best do, he said, "I think mostly about politics these days, for politics is where medicine was three hundred years ago—a science of guesswork and hope. Yet somehow there must be a way of making politics exact, of linking thought and action, of finding an analysis so that freedom remains healthy and works. For France cannot go on this way, it must change or it will perish." This is quoted from page 129 of Fire in the Ashes, by T. H. White.

Monday I read a talk given by Clifford F. Hood, President of the United States Steel Corporation. I was expecting to read about steel. He didn't say a word about steel! He describes the years of our fathers when ('in every aspect of life, men who guided and set standards were devoted to a set of ethical and moral principles that had their beginning in the bedrock of religious training. Judgment on Jeroboam.

Lesson for May 2: I Kings 14: 5-10a, 12-16.

Golden Text: Deuteronomy 8: 11.

Jeroboam was a politician who flouted God but could not escape a lingering fear of Jehovah. So, after the division of the kingdom, he was concerned to woo his people away from the worship at Jerusalem and to accomplish this he set up sanctuaries at Bethel and at Dan where golden calves served as images of God.

This was in the result a real form of idolatry and in the time of great need it did not satisfy the man who had instituted it. When the king's son fell seriously ill, Jeroboam planned to turn secretly to Jehovah for help. So he sent the queen, disguised as a peasant woman, to the prophet Ahijah to inquire of him about the issue of the son's illness.

The prophet, told by the Lord of the deception, greeted the woman as the wife of Jeroboam. Then he declared to her the bitter truth—that the son would die, that her husband would lose his throne, and that at length the kingdom would be destroyed and the people scattered by the terrible Assyrians.

They who sit in the seats of the mighty can bring upon themselves and their people utter ruin by their wickedness. Some are finding now a disposition of our people to turn to God in this time of "cold war" and fire misgivings. Let us pray that those in authority may put their last reliance upon God.

For U. S. SENATOR

The Farmer's Friend

Cong. LAURIE BATTLE will give Alabama farmers better representation when he is elected their U. S. Senator. He will ask for assignment to the Senate Agriculture Committee where he can serve the farmers more efficiently. Alabama does not have a representative on that committee now and has not had one since the late beloved Senator John Bankhead served as a member. Cong. LAURIE BATTLE has served Alabama farmers capably and energetically during his eight years as a Democratic member of the House. He always has supported the Democratic farm programs and worked for needed adjustments in them. LAURIE BATTLE voted for housing loans to veterans; for "farmhouse loans"; for increase in peanut acreage; for development of marketing facilities on perishable products; for more money and storage for the CCC; for REA telephone expansion; for more money for AAA payments; school lunches and farm tenant loans. LAURIE BATTLE realizes Alabama farmers are faced with tremendous problems today. As a U. S. Senator he will work with our farmers to find just, economical solutions to these problems. His interest in the farmer was emphasized last year when he worked with other members of the House and helped pass a bill to provide farmers with 22¼ million acres of cotton. The Senate did not even act on this bill until this year and then whacked more than 1,000,000 acres off the allotment. LAURIE BATTLE has testified before committees, spoken on the floor of the House and worked with farm leaders in behalf of the farmer. He received a letter of thanks and commendation from Cong. Harold Cooley, former Democratic Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, for his work for farmers.

Help Smash Machine Politics in Alabama!

Elect

LAURIE C. BATTLE

U. S. Senator

Over the years John Sparkman has master-minded the most ruthless political machine our State has ever known.

OUT-OF-STATE POLITICAL ORGANIZERS CALLED SOUTH TO ALABAMA

Pleas for help from the desperate leaders of the Sparkman machine have brought Out-Of-State professionals with their slush funds into Alabama in a frantic last minute attempt to stem the rising Battle tide, hoping to keep Sparkman—their rubber stamp—in the U. S. Senate.

There is positive proof that all of these outsiders are leading the fight to beat Battle:

THE POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE of the C.I.O.—Jack Kroll, National PAC Director from New York, and his cohorts, have been in Alabama directing Sparkman's campaign. Workers in Alabama resent this outside interference which is pushing for F.E.P.C. and other anti-South force bills.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE, whose radical left-wing leaders seek to end segregation in the South and to destroy the friendly relations which have long existed between the races.

Alabama voters, on May 4th, will overwhelmingly repudiate this effort of outsiders who are against our Southern customs and traditions, to tell them how to vote. They will . . .

By casting this ballot I do pledge myself to abide by the result of this Primary Election and to aid and support all the nominees thereof in the ensuing General Election.

Dear friends:

This is my personal plea for your support in the May 4th primary. I promise you that if I am elected your tax collector I will give you honest, efficient administration of the office and do all within my power to make a good county official.

I would like to see all of you personally but of course this is impossible. I will deeply appreciate your support and influence in my behalf. When I offer you as my platform honesty, efficiency, courteous service and strict personal attention to the citizens of this county, no candidate can offer more.

Let me urge you to go to the polls on May 4th and Vote.

VOTE FOR E. A. 'Red' FULMER

(Pd. pol. adv. by E. A. (Red) Fulmer, Clanton, Ala.)

Candidate For Representative Makes Stand On Road Bill

I have attempted to contact each of you concerning your support in my campaign for Representative to the State Legislature from Chilton County. I have been limited somewhat in this, due to the fact of my teaching school and trying to meet the obligations which I owe my clients. But I wish to take this occasion to thank each of you for the courtesies and aid which you have extended to me.

Many of my friends have been concerned about a rumor that has been intentionally circulated that I was opposed to the organization of the Board of Revenue and Control as it now exist. This is completely untrue and such rumor has no basis or foundation. I have always been inclined to favor the present system due to the fact that it has an effective procedure for the purchasing of materials and for the auditing of these purchase records. I have expressed myself along these lines many times and not once have I made any expressions contradictory.

It is true that I have been opposed to some of the measures which have been attempted by the present governing body of this County. I opposed the construction of a County Court House without the vote and approval of the people, and the by-pass of the City of Clanton by U. S. Highway 31. The opposition which I voiced in these matters was opposition made by me as an individual citizen and in no manner would affect the obligations which I would assume if elected your Representative. However, at no time have I ever voiced any opposition to the law governing the Board of Revenue and Control as it now exist.

I feel that perhaps these statements might clarify my stand in this matter, and I can assure you that if elected, my goal will be trying to build something constructive for our County and not the tearing down and destroying of effective agencies which now exist.

Again I wish to earnestly solicit your support and aid in this campaign, and I pledge to you, that if elected, I will work diligently to give you the progressive and honest representation which you desire.

BETTER SPEECH CLUB VISITS MOUNDVILLE AND THE UNIVERSITY

Knowing that former Better Speech groups had annually made trips to Moundville on Good Friday, we of 1953-1954 were expecting to follow the custom. Our interest was greatly increased, when, in early March a letter was sent by our vice president asking permission for our group to visit Mound State Park. Even greater interest was felt when the reply came.

Early in the year, in connection with our social studies work, we learned that very early civilizations had been unearthed in Alaska, Mexico and Central America. Recently in our studies we learned of the excavations being made in Peru. How we did long to see some of the remains of ancient people! Our wishes were increased and each leader made, and read to us, rules to care for us during the trip. Mrs. Lineberry arranged to have cars to carry us.

At last came Good Friday, April 9. Should we, the Better Speech Club, be afraid of rain? Oh no, not we! Into the lunch baskets were crowded with note books, pencils, maps and best of all, delicious picnic lunches! The hard rain the night before had furnished nature a wonderful bath. Every shrub and tree, yes, even the grasses gleamed in cleanliness. Happily we rolled along through, Chilton, Bibb, Tuscaloosa and into Hale County, stopping only once for rest and refreshments.

How astonished we were to see all those mounds, their closeness and their varying heights. Among them we circled until we reached the monument. Immediately we formed in our squad groups, and lead by the hostess, Mrs. Lewis, entered the museum. Mr. De Jarnette met us in the South Pit where he lectured to us on the history and the culture of the ancient moundvillians. Standing around the enclosure, we gazed down on the burials and listened intently. 'Twas well we did, for we were given questions to be answered later [illegible]. We learned that these were peace-loving people who grew food, hunted, fished, ornamented their bodies, and formed pottery with unique designs. They were deeply religious, as is indicated by the food and water jars placed in each burial. These were to be enjoyed by the dead on his or her way to the Happy Hunting ground. In North Pit we saw many more burials and learned how to distinguish a female skull from a male. It was here that we were examined by Mr. De Jarnette, our guide, on the questions given us earlier.

Upon leaving the museum, we hastened down to the picnic area where we bought drinks and were about to arrange ourselves around the outdoor, but sheltered tables when Mr. De Jarnette opened the club house for us. How cozy it was in there! The boys helped to stretch the tables and arranged the folding chairs. Bobby Ellison offered thanks. A merrier or more orderly group you've never seen. Lunch being over we ran out to the banks of the Black Warrior to get a close view of that well-known stream. Into the cars we piled then, heading for Mound B—fifty-eight and one feet high with an area of two acres. Although it was misty and damp we raced up to the top. What a view! Why we could see for miles.

Our next stop was at Smith Hall. Dr. Walter Jones took charge of our group, there. The high points of interest were a collection of stones shown in their natural colorings, a replica of Birmingham's first iron foundry, various [illegible] of rare rock formations, [illegible] and some dinosaur [illegible]. Dr. Walter Jones very kindly took from among his treasures a one-pound gold nugget from an Alabama mine and let each of us handle it. What an experience! Its worth is valued at 4,000 dollars. He also brought out a real Kimberly diamond from the mines of South Africa for us to see.

We drove through the Bryce Hospital grounds and through the attractive surroundings out at the Partlow Home for Children. At the Amelia Gorgas Library on the University campus, Mrs. Cody showed us the automatic feature at the desk and took us back to the cards explaining their use to us. We visited the Alabama room in this building.

For all the pleasure of, and information derived from, this remarkable excursion, we are grateful to the mothers and fathers who made it possible for us to go.

A TRIP TO MOUNDVILLE

O'er to Moundville we did go
Our cars swaying to and fro
It seems to us we'd ne'er get there
As swiftly we flew through the air
Then, at Brent, we all did stop
[illegible] each head did pop
[illegible] that little red
[illegible] cream gain new [illegible] reached the park.
[illegible] stacked green and
In the [illegible] we were warm
And to their rule we did conform.
The Walker lovers looked a dream
Climbing up itself a theme.
At Mound B, then, we did stop
Although the misty rain did drop
We took no time to fret or stall
For we were eager to see Smith Hall
'Twas well we were, for there we saw
That nugget of gold without a flaw
There, too, we saw that diamond bright,
Which from South America had it sent.
There proudly stood the Kodiak bear,
With claws menacing and brownish hair.
And [illegible] stupified to see
[illegible] earth so huge could be.

From HOWARD BOOCKHOLDT

FRIENDS:

The many complimentary remarks you have made to me during my campaign about my past work for you have been very encouraging. Probably the one that has meant most to me is the statement that so many of you have made that I have tried to be fair and treat all alike. This has been one of my chief desires, and I will do my dead-level best to continue in this manner if re-elected.

Please consider the advantage to your children in having a person with experience as chief administrator of their schools.

Tune in on station WKLF on Saturday, May 1 at 12:45 and on Monday, May 3 at 7:00 a. m. to hear me discuss my candidacy.

I will deeply appreciate your vote and influence next Tuesday.

Sincerely,
HOWARD BOOCKHOLDT

Superintendent of Education of Chilton County and

Candidate for re-election

(Pd. pol. adv. by Howard Boockholdt, Clanton, Ala.)

To The Voters Of Chilton County

I am a candidate for reelection to the Office of County Solicitor of the County in the coming May 4th Primary. You elected me to this office four years ago.

When I assumed the duties of this office I took an oath to faithfully and honestly discharge the duties of the office. I have done this impartially and without fear or favor. I have cooperated and worked with the Circuit Solicitor, the Attorney Generals Office, the Public Welfare Department of the County, the Juvenile Court of the County, the School Attendance Officers of the County, the Highway Patrolmen, the Sheriff's Office, the State A. B. C. Agents, the Veterans Service Officer, the Federal Narcotics Agents, and even the F.B.I. Agents. I have attended every Grand Jury and rendered every assistance possible and drawn numerous indictments returned by the Grand Juries.

The Sheriff's Office has apprehended twenty-six automobiles in the last four years for transporting prohibited liquors and it has been my duty to file the proper legal proceedings to have these cars sold as contraband. I have prosecuted over 4600 Criminal Cases in the Inferior Law Court of the County which is held the first Monday of each month. I have, with the help of the Circuit Solicitor, prosecuted 1068 Criminal Cases in the Circuit Courts before the Circuit Judge. I have presented and assisted in presenting more than 700 Criminal Cases to Grand Juries of the County. I am called on daily by various County Officials for legal assistance affecting their offices. As your County Solicitor and with the aid of the Sheriff's Office I have kept honky-tonks, gambling houses and gambling devices out of Chilton County. If reelected they will continue to remain without the borders of our good county. I expect to remain in Chilton County the remainder of my life. I hope never to see the day when the good name of Chilton County shall be ruined by inefficient law enforcement and be reflected upon as Shelby County or Phenix City have been in recent years.

Numerous frivolous cases never reach the Courts because of my valuable experience in handling such matters.

Many cases in the Courts are immediately disposed of by pleas. This saves much of the taxpayers money. It comes from experience and the ability to handle and dispose of Criminal Cases.

As your Solicitor I have endeavored at all times to be most kind and considerate of everyone found in trouble. I have tried at all times to willingly counsel with and advise all who came to my office. I have endeavored to be firm in my duties as Solicitor and at the same time be a friend to those in trouble. This will continue to be my policy if re-elected to this office.

I am most grateful to my many friends county wide who have given me encouragement, their assurance of support, and their expressions of my ability to serve in this office in my efforts to be re-elected.

Your continued confidence, good will, support, vote and influence will ever be appreciated.

Sincerely

Alvin B. "Buster" Foshee

MR. LeBARON TO DIRECT PROGRAM OF MUSIC AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Mr. Harrison D. LeBaron, Director of the School of Music of Alabama College, Montevallo, Alabama, has accepted a position with the First Baptist Church of Clanton as director of the music program and church organist. Mr. LeBaron will begin his work with the church Sunday morning. The church feels most fortunate in being able to secure the services of this man, who has directed the program of music at Alabama College for many years.

As announced elsewhere in this paper, the Alabama College Glee Club will present a program of sacred music in the church Sunday evening at eight o'clock. This program will be under the direction of Mr. LeBaron.

Last Sunday morning the members of the First Baptist church reluctantly closed a long and happy relationship with Mrs. Erle Ellis as organist and Mrs. Raymond Mims as choir director. As a token of esteem and the appreciation of the fine work which they have done the church presented them with identical 21-jewel Bulova watches. It is the sincere hope of the church that sometime in the future the church will again be able to have the services of these fine musicians.

THANK YOU AGAIN FROM

J. S. "Buster" Sanders TO Mr. And Mrs. Chilton County

You have been so very kind to me every moment of my campaign, and where you, I am thinking of people from every station of life who are citizens of Chilton County because I feel that it has been my privilege to contact a portion of you from all walks of life in this county. And have found you all fair, courteous and interesting with reference to the various candidates seeking State and County offices and at no time have any one of you led me to believe that you thought I might be a candidate who was being sponsored by political groups or other organizations that might cause me to become anything other than a free and independent candidate of true Southern Democratic ideals, all of which I am very proud, and to which I can answer that I am unobilgated to any pact or faction that would retard the exercise of free dealings with all classes at all times and at any place, as you well know there are five of we men seeking Democratic Nomination for Sheriff of Chilton County and as I pay you your due respectful thanks I would also like to thank each of my opponents for his clean and respected manner of campaigning in opposition to me, you have been grand boys.

Should a majority of the voters of our County see fit to nominate me on May 4th, I assure you my appreciation shall be a joyous one, yet equally as humble.

I am positive that I can serve you as Sheriff in a manner that will be progressive to our county, beneficial to both the law abiders and violators, and a credit to county law enforcement by being free and unprejudiced.

Again assuring you of my deep appreciation and humble gratitude for your support next Tuesday, I am

ISABELLA NEWS

(MRS. J. H. WELLS)

Mulberry Church—

We enjoyed the fine Sun[illegible] at Mulberry April 4th. There was a good record for our class; however, we should make it better. We did not have any special happenings at Mulberry Sunday. Bro. Dukes preached two of his good messages, taking his text from the 3rd chapter of Gen.

Next Wednesday night May 5th will be family night at Mulberry. Make your plans to be present.

On Sunday afternoon May 1 at 3 p.m. Mr Garland Smith will be baptized in the creek in Mr Moore's pasture.

The Jr. G.A.'s and their counselor, Mrs. Lewis McGee met in their regular meeting with Judy Jackson on Monday afternoon April 26. There were ten members present. After a short business meeting a missionary program taken from the Tell Magazine was given. A love gift of fruit, juices, etc., was given by girls. It was presented to Mrs Emma Manning at her home by the Jr. G.A. counselor.

Don't forget our church library. We have a book that will interest everyone of you.

Music Recital—

If you missed the music recital presented by Miss Truman Stuckey's pupils and the Glee Club at Isabella High School on Friday evening April 23, you missed a treat. The scenery of the stage represented an old fashioned garden which was very attractive and beautiful. Each music pupil gave a piano solo. There were a number of songs presented by the Glee Club and a piano duet. Two solos were given by Miss Jean Veasey and Edith Leach.

This Friday night April 30th the 5th Class will present their class play. The public is invited. The class promises to give an evening of fun and laughter to everyone.

Mr Grover Rasberry of Jacksonville, Fla. is visiting relatives in our community this week.

Mrs Clyde Hightower and daughter, Kay, will visit with her father and mother-in-law in Fruithurst for another week.

Mr and Mrs Chester Miller and Tommy were Tuesday evening guest of the Lewis McGees.

Mrs Ozesa Green and boys returned back to Alabama College Monday after spending the spring holidays here at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P Jones and Judith Ann of Pensacola, Fla. visited the former's mother and sisters here this past week end.

Mr and Mrs E. C. Lecroy visited Mrs R. W. Stuckey in Bullock Co., hospital Sunday afternoon.

Mrs Emma Masning is slowly improving at her home from virus flu. She has with her now Miss Clara Mae Vines of near Lock 12. She wants to thank everyone again for the many cards she has received and all the visits made since she has been ill.

Mrs C. T. Little returned to her home in Winchester, Tenn Tuesday after visiting Mrs Manning for over a week.

My Pet Peeve by Mike Bennett

THE movie about the invisible man has always intrigued me, perhaps because I sometimes feel a kinship with the hero of the story.

Take when I fight my way through the crowds to a refreshment stand to buy a cool bottle of soda on a warm day. After I get up to the counter, that's when it happens. I wave my arms, I bang on the counter, I jingle coins, but I can't get the attention of the people selling drinks. They look right through me—and wait on the fellow standing next to me.

Same thing happens when I try to get the attention of the peanut vendor at the ball park. Politely at first, I signal with my hand. I wave it back and forth. I stand up. But he still doesn't see me. Forty rows down, he looks up at where I am, smiles and turns off in the other direction.

Like I say, it's surely my imagination. I'm not invisible at all. It hurts when I pinch myself. I can make myself real visible, however, by shouting at the top of my lungs. Only trouble is, I get so self-conscious when everyone looks down their nose at me.

I don't shout very often. In fact, I no longer stand up at ball games to get the attention of the peanut man. I found out that when I try to get his attention in this way I usually get instead a barrage of empty peanut bags, popcorn boxes and crumpled paper programs.

I fear a pop bottle, which is all I need to convince me I am as visible as the man in the dark suit behind home plate.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank our many friends for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our wife and mother, Mrs. Bettie Williams.

Words cannot express our appreciation.

A. P. Williams and children.

In January of this year, 59.8 million Americans had jobs—4.4 million more than in January 1947 when postwar prosperity began.

Workers at a single midwestern aircraft plant live in 140 towns in Kansas and Oklahoma.

...if only for THEIR sakes

. . . learn how to protect yourself from death from cancer. They need you!

And for your sake and theirs you must keep on remembering that the best cancer "insurance" is:

FIRST . . . to make a habit of periodic health check-ups no matter how well you may feel, always including a thorough examination of the skin, mouth, lungs and rectum and (for women) the breasts and generative tract.

SECOND . . . to learn the seven danger signals that may mean cancer, and go straight to the doctor at the first sign of any one of them—(1) Any sore that does not heal (2) A lump or thickening, in the breast or elsewhere (3) Unusual bleeding or discharge (4) Any change in a wart or mole (5) Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing (6) Persistent hoarseness or cough (7) Any change in normal bowel habits.

I Promise You

If I am elected to serve you four more years in the State Legislature I will continue to serve all the people and not a chosen few.

I will continue to fight for better roads, better schools and better government.

I will continue to fight for old age pensions and human welfare. I stand behind the present Board of Revenue and Control and firmly believe that our county government and road system is surpassed by none in the state.

JIM PLOTT

FOR THE LEGISLATURE

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY:

Certainly there is danger at a railroad crossing. Electing your officials can also be dangerous.

VOTE

According to State and Federal reports there is less whiskey in Chilton County now than there has been in the past sixteen years.

Then do you wonder at the false rumors?

Your Sheriff's Office is one of the most important offices in our county. Because the peace and behavior in every community depends on the type of sheriff we have.

There has not been any organized crime in Chilton County since I've been sheriff and there won't be any as long as God gives me strength and you people keep me in a position to fight crime.

I will diligently enforce the whiskey, gambling, dope peddling, and other laws so long as I'm an officer.

If you were selecting a teacher for your school, wouldn't you want one that had been trained for the job? The same should apply in selecting your sheriff. I am the only candidate for sheriff that has had both training and experience in law enforcement.

Except for 21 months that I served as a combat soldier in Europe during World War II, I have been serving you here for the past (10) years as a law enforcement officer, I feel that you know my record as an officer. I served our country honorably during World War II, I have served you honorably this term as Sheriff. I will still serve you Honorably when you elect me to another term.

No Bootleggers, gamblers, dope peddler, chicken fighters nor any one else has contributed one cent to my campaign, because when you re-elect me I don't want to be obligated any more to one person than another. I believe in fair and impartial law enforcement.

I have not and will not take any part in "Mud-Slinging," for I believe our county needs builders instead of knockers.

I have been highly complimented by every Grand Jury during my term as Sheriff—I will strive to keep it that way.

No official is better than his record. The duties of your sheriff's office have kept me very busy and I have not neglected the office to solicit your vote because I felt that you would benefit more by my staying on the job. However, I do sincerely want your vote and support. I would like at this time to thank all my friends and supporters for their assistance and encouragement during this campaign.

STOP LOOK THINK AND THEN VOTE

remembering that a good record is far better than a lot of promises.

IS YOUR NET FARM INCOME GETTING THE SQUEEZE?

The prices of most farm products ARE DOWN. The cost of what farmers have to buy HAS NOT declined. The margin of profit is LESS. These are facts faced by many farmers—

A PRICE - COST SQUEEZE!

Because of these very conditions, farmers may need MORE CREDIT — LONG-TERM CREDIT — the kind that is available in a LAND BANK LOAN. These loans are made for terms of 5 years up to 40 years, at 4 PER CENT interest—the LOWEST rate in the history of farm mortgage lending.

LAND BANK LOANS carry other special benefits, in addition to the low interest and long time in which to repay. A LAND BANK LOAN may be REPAID IN FULL at any time WITHOUT CHARGE for that privilege. You only have to pay the principal, and interest earned to date of payment.

LAND BANK LOANS are made through and serviced by your local NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION, which is managed by your own neighbors and friends.

If you NEED MORE OPERATING CAPITAL—if you have an accumulation of SCATTERED DEBTS—

SCANNING THE NEWS

More than nine-tenths of the bituminous coal produced in Missouri comes from surface mines.

Michigan established the first state agricultural college in the United States in 1857. Maryland and Pennsylvania followed in 1859

In 1837 the talk was not deficits, but rather of surpluses, for in that year the Treasury disbursed $28 million of excess revenue to the states

MANY Washington observers have recently expressed the idea that the best thing about the McCarthy-Army dispute was the fact that it for so long kept the minds of many Americans from dwelling too much upon the Indo-China situation.

The early-April debate in Congress on the crisis in Indo-China would have received wide nationwide play had it alone been the big news story of the moment.

In this debate, the pattern of Congressional thought was so clearly outlined as to hint at what action Congress might prefer when the situation reached the "showdown" stage. When the United States was urging its allies to back the "warning" to the Chinese Reds, Senate floor leader Senator William F Knowland of California asked that these allies be ready to contribute their share of military strength if the free world had to fight to guard Southeast Asia

Senator Henry M. Jackson, Democrat of Washington, with apparent approval of some of his colleagues, called for the president to step forth with concrete statements as to what he would require in the way of backing for a Indo-China policy, declaring the Democrats would be [illegible] to help.

Senator Stuart Symington, Democrat of Missouri, voiced the opinion that the United States appeared to be approaching a great military test in Asia and at the same time was reducing the military establishment.

Senator John Stennis, Democrat of Mississippi, an early critic of what he called a move toward United States involvement, announced that he nevertheless was prepared to see Congress go to war if necessary, always provided that the United States did not go it alone.

A significant fact was that the entire hour and one-half discussion brought out only a single outright expression of opposition in any and all circumstances to the intervention of United States troops in Indo-China. This came from Senator Dirksen, who announced opposition to any such course, contending that our troops were not at all needed there.

Had Indo-China policy shared the spotlight alone, with no diverting of attention to the McCarthy-Army situation, Congress might have been forced to push action on a definite course to be followed.

Ensuing developments are indicative of the fact that the United States has apparently resolved itself to the fact that it must fight aggression in critical areas with "bluff," material aid to allies, and if need be, ground forces, although the latter course is always the last resort.

And, it seems, our leaders are playing this dangerous game with cards held close to the chest—so John Q. Public will not be afflicted with needless cases of "war worries."

GEORGE D. SMITH

FOR

TAX COLLECTOR

Since announcing my candidacy for the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County, I have worked hard and conducted my campaign cleanly and honestly.

I am my own campign manager and I have conducted my campaign out in the open with nothing hidden. My political strategy has been very simple. I have seen as many people as was humanly possible, asking each for his or her help and promising nothing but honest, efficent and friendly service to all, nor have I been asked to promise anything but honest, efficient and friendly service to all. I have campaigned only for myself, neither campaigning for nor against another candidate

With the exception of approximately four years spent as a Naval Aviator during World War II, my entire life has been directly connected with agriculture. I feel that my farm background, plus my B. S. degree in Agriculture Education from Auburn, and 4¼ years experience teaching Agriculture has acquainted me with many of the problems faced by the people of Chilton County, and has qualified me for the position of Leadership in an Agricultural county such as ours.

Since making a door-to-door canvass during my campaign I am more fully aware of the conditions and needs of our county, and if elected, will do all in my power to better these conditions and make our county a better place in which to live.

With closing remarks I wish to thank the other candidates in this election and the people of this county for the friendly manner in which I have been received. I have thoroughly enjoyed making new friends and renewing old acquaintances, and I hope to have the pleasure of seeing you again soon.

Go to the polls on May 4th and cast your vote according to your honest convictions

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Too much praise cannot be heaped upon the head of Leo Thompson for his dedication and groundbreaking ceremony at the Hospital site Monday morning. Of course we know it took plenty of help and our hat is off to those many who so graciously served to make the ceremony what it was. Our junior Senator John Sparkman and our Congressman Armistead Selden were visitors to the ceremony, among many others. It was a notable affair and the general public was invited. If you missed it—it was your own fault.

Armistead Selden and John Sparkman paid us a visit after the ground-breaking ceremony Monday We mention Congressman Selden first because he was first to make his call and too, he gave us a nine dollar advertisement for the paper this week. We are not sure John had nine dollars left after his hectic campaign for United States Senator against his three opponents. Kidding aside, we're very proud of our representation in Washington. Both are fine Christian gentlemen.

Did you hear about the fellow down here about Enterprise community who heard that a factory up north was interested in buying bull frog skins? He wired the company that he could supply any amount up to 100,000 on demand. Needing the skins badly the factory wired him to send the 100,000 skins immediately. About ten days later a single dried frog skin arrived at the factory with this notice: "Gents: I'm sorry about this, but here's all the frog skins there were. The noise sure fooled me."

We have never seen so much interest shown in any election as was shown in the election held Tuesday. Whether you have a winner or a loser it was good to see so many of our people taking an interest in our government. It is the only way to have good government and the sooner the people learn that their troubles can be settled by an active interest in who their elected officials will be, the sooner they will stop cussing our public officials and start helping to make their administration of the office they serve more honorable.

John Mullins said Tuesday morning that he had heard of people being caught with their bretches down but he was caught with his up—in a moth proof bag.

A local attorney tells this one. We don't thing he would appreciate us using his name so we will leave it anonymous. A client called him to ask what the law was on keeping alcoholic beverages in the home if it is used for medicine, and the conversation went something like this:

"Can I keep whiskey in my home if it is for medicine?"

I don't believe there is any provision for keeping whiskey for that purpose," answered the attorney. "How much whiskey do you keep for this purpose."

"A gallon," returned the client.

Here's an item sent us from a "Clanton Democrat" in Little Rock, Ark., and he asks that we print it. He evidently clipped it from a Little Rock newspaper and the title was "Retaliation."

Remember the simple and highly effective slogan with which the Republicans heckled the Democrats several years before the change of administrations in 1952? It was that two-word dilly: "Had Enough?

There now appears to be a counter-campaign by the Democrats. On the windows of a growing number of automobiles in Our Town there now appear stickers saying simply: Don't Blame Me—I Voted Democratic.

They were there but there just wasn't enough of them.

BASEBALL MEETING

All ball players and backers are requested to meet at Thorsby ball park at 2:00 p. m. for the purpose of organizing a ball team.

Lomax had a winning team last year. Played 36 games, won 25 and lost 11.

Bull Watkins will be at this meeting in person.

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY

I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the support given me in the May 4th election You have honored me with your office of County Solicitor three terms. I have served you to the best of my ability treating everyone fair and impartially.

A majority of the voters have seen fit to make a change in the Solicitor's Office and I humbly accept your wishes. I congratulate my opponent who has been nominated, and as a citizen of the county, will cooperate with him for continued fair, clean, and honest law enforcement during his administration.

Respectfully yours,
A. E. FOSHEE.

RAGS QUITS THE MAIL ROUTE

For fifteen years Rags, apparently an Airedale, has made the rounds of a postal route in Haverstraw, New York. Rags met Postman John Simco at a pick-up box near the restaurant of her master. She accompanied the postman on his route that morning and until four that afternoon. She continued daily, without fail

When Simco stopped to chat too long with someone on his route, Rags hurried him along with some vicious barking. It is even said that Rags gave up her steady boy-friend, when he refused to follow her on the postal rounds, after two years of matrimony.

In other words, Rags put her job above everything else. Recently, however, Rags' eyesight began to fail and her owner decided he would have to lock her up and end her postal duties. Simco didn't feel quite right about it so he wrote Postmaster-General Summerfield in an effort to get some recognition for the faithful canine.

Not long ago, Summerfield wrote the postman a letter of commendation in behalf of the carrier's faithful friend. Summerfield stated that the letter was intended to be a citation for Rags' "faithful service to the United States postal service."

She says she completely forgot how to laugh or even smile. She couldn't remember when she had laughed out loud. But she does remember the first time that she felt like laughing. Instead of laughing, however, she went into hysterics and cried. After that she decided to "fix" a smile on her face each morning and wear it all day. One who has ever done this knows that by night her face is aching from the effort. But finally it became a habit and she didn't have to try because by now she felt happy again.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Funds for operation of all of the governmental departments were approved last week when the House of Representatives voted approximately $28.7 billion in new money for the Defense Department. The House-approved bill carries some $1.2 billion less in new funds than President Eisenhower had recommended for national defense. Yet, added to the $38 billion carried over from previous appropriations, a grand total of nearly $67 billion will be available for defense spending in fiscal year 1955 if the Senate accepts the House bill.

In reporting the bill, the House Appropriations Committee listed several reasons for recommending less than the amount requested by the Administration. The committee report pointed out that the largest part of the cut was made by the Army, Navy and Air Force, and that the Committee itself took responsibility for only $541 million of the cut. The chief reason for the $541 million cut, according to the Committee, is a new military philosophy. As explained by Admiral Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the military concept is to "prepare for the long pull instead of the short crisis, and the problem is to build a military structure balanced as to the various elements as we see them, and one capable of being supported from an available economic standpoint and personnel standpoint and material standpoint."

Other reasons given by the committee for recommending a military budget below the Administration's estimates include: (1) improved weapons and a greater reliance on air power; (2) the end of the Korean War; (3) the increased strength of the NATO nations and the greatly improved armies of South Korean Army; (5) excess fund during prior fiscal years, of which large portions continued available in 1955; and (6) the increasing efficiency and wider application of sound business methods in the Defense Department.

Air Power Stressed

The so-called "new look" in the military places greater emphasis on the Air Force than ever before in history. New funds in the amount of $10.8 billion were approved for the Air Force, providing for continual buildup of air strength toward the Administration's goal of 137 wings by June 30, 1957. If the program for increased Air Force strength works out as planned there will be approximately 970,000 members of this service by June 30, 1957. In addition to regular wing strength, the plan calls for a gradual increase in the Air National Guard and Reserves until the 1957 goal of 30 reserve wings is reached. To support these forces, both the regulars and the Guard and Reserves, the Air Force plan to maintain an active aircraft inventory ranging from 21010 on Jun 30, 1954, to 25,710 on June 30, 1957

For the Department of the Army and House-passed appropriations bill designates $7.6 billion in new funds. This does not include the $58 million approved for use by the Army for civilian relief in Korea. The budget for the Army is predicated on a military manpower strength at the end of fiscal year 1955 of 1,172,000. Although Army personnel will number 173,000 less than at the end of December, 1953, our Army will still be the greatest ever maintained by the United States on a full-year basis in the absence of actual warfare.

More Aircraft and Ships

The defense appropriations bill allots $9.7 billion to the Department of the Navy (which includes the Marine Corps), with all but $34 million of the total being new funds. The Navy's budget for the current fiscal year is $9.36 billion. The chief reason for increasing this appropriation for 1955 is the need for the end of fiscal 1955, the Navy additional aircraft and ships. At hopes to haxe 682,000 personnel, excludin gmidshipmen and avaiation cadets, while the Marine Corps' goal is 215,005 personnel.

The defense bill also provides funds for the National Security Training Commission, for the Office of the Secretary of Defense, and for intelligence activities. The term "intelligence activities" refers to all the services and includes such matters as claims, retired pay, contingencies, emergency funds, reserve funds and facilities, construction of ships for Military Sea Transportation Service, and the Court of Military Appeals.

Rep. Emest Gruenter (R-NY) offered controversial amendment to defense appropriations bill to prevent the use of United States troops in Indo-China or anywhere else without the consent of Congress. President Eisenhower called for defeat of the amendment, saying that it would put an artificial restraint on his executive powers and would hamper his ability to carry on a flexible world strategy situation. At the same time, he assured the American people he would during the uncertain international not put the nation into war in Indo-China or any other place without prior consent of Congress

When the issue came to a vote, with the President's assurance House members defeated the move to restrict the President's power to send troops overseas by a 215 to 37 vote.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Two of the four Indian nations holding about a fourth of the land in Alabama in the first half of the 1800s accepted the inevitable after Congress passed the removal act (providing for swapping of Alabama land for land beyond the Mississippi River) and moved in 1834 and 1836. They were the Choctaws and Chickasaws

The Creek and Cherokee Indians were not so easily persuaded to move from their lands in Alabama and many Cherokees denounced treaties made by their chiefs and refused to move

The Cherokee Indians had lived in what is now Alabama for centuries and by the time land-hungry whites were trying to drive them off their land they were no longer savages looking for scalps.

Many of the Cherokee Indians in Georgia in the first half of the 1800's were civilized farmers who owned hundreds of slaves and grew wheat, corn, cotton, potatoes and other crops

Alabama's Cherokee Indians had learned to spin and weave, grind grain and saw lumber. They owned a number of cotton gins and operated ferries on the streams.

Many of the Cherokee Indians in early Alabama had become Christians A number of them had learned to read and write both Cherokee and English in schools established for them.

Because the white men wanted the Indians' land in Alabama, they had to go, and Gen. Winfield Scott and 7,000 soldiers were sent to round them up and escort them to the Mississippi River.

The Creek Indians, who owned the largest tract of Alabama land, gave the most trouble when efforts were made in the 1800 to move them beyond the Mississippi River. They made no effort to get off their land

White men began moving in on Creek Indian lands when they failed to move under the provisions of the Removal Act. The Indians protested and the government ordered troops from Fort Mitchell to drive the whites off.

After trouble between the State of Alabama and the federal government over the settlement of the land problem with the Indians, it was necessary to get the Creeks to give up their land to send in U. S. troops and the last of the Indian battles in the State was fought on Pea River in the southeastern part of the state.

U. S. PUBLIC DIVIDED IN OPINION OF SENATOR McCARTHY

Princeton, New Jersey— How does Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin rate with rank and file voters across the nation at the present time?

Results of a nationwide survey completed Wednesday, April 28, show that American voters are divided in their opinion of the Wisconsin Senator.

47 out of every 100 say their attitude toward Senator McCarthy is unfavorable.

And 38-out of every 100 say their attitude toward the Senator is favorable.

These were the findings when United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section of the nation's voters:

"In general, would you say your attitude toward Senator McCarthy is favorable or unfavorable"

Favorable	38 per cent
Unfavorable	57 per cent
No Opinion	15 per cent

A second question in today's survey to determine the attitude of the American people toward the methods used by Senator McCarthy shows that a majority—54 per cent—say they disapprove of the methods used by the Senate investigator.

At the same time, nearly 1 in 3—31 per cent—say they approve

In other words, those who disapprove of the methods used by Senator McCarthy outnumber by a margin of about 5 to 3 those who approve.

"In general, do you approve or disapprove of the methods used by Senator McCarthy"

Disapprove	54 per cent
Approve	31 per cent
No opinion	15 per cent

Chief objections raised to the Senator's methods are that he's too rough and aggressive; that people don't like his tactics; that he goes too far and oversteps his authority; that he's too much of a publicity seeker; that he can't prove his accusations, and that he shouldn't attack the army.

Those who approve of his methods argue mainly that they approve of any methods that will help rid the country of Reds.

The last question in today's survey shows that among people with opinions on the matter, those who side with Army Secretary Stevens in the Congressional investigation of the Stevens-McCarty quarrel outnumber by a margin of 2 to 1 those who side with Senator McCarthy.

"Have you heard or or read anything about the Congressional investigation of the quarrel between Senator McCarthy and Army Secretary Stevens?"

Have heard	80 per cent
Have not	20 per cent

All those who said they had heard of the Congressional investigation were then asked:

"Judging from what you have heard or read up till now, whose side are you inclined to agree—with Senator McCarthy's or Army Secretary Stevens?"

Agree with Sec. Stevens	*44%
Agree with Senator McCarthy	22%
No Opinion	14½
Total who have heard of the quarrel	80%
Total woh have not heard of the quarrel	20%
	100%

*Today's findings represent opinion as of Wednesday, April 28. Another survey will shortly go into the field to measure sentiment since that time.

This is the first of a series of United States Poll McCarthy popularity measurements.

Watch for them in this newspaper.

ideas from other editors

From the Harvard Herald, Harvard, Illinois: An interesting "graphichart" in the Chicago Sun-Times . . . reminds us that Harvard has a rather patriotic layout for its system of streets.

Our town has memorialized in its street names seven of the 13 Republican presidents — Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, and Theodore Roosevelt. Added to these we have Washington and Jefferson well represented, giving us a total of nine of the 34 men to serve thus far in the White House.

Such illustrious names ought to merit legible street signs. (Here we go again!) After hearing repeated stories of how strangers wander through the city hunting for the homes they are wanting to visit, and spending a half hour or more in the process, the city council might be taking the more popular move to place the street signs No. 1 on their priority list. . . . Let's get those street signs and save the presidents from oblivion.

PROTECT YOUR PROFITS CONTROL INSECT PESTS

Auburn, Ala.—Insects are now beginning their all-out war on animals and crops, warns APT Extension Entomologist W. A. Raffin.

He suggests these control measures for the expensive pests:

"Start spraying cattle at the first sign of hornflies, or any other external parasite For beef animals use a spray made by mixing 20 pounds of 50 per cent DDT and one pound of 25 per cent lindane in 100 gallons of water. On dairy cattle use a mixture of 20 pounds of methoxychlor in 100 gallons of water.

"For best results use a power sprayer that will develop at least 100 pounds of pressure and be sure animals are wet to the skin. Spray cattle every three to four weeks as needed. One gallon of spray will treat four to six animals.

"Cleanliness is the first and most important step in controlling houseflies. Every week remove manure from buildings and broadcast it on the fields. Twice a week apply acid phosphate to poultry droppings. Use cotton dust that contains aldrin, dieldrin, or toxaphene on floor and littel in cage laying houses. Do not use BHC dust. The new poison bait containing malathion and sugar is one of the most effective eradicators of houseflies around farm buildings and homes.

"Be on the lookout for aphids and thirps in cotton stands. Any of the recommended cotton insecticides except calcium arsenate will control thrips. Use BHC for aphids. On small cotton plants five to seven pounds of dust per acre are sufficient. To control most garden pests, apply Auburn approved garden dust every week. Several days before setting caggabe or tomato plants, put toxaphene dust on the ground to prevent cutworm damage."

Roast meats at low to moderate temperature to get more and better [illegible] more servings per pound, and 20 per cent saving on feul.

These are the Questions to which Prospective Industries Want Answers

ANYONE active in industrial development work must be prepared to answer certain basic questions with facts. Some of those questions are listed here. They are the questions to which chambers of commerce, local industrial committees, and industrial representatives from railroads and public utilities, such as ours, must have the answers if they are to be reasonably successful in persuading an expanding industry to locate in Alabama.

Different types of industry require different combinations of things. The competition between communities is keen and often the difference between success and failure is the appearance of a town or the friendliness of the people in it.

Here are some of the questions. The answers to them are such that the types of industry are few whose requirements can't be met in Alabama if they're seeking a location. Every part of Alabama isn't suitable for every kind of industry; some part of Alabama is superior or equal to other sections of the country for most kinds of industry.

? If we make it in Alabama, is there a sufficient market in Alabama and surrounding area for what we make to justify a plant in Alabama? The answer usually is YES, because of greatly increased buying power in Alabama and the South

? If electric power is important, is there sufficient for our type of operation? The answer ALWAYS is YES.

? Are there sufficient technical, mechanical, skilled and unskilled workers for our kind of manufacture? The answer is that some areas are better in this respect than others, and that some are better for industries requiring mostly women, while others excel for industries requiring mostly men. Alabama workers acquire new skills very rapidly.

? Is there an adequate industrial water supply? Alabama is unusually well-endowed in this respect in most areas.

? How are living conditions? There is a wide selection of communities, from metropolitan cities to medium size and small towns.

? What about fuel supply? Bituminous coal and natural gas are available in abundant quantity.

? What about transportation? Alabama is served by many trunk-line railroads, truck lines, has good highways, good airline service and water transportation.

? How about the weather? Weather is an asset to manufacturing operations in Alabama. Year 'round favorable weather is one of Alabama's many assets.

? We have a lot of export business; how can we take care of this business from a plant in Alabama? Alabama's Port of Mobile is one of the leading ports in the nation.

? Our industry is an important user of certain minerals. What has Alabama in quantity? Coal, iron, salt, sand, clays, oil, limestone, bauxite

? What type of outdoor recreation can one enjoy in Alabama? Anything from surf bathing to mountain climbing; deep sea to pond fishing; camping, hunting, golfing—and all of these with the possible exception of surf bathing, every month in the year.

? Wood is an important raw material for us; what has Alabama to offer? Alabama is one of the leading soft-wood producers in the nation. Modern forestry practice insures a continuing supply of wood.

? Is Alabama's tax structure favorable for our type of industry? The answer to this is that taxes on industry are considered fair and reasonable.

? Does Alabama officially welcome industry? Alabama's public officials many times have voiced a sincere and cordial welcome to any industry that wants to become a good corporate citizen of Alabama. The experience of industries locating in Alabama has proven that the welcome lasts.

We are happy to publish this advertisement for the information of the many Alabamians who have an interest in the continued development of Alabama, and in cooperation with the numerous Alabama organizations with whom we are happy to join hands in this effort.

Mr. Crappie has definitely taken e back seat a bit early in the sean this year, but the Stripes and Alabama Spotted Bass (Smallmouth Bass) are on hand in very large numbers to keep good fishing going at a fever pitch. If you were one of the sad fishermen that fished the banks for Crappie last week, you would have been much the sadder had you known that not too far from where you were fishing large catches of Stripes were being taken. Yours truly fished and fished the banks of Bird Creek, Lake Mitchell, to no avail, while it was learned later that just across the lake in the mouth of Hatchet Creek, very large catches of Stripes were being caught. It is believed that Woodie Harris, Birmingham, made the find that attracted several others to what turned out to be a "Roman Holiday." Woodie pulled into the mouth of Hatchet late in the afternoon and tried to cast a spoon which back-lashed. Before he could straighten out his line a Stripe Bass took his spoon. From then on, it was duck soup. The limit was taken for each occupant in the boat Nearby, fishermen joined the fun and everybody that had a silver spoon caught his share of Stripes.

The old stand-by contraption for taking Stripes is to take two large silver spoons and fasten them together to give a good casting weight and to make it sink more readily. This rig will go down and get fish the year roun, especially when fishing is slow between seasons

Would you trade a Penny for a Dollar?

● You can if you use Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda for your top-dressing and side-dressing needs. It costs a little more because it's worth more. But the difference in cost usually can be measured in pennies per acre, while the difference in value often amounts to dollars per acre.

Chilean "Bulldog" Soda gives you generous extra value. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate. It's 100 per cent available (quick-acting); 100 per cent dependable. The minor elements make crops stronger, healthier. The sodium—26 pounds in every 100-pound sack—is a key to maximum returns on your entire fertilizer investment. It offsets the bad effects of acid-forming fertilizers...increases the efficiency of mixed fertilizers containing them. It releases "locked-up" potash in the soil...increases the availability and efficiency of soil phosphate...reduces potash, calcium and magnesium losses by leaching...develops larger, deeper root systems.

Sodium builds up the productivity of your land—more each year. It's an essential element for some crops...beneficial to most and necessary for maximum yields of many.

Pennies-per-acre difference in cost may mean dollars-per-acre difference in value to you. Chilean "Bulldog" Soda is the best fertilizer your money can buy. Use it for all of your top-dressing and side-dressing needs.

Mrs. Haywood's Fifth Grade Class Visits State Capitol

A TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

Mrs. Haywood's Good American Club and others went to Montgomery Tuesday, April 20, 1954.

First we went to the Coca Cola plant. We saw where they clean the bottles, send them to be filled and crowned. The plant gave us a free coca-cola that had not been crowned.

After we had gone through the CocaCola plant we went to the Montgomery Advertiser. There we saw how the papers are made.

By the time we had gone to the Coca Cola plant and the Montgomery Advertiser it was time to eat lunch. We ate at Oak Park. After we ate we had some rides.

After we went to the park we went to the First White House of the Confederacy. On entering the hall you can see a portrait of General Robert E. Lee, donated by the Lee family. Console table with petticoat mirrow. Portrait of Mrs. Chappel Cory donated by her daughter, Mrs. Hudson Stroud There is also a grand father clock made in 1810. In the second parlor there is a portrait over the mantle of Winnie Davis, the beloved first daughter of the Confederacy. Our room bought a booklet about the White House.

Then we went to the Archives and History, all of the buildings are made of Alabama marble, except the floor which is made from Tennessee marble. The top of the building is gold. There is a large statue of a man that is made to represent all the sons that fought in the war. There are many flags of the Confederacy. There are many costumes worn in the war. In one of the rooms there is a statute of Christ's head made from marble. This statue was the first thing made from Alabama marble.

After we had gone to the Archives and History we went to the Capitol. Everyone got to stand on the star Jefferson Davis stood on. The hostess told us about the capitol. The stairs do not have any nails or anything else to hold them up.

We enjoyed our trip very much, and we want to thank the men and women who took us through the buildings. We also want to thank the bus driver very much.

Katie Don Thompson.

OUR TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

Tuesday, April 20, 1954, Mrs. Haywood's fifth grade took a trip to Montgomery. We went on a greyhound bus. On the way down there we sang songs.

When we got there the first place we went was the Coca-Cola plant. First we went into the storage room where they kept the crowns for the cokes. We also saw barrels of water that were used for sterilizing the bottles. Next we went into a room where the boke machine were sent to be repainted. They would sand off all the old paint they could and then put a new coat of paint on. After that we went into the room where they sterilized the bottles. They would take the bottles out of the cases and put them in holes and the machine would push them into the tank where they were washed and sterilized. In the same room we saw where the cokes were cased. After the empty bottles were taken out of the cases they were put on a rolling machine which were sent on down for the cokes to be put in. The last place we went in the Coca-cola plant was where the bottles were filled up and capped. The empty bottles would go under the filling machine and from there they would go under the capping machine. When they came out they were bottled and capped. Before we left they gave us a coke and a pencil.

The next place we went was the Montgomery Advertiser. First we went through the advertising department which includes a classified ad department. In this department we saw how the men who sold the ads to all of the merchants lay out pages for the ads before being sent to the composingsroom to be put in type. Next we went into the news room. In there we saw the Editors offices such as the Sports Editor, State and City Editors and etc. We saw the Associated Press or the United Press news coming in from all over the world as it comes over the teletype machines. Then we went into the photo department. With the installation of Associated Press wire photo service and the Fairchild engraver, photographs can be taken in any part of the world and put in our newspaper in 30 minutes. After that we went into the composing room. In there the news is set in type by Linotype machines, and then put in page size form. Then we went into the stereotype room where a carved metal plate weighing about 40 pounds is made for each page that goes into the newspaper every day. Next we went into the press room. In there we saw the two big 30 foot press that can print your papers at a speed of 55,000 per hour and deliver them to the mailing room. The Advertiser and Journal consume approximately 5,561 tons of newsprint paper per year. This is 15 tons per day or 30,000 pounds per day. It takes almost 333,000 lbs. of ink per year to print our newspapers. This is 6,403 pounds per week or 914 pounds per day. After that we went into the circulation department where records are kept for more than 78,000 subscribers by fourteen bookkeepers and managed by two city managers and a county manager, Mr. Gordon, Mr. Smith and Mr. Marshall. The circulation department in the city and throughout the states.

Then we went into the mailing room where papers are counted, addressed, and sent up to the loading platform where fast trucks and cars load them for delivery all over the state and to branch offices, railroads, depots, and bus stations.

After we had gone through the Montgomery Advertiser we went to the park and ate our lunch. After we got through eating we went to seg the animals. We saw monkeys, a baboon, a pecot and others. When we got through seeing the animals we rode some of the rides.

Then we went to the home of Jefferson Davis. In his house was the baby's room, the dining room, the living room, his stuff, her bedroom, his bedroom, and other bedrooms. In his room the things were like he left them. They also had some antiques.

Next we went through the Archhad all kinds of old flags. They ives and History. Down stairs they were partly torn and burned. Upon the walls were different pictures of great men. In another room were things about Indians. They had all kinds of rocks, pots, beads, arrow heads, moccasins, pictures of Indians, and etc. Next we went upstairs, the first thing we saw were different things, such as china, crystal, paintings, different kinds of old dresses, jewelry, etc. Then we went into another room with different things in it. Some of them were old timey dresses, and old timey suits for men, jewelry, rocks, paintings, etc.

The next place we went was the capitol. Upstairs we saw the court room where each person had his own desk. If they wanted to vote for somebody they would mash the button that would make the light on the board turn green, if they didn't want to vote for somebody they would turn red. Then in the center of the room was a long table called the press table. Down below the dome were portraits of different people. We didn't go up in the dome but we could see it from where we were standing. The guide told us that the capitol was over a hundred years old. After we had gone through the capitol we went to the bus and came home.

Temple Church News

Sunday night brought to a close a two weeks revival at the Temple Assembly church with the Rev. David Wilkerson and Red of Pittsburgh doing the preaching. Much was accomplished through this revival, several young people, boys and girls found their way down the isles and gave their heart to Jesus. Our prayers go with each of them.

In the contest for who brought the largest number to Sunday School Sunday morning, Mrs. Vanis Mims won the beautiful Bible in the adult contest and Delores Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amon Jones, won the talking doll in the childrens contest. Congratulations to both winners.

Next Sunday being Mothers Day we will have six honored mothers, also special music and program for our mothers. You will miss a special treat if you miss this service, so make your plans now to attend.

Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. a childrens party was given at the church. About 30 children met, with several adults, and played several games, after which they were served refreshments on the lawn. When they had finished each child was given a chance to shake hands with Red, talk with him, ask him questions and tell him good-by. This was a thrill for each one present.

Remember Sunday School next Sunday at 10:00 a.m. we will be looking for you to help us reach our goal for Mothers Day.

LIBRARY (By Mrs. Harding): Recently I read in Newsweek that the United States is the only country on earth where people have to reduce. Many of the troubles which take people to the physician are diagnosed as results of overeating. I was very much amused at this news item at first; ,now after having time to think it over I wonder—is it funny?

The following is quoted from Les Miserables by Victor Hugo: "Two roads branched off before him. Taking one was turning from the other. Which was the right one? His dilemma was inexpressible. One trouble was that he was compelled to think. The violence of so many conflicting emotions obliged this. Thinking was unusual to him, and singularly painful. In the moment after, a tall black figure appeared standing on the parapet, bent toward the Seine, then rose and fell straight, a dull splash was heard, the night alone was in the secret of the struggling from disappearing under the surge."

EMBRYO RACER . . . Weighing less than 15 pounds at birth, this tiny week-old thoroughbred filly, cuddled by Kathryn and Peter Feakes, has already been nominated for 1956 New Jersey Futurity by Woodland Farm (N. J.) breeder.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

AFRAID OF TESTS?

Many persons are afraid of laboratory tests, yet these same persons will check and double check a simple article of clothing, or household equipment to be sure of its durability before purchase.

Laboratory tests are employed in health and disease so that we can be more certain whether or not any abnormal condition is present in your body. Why be afraid? Isn't it better to know that diabetes, for example, is not present, even though [illegible] and if it is, isn't it better to learn about it early so that you can be taught to live with the condition normally? In diabetes, a urinalysis is made; that is, the urine is tested to determine the extent of sugar present.

The roentgenogram or x-ray film is another test. It shows, for example, whether bones are broken, the presence of tuberculosis or cancer, or an enlargement of the heart.

An electrocardiogram is a test which measures the electrical impulses of the heart. This is an aid to the physician in making a diagnosis of certain heart conditions. An electroencephalogram is another diagnostic aid in helping the physician establish the presence of certain disorders of the brain.

Blood tests are done to determine the type of blood, a necessity for a blood [illegible] required.

Serology, or the study of blood serum, may also be performed to determine the presence or absence of diseases such as syphilis, infectious mononucleosis and typhoid fever. Tests performed in the pathology laboratory on a small section of tissue prove whether or not cancer is present.

These are but a few of the tests available to help your physician in his diagnosis. Each day, [illegible] goes forward, new and valuable laboratory information is being developed to help you fight disease.

Don't be afraid of tests. Knowledge is power, and the results need not be dangerous. As you may think. Prevention is easier than cure, but early detection leads next to early recovery and control.

The Alabama Health [illegible] will be held in Montgomery on May 1, the Jersey Dairy [illegible] May 22

We had a good attendance at Church services Sunday.

Sunday May 9th is our annual Mothers Day homecoming. We will have our Mothers Day Program preaching at the eleven o'clock hour, then we will all spread lunch together and enjoy the noon hour. An entire afternoon will be spent in singing. Earl Ousley will be our chairman. We invite all singers to come and be with us and lets make this the best yet. We are expecting some outstanding singers to be present.

We would like for all members of this community who possibly can to meet at Church each Thursday afternoon May 6th to some more cleaning up to be done in the church.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

We're glad to learn that Dr. Delos P. Culp has decided to continue the race for State Superintendent of Education through the June 1st primary. Dr. Culp lacked only twenty odd thousand votes of receiving as high a vote as did the top man in the race. We have known Delos Culp for the past sixteen years and we are firmly convinced he is the most able man for the position of State Superintendent of Education.

Guess the election forecasters were right; the race was between Mr. Folsom and "Big Jim."

Congratulations to Dent Williams on his election as president of the Clanton Elementary Parent-Teachers Association. We know that Dent will make a good president of the organization and we wish him every success in accomplishing all the things during his administration that he undertakes. With the cooperation of the entire membership of the Parent-Teachers Association we know this will be possible.

By the way: Parents are people who spend half their time wondering how their children will turn out and the other half when they will turn in.

Beware the deadly sitting habit Or, if you sit, be like a rabbit Who keepeth ever on the jump By springs concealed beneath his rump.

A little ginger 'neath the tail Will for a lack of brains avail Unchew the full and slothful seat And move about with willing feet.

Man was not made to sit in trance And press and press and press his pants, But rather with an open mind To circulate among his kind.

And so, my friends, beware the snare, That lurks within the cushioned chair. To run like hell, it has been found, With feet must be upon the ground."

Well looks like they have met and set the date for the Peach Festival — L. G. Shields is General Chairman this year and is very capable. June 20th is the date set and many added attractions have been added this year to make the Festival more enjoyable. Of course they won't have any bigger or better peaches. Chilton County only raises one kind every year—the best.

Thursday, May 13 (today), the Crippled Children's Clinic is being held at the Baptist Church. All citizens of the county are invited and urged to visit the Clinic during the day and learn of the wonderful work being done by the local Committee.

Help get the vote out next June 1st.

HOWARD BOOCKHOLDT EXPRESSES THANKS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

A candidate is always at loss for words to express appreciation for confidence expressed by those many people who have helped him in an election. All I can say at this time is "Thanks for selecting me as your Democratic Nominee again." If I continue to be your Superintendent, I will do my best to warrant your further support by getting the best education possible for your children so far as I am concerned, the primary election is in the past, and I will not inject it into any of my actions in the future. In a Democratic country, the official is selected by the majority; then he becomes everybody's official. That is what I propose to be. I earnestly solicit the backing of every citizens of the county. Our school system deserves it and must have it if our children get what is coming to them.

Thanks again,
HOWARD BOOCKHOLDT.

SOUTHERN NEGRO IMPROVEMENT ASSN. ORGANIZED HERE

A chapter of the Southern Negro Improvement Association is being organized in Chilton County. The purpose of the organization is to improve race relationship and promote goodwill and have a better understanding between the races. Most of all to destroy outside propaganda. Milton Lane and Sam Bryant are assisting in the organizing here.

Chilton County Peach Festival To Be Held On June 20th

Plans were completed this week to hold the 1954 edition of the Chilton County Peach Festival on June 20. At a meeting held Monday night Chairman of the various committees were named and plans made for the largest and best Festival of the long line of peach festivals held in Chilton county honoring the peach.

L. G. Shields was named General Chairman of this year's Festival and Joe Jackson was named co-chairman.

The general pattern of the Festival has been changed this year and instead of the Judges naming a queen and a King, two Queens will be named. The Queens will choose their own Kings for the occasion.

Much interest was shown at the kick-off meeting and the biggest Peach Festival yet is expected this year.

M. C. (JACK) HAYES WRITES TO THE VOTERS

Dear Friends:

I take this opportunity to extend my sincere congratulations to Mr. George Smith on the excellent showing he made in the race for Tax Collector. George made a fine campaign and the people have honored him with the leading vote.

After careful consideration, I have decided not to enter the run-off, and pledge my support to George Smith as the nominee of the Democratic Party.

It has given me a great pleasure and satisfaction to serve you as Tax Collector during the past eleven years.

I acknowledge with deep humility and gratitude the fine vote you gave me Tuesday, May 4th. The people of Chilton County have been good to me and words can never express my gratitude.

Best wishes to all of you, and come to see me.

Sincerely,
M. C. (Jack) HAYES.

LONNIE COST WRITES VOTERS

Lonnie L. Cost thanks the people and voters of Chilton County. I want to express my heart felt thanks to the good people of this county for their fine support on May the fourth and for the encouraging words I received from them throughout my campaign. I also want to say that I have no ill will toward any person who did or did not support me in the primary election. Once again I want to say if the good people see fit to elect me this fall I will at all times, remember that I am just a hired servant for the people and will at all times work for the interest of the people throughout Chilton County.

Thanks to you all.

Vermont School Children Go To Montgomery—

Mr. and Mrs. Tom McCraw took us to Montgomery on their truc. Wednesday, May 5, 1954. We went to the Capitol first. We went up the winding stairs. We saw some pictures of Jefferson Davis. The guide told us about them and others.

We went to the history building. We saw some stuffed snakes, birds and bears.

We went to the home of Jefferson Davis. We saw jewelry and silverware. We saw his bed, chairs and clothes. We saw the baby bed and chairs.

Then we went back to the truck and went to Oak Park. When we got out we saw some monkeys. We saw a lion and a bear. Then we ate lunch. We rode the merry go-round. We rode the trolley-coaster. We rode the ferris wheel. We saw some ducks swim in the pond. Then got on the truck and went back to school. The first four grades, their teachers and some mothers and fathers and other friends went on the trip with us. We enjoyed our trip and want to go back next year.

NEW SILVER DOLLAR

By F. L. Rowley

"WHAT'S the matter, sonny?" asked the big man with the silk hat and the huge watch-chain.

"I—I lost my dollar," replied the boy sadly. Without looking up he continued to kick the sawdust near the edge of the carnival grounds.

The big man smiled. With a grunt he sank to his knees to take part in the search. At length he came up with a dollar bill.

"Here you are!" he chirped. "Why, it isn't even bent."

The small boy gave the bill one long, covetous look. Then he turned two wide blue eyes on the big man —"Thank you sir, but I can't take that; I lost a new silver dollar."

The man in the silk hat turked red. He got to his feet slowly. Then with a roar that made the boy cringe he blurted:

"Now I've seen everything!"

The boy turned to flee.

"What's your name, sonny?" a soft voice asked.

The little fellow looked around. Had that question come from the big man? No one else was nearby. "I'm Jimmy Edwards, sir," he said.

"Well Jimmy," said the big man in the same soft voice. "I'd like to give you tickets for rides of the rides; I own this carnival, you see. Will you accept them?"

"A ticket for the bicycle too?" asked Jimmy eagerly.

"Why — yes. Yes, of course," said the man following Jimmy's gaze until he too was looking at the beautiful red machine that was to be raffled off.

Jimmy thanked the man for the small cards. Tucking the bicycle ticket carefully into a corner of one pocket he made for the nearest of the rides. The big man with the silk hat and the gold watch-chain smiled as he watched the boy.

The show had a short run in Hillcrest. On the all-important last day when the bicycle was to be raffled off Jimmy had to go to Shelbyville with his mother. Then he would get his ticket and proceeded to direct the dismantling of the nearest booth. And you would have noticed, had you been close enough to look, that a new charm dangled from the big man's watch-chain—a charm in the shape of a shiny, new silver dollar.

"Mother, may I go see who won the bike?" he asked.

"Of course, dear, but don't stay too long. You haven't eaten yet."

Jimmy raced breathlessly down the dark street. As he approached the carnival grounds his heart sank. Men were busy dismantling the booths. Jimmy's eyes swung to the platform on which the red bicycle had stood. It was empty!

"Well, if it isn't my little friend!" boomed a familiar voice.

Jimmy turned to face the big man. The tears in his eyes and the stub in his hand told their own story.

"Looks like you lost," sympathized the big man. "Don't ever pin all your hopes on luck, my boy. Most of us have to work hard for what we get."

"Yes sir," muttered Jimmy.

"But I tell you what we'll do I have another bicycle here — it's quite new, and terribly stiff. I wonder if you could break it in for us? We might want to raffle it off next time we come to Hillcrest."

"Yes — yes sir," said Jimmy hesitantly. "When are you coming back?"

"Oh, in about five years," replied the big man with a twinkle in his eye. Then, turning to a man in overalls, he said: "Max, get that new bike off the truck."

Then he quickly tore up the ticket

Then he went to Jefferson Davis' home. We saw his shoes, his bed and chairs.

And then we went to the Park, we saw the monkeys, and the bear. We fed the monkeys. Then we ate lunch.

Then we rode the Merry-go-round and the train.

We had a good time.

Spray Carpets Regularly To Prevent Moth Damage

AUBURN, Ala.—At regular intervals rugs and carpets should be treated for moth damage, according to Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishings specialist.

And she offers homemakers these guides to successful insect protection:

1. Every 12 to 18 months spray rugs and carpets with a five per cent DDT oil solution. If you spray the entire rug, use one and one-half to two quarts of spray on a nine by twelve rug of average weight. Pyroxide solutions may also be used satisfactorily if you follow the manufacturer's idrections for applying.

2. Give special attention to parts of the rug that lie under a piano, sofa, bookcase, or other heavy furniture or under radiators or around heat registers. If the rug pad contains animal hair or wool and has not been treated by the manufacturer, spray it on both sides. Walls to wall carpeting should be sprayed carefully all around the edges.

3. If you own expensive broadlooms or oriental rugs and fear the inexperience may cause you to injure them, call a pest-control or carpet-cleaning firm to treat the rugs for you. Commercial dry cleaning destroys larvae, eggs and adult insects but prevents reinfestation only if a special treatment is given for this purpose.

4. Rugs and carpets are guaranteed against insect feeding if placed in commercial storage. If stored at home, they can be protected by spraying with fluoride or DDT solutions or by using paradichlorobenzene crystals or naphthalene flakes.

ADVENTIST NEWS

"The Scapegoat," will be the Sabbath sermon topic 11 a.m.

Great upheavals are rapidly sweeping over the world which spells an agonizing doom. This nation has forgotten God and is going badly after the gods of old, desire seeking, great industries, military power and material and scitentific achievements. Other nations have recently had their bloodbaths, Germany, France, Italy, Korea, Japan, Indo-China and others. But why has America thus far escaped? Is it because this is such a righteous nation? Not so. This nation has more crime, more divorces, more immorality, more cigarettes, more whiskey, more money, more corruption in high places and more everything else that is wicked —than any other nation on earth. But, as paradoxal as it may seem, this country is the one and only reservoir left in the earth of money and manpower for the rivalry of God's last warning message to all the world. When that work is finished—then will come this awful bloodbath. And no destruction of nations cities, and peoples will compare to the awful devastation that will then be visited upon this nation. Ours will be the last, but the worst. "There will be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." Dan. 12:1

Elijah Rebukes Ahab.
Lesson for May 16: I Kings 21: 1-4, 16-20.
Golden Text: Exodus 20: 17.

Naboth had a vineyard near the palace of Ahab which the king desired. But Naboth refused to sell his family inheritance to the monarch. Jezebel comforted the disappointed king and promised him that the vineyard would be secured. When she had had Naboth stoned to death and his sons slain, that there should be no minor heirs, she told Ahab to arise and take possession of the vineyard.

His pleasure in walking about the place was soon dispelled by the appearance of the stern old prophet. As usual, when Ahab and Elijah met, there came a message of rebuke and then of doom from the prophet. He foretold that in the place where dogs had licked the blood of Naboth would dogs lick the blood of the king.

Ahab repented and God mercifully postponed the day of reckoning for the house of the king until the reign of the king's son. But the king himself was soon slain in battle when he and the king of Judah went against the Syrians. The murderous Jezebel was afterward thrown from a palace window, her body trampled by the horse of the victorious Jehu and hungry street dogs ate her remains. Thus perished in blood they who had brought bloodshed unto others. Let us be admonished that the wages of sin is death and that the evil deeds of men return upon their own heads.

RAINBOW ON THE ROAD

By Esther Forbes

In scanning the book shelves in the County Library, upstairs over the Chilton County News there is to be found this new book, presented to the library by Mrs. Haywood's fifth grade.

Now, a hint of the story: New England was still young country in the early days of the last century. The railroads had not come, the stagecoach and the flatboat were in their heyday. For the lonely farm wife, the excitement of the New Year, the first sign of spring, was the peddler with his pack. Jude, with his wagonload of portraits, all finished except for the faces was something special. Also he was special to look at—tall, dark, short square chin, tously hair and hawk nose that gave him almost a foreign look, in fact, just like the posted description of Ruby Lambkin, highwayman with a price of $150.00 on his head.

The novel shows a pagan world against a deeply Puritan background.

John P. Marquand in writing of Rainbow on the Road said, "When I read Esther Forbes last novel I have never seen the illusion of a period so beautifully presented. Somehow she caught the whole spirit of New England, which I use to recognize when I talk to very old people during my childhood. In my humble opinion it is outstanding in every way. It is literature and by far the best thing she has ever written.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Lallarye Tucker Markham

The one-year-old still isn't a conversationalist. Her vocabulary is quite limited, and she makes her wants (they are not few) known by pointing and grunting. But she tries to do everything the seven-year-old and the five-year-old do.

At bedtime when the seven-year-old and the five-year-old say their prayers, she kneels beside them with her head bowed and her hands folded. Her prayer usually consists of a few matters which God must understand.

The other night at prayer time, the one-year-old kept on and on with her jabbering. The five-year-old shirted to the other knee. The one-year-old kept praying. The five-year-old squirmed and twisted. Still the baby's prayer went on. The five-year-old could remain reverent no longer.

"That's enough praying" he said "It's sure time you said Amen."

Take a poll among any given group of homemakers and nearly all of them will admit that ironing is the household task they most dislike

The neighbor down the street is no exception, but she, having a big family, has of necessity worked out some short cuts to her ironing and washing, too.

When we stopped by to see her recently she was ironing shirts, a mean job. She shortened her ironing time by putting the shirts on hangers when she irons them instead of folding them. She says the men in her family like to have their shirts hanging in the closet instead of put away in drawers, and it saves her a lot of work.

She has discovered some time savers to use when hanging out her laundry, too. When she hangs up socks (she has a lot of them), she drapes them over her left arm and holds the clothes pins in her left hand, leaving her right hand free to put the socks on the line and pin them.

She uses much the same system when hanging up the children's underwear.

"I save a lot of time, though I certainly don't know where the saved minutes go," she laughs.

The neighbor around the corner has a plastic bag tacked to the wall near her washing machine. When buttons and buckles come off the clothes, she puts them into the bag. Before she irons the clothes, she retrieves the buttons and buckles from the bag and sews them back in place.

* * *

All the automobiles on the streets look almost indecently bare now that they've shed their bright campaign stickers.

Something I wish I'd learned earlier: the new mother in the neighborhood gives her baby his cod liver oil while he's in the tub. She never has to remove the stubborn stain from his clothes.

Our good cook neighbor delights her guests with Heavenly Pie, rich but good, made like this:

Beat 4 egg whites until stiff but not dry. Slowly beat in 1 cup of granulated sugar and 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar, beating until glossy. Line well-greased pie pan with mixture and bake at 275 degrees for about an hour. When cool, spread with whipped cream into which strained apricots (baby food) have been folded. Top with a generous layer of toasted coconut.

* * *

Mashed potatoes will look like whipped cream if hot milk is added to them before you start mashing.

"EASY DOES IT"
BY . . . . HELEN HALE

HOW are your vegetable ways? Do you always serve them in the same way or do you try to do something different with them occasionally? Here are some new ideas with which you can start:

Try cream-style corn with egg for a really good luncheon or supper dish. To 1 cup of corn add slices fried bacon, crumbled, eggs, beaten lightly. Place in skillet and proceed as for scrambled eggs.

Cooked chopped spinach takes on a new taste thrill when seasoned with ¾ teaspoon garlic salt, a speck of pepper and ¾ teaspoon of anchovy paste and 2 tablespoons butter.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Lime Cucumber Salad
(Serves 6)

1 package lime-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
¼ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 cup sour cream
1 medium cucumber, coarsely grated
Lettuce

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add vinegar, salt and onion. Chill until gelatin begins to thicken. Stir in sour cream and cucumber. Pour into six individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce.

Try slicing radishes, firm and red, as an edible garnish for your next bowl of cream-style soup.

Halve green peppers and remove all seeds; then slice and cut in strips and fry slowly in bacon drippings. Add cut-up tomatoes and cook until tomatoes are in pieces. Mix well and serve with a pork sausage dinner.

Green beans, asparagus, cauliflower or broccoli are all good with this sauce: To 2 tablespoons melted butter add 2 tablespoons each of bread crumbs and chopped nuts. Toss lightly until brown.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Katherine Glatt, Hopland, California: I remember when as a little girl in St. Paul, Minnesota big blocks of ice were cut out of the Mississippi River and sledded to the top of a hill where an ice palace was built. There were toboggan clubs, beautiful floats, and my sister, being queen, sat in majesty covered in eiderdown and white bear skins. Her carriage was drawn by six white horses, led by men in white robes. The palace was stormed with colors, and they emulated from all the windows. It was a grand sight to see, with the poplars knee-deep in snow.

Some nights the sky was dazzling, the Aurora Borealis or northern lights casting streams and arcs of light in glorious colors—a wonderful display coming from the northern horizon toward the zenith.

After the second ice palace the city officials decided not to build any more ice palaces, for the hot summers couldn't melt them and it was considered a bad advertisement for winter and summer weather conditions.

(Editor's note: Mrs. Glatt is 80 years old, but we promised not to "tell.")

• • •

From S. J. McGinnis, Culloden, W. Virginia: I remember in the late nineties — when father and mother stayed up until midnight on Christmas eve, cooking and baking, and listening to the boys talk about Santa Claus.

Our stockings we hung with safety pins, over chairs, the next morning to be found loaded with good things to eat, and with clothes. The snow was deep on the ground.

Those were the happy and good old days—happy days of our life when $5 would buy more than $25 will today.

Elect R. Odell Payton
SHERIFF

Odell Payton Speaks:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you voters of Chilton County for your most marvelous support in the May 4th primary.

I have leaned backward to keep my campaign clean and above board, and would like to publicly congratulate Buster Sanders, Ellis Ellison and Truman Thrash respectively, for their gentemanly, yet determined bid in the past primary. After all, a man who wages a clean fight will always have the respect of his community and this will always be a factor should he offer his name on another occasion. That is one of the reasons I have made a special effort to keep my campaign on a high level.

Now I offer my name in the Democratic run-off, and will conduct this phase of the election on the same high plane.

I am making an effort to track down a rumor to the effect that I have been buying votes.

Of course this is a dastardly lie, and I challenge my worthy rumor mongers to put this charge in print. Of course they do not have the courage to do that, but watch the subsequent issues of the County papers for some dynamite on vote buying that I will soon release after I get some more facts.

A rumor is also being spread that I have made some promises as to whom I would use if I were elected Sheriff. I have not made any promises of jobs, but I will promise a complete shake-up in your Sheriff's office. No ex-bootlegger or individuals with criminal records of any kind will be allowed to hide behind a badge when you elect me to office.

I promise nothing but honest, efficient and courteous law enforcement that will be a credit to Chilton County and its people.

Your support and influence will be greatly appreciated.

DR. D. P. CULP

Delos Culp led [illegible] in the May Primary with 3851 votes in his race for the office of State Superintendent of Education. His nearest opponent received 61 votes and the third man in the race for this office received 397 votes.

Every voter in Chilton County should go to the polls on June 1st, and cast their vote for a native son. Culp was born and reared in Chilton County, and has through hard work and his natural ability, worked his way up from a country school teacher to one of the best informed educators in the state.

His wide experience in educational work fits him perfectly for the position he seeks and it would be most encouraging for the folks "back home" to give their endorsement to his campaign 100 per cent on June 1st.

—FOLSOM THE WINNER

With the backing of all Alabamians we hope, Hon. James E. Folsom will take his seat as governor on January 20th, next.

A much wiser man than when he was elected governor eight years ago. Mr. Folsom has a real opportunity to serve Alabama and accomplish a progressive program for her people. This we believe he will do.

In a statement issued to the people of Alabama this week Gov.-nominate Folsom said:

"A majority of the qualified voters of Alabama have voted me as their governor for a second time. I am ever so grateful and humble for their vote of confidence in me and I pledge to all of the people of our state an administration during which I will do my best to carry out my program that a majority of the people of Alabama have overwhelmingly approved. I am confident that I will have the support of the Legislature in carrying Alabama forward to a new era of progress during the next four years.

The campaign is over and it is my hope that all political differences will be quickly forgotten and that we can work together for the welfare of our great State and its people. To my friends I say "thank you," and to my opposition I say we need your help in order to make Alabama a better place in which to live."

Sincerely
JAMES E. FOLSOM

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Last week the House passed legislation that will make it possible for the United States to join with Canada in the construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

This legislation authorizes the creation of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation to finance and construct the United States section of the project that traverses only the International Rapids of the St. Lawrence River. The other sections of the Seaway will be handled by the Canadian government. Canada had previously created its own government corporation with the authority to construct the entire seaway project alone, if necessary.

The Corporation authorized by last week's bill can issue up to $105 million in bonds for seaway development purposes. These bonds are to be purchased by the Treasury and are to be repaid in 50 years by toll revenues. This measure, as passed, does not contemplate a vast public subsidy but sets up the seaway on a self-liquidating basis.

The St. Lawrence Seaway has been advocated by every successive administration for the past 30 years and has been thoroughly debated by Congress over the same period of time. Yet, every previous attempt to pass legislation has failed in the Senate. The circumstances under which the measure was considered last week were decidedly different from any previous circumstances. Not only was Canada ready to proceed on its own if but the legislation under consideration the United States had not acted, action by the House and already passed by the Senate by a wide margin. Also power facilities that have been made an issue in previous legislation were not a part of the present bill. This change alone reduced the United States share of the cost by $305 million.

Among the important reasons advanced for joining with Canada in the development of the seaway was that of national safety. Admiral Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, stated in a letter to Senator Ferguson, "Failure of the United States to participate at this time in the navigation features of the seaway would result in the construction of all the locks on the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence River wholly outside United States territory. As a result, no part of the seaway locks and lateral canals would ever be under control of the United States. The United States would not have a voice in the control of the traffic through the seaway on an equal basis with Canada. The United States would then necessarily have to depend upon Canada to evaluate and take steps necessary to protect its interest in the matter of the operation of [illegible] not only in relation [illegible] charges and priority of transportation in times of emergencies but also in relation to the physical security and control of the seaway. Although the Joint Chiefs of Staff can hardly conceive of a war in which we would be involved with Canada remaining neutral, from a national-security viewpoint we cannot figure the possibility [illegible] an eventuality. Since it is not customary for neutral nations to permit the use of their inland waters to belligerents its use could possibly be denied to us at the very time we needed it most by a failure on our part to participate jointly with Canada in the construction of the waterway, thereby insuring joint control of the United States."

During the House debate on the bill, it was emphasized that the St. Lawrence Seaway will be important as a transportation route because it will serve an area which is already highly industrialized. Development of the seaway will greatly increase the availability of large supplies of raw materials, particularly iron ore from the Labrador-Quebec area. There is a possibility, too, of obtaining titanium and manganese from this area. All these materials are essential to our defense effort. This important area, then, should meet the defense demands as well as peacetime needs of our country for certain raw materials.

Therefore, it was for reasons of national security as well as economic reasons that the St. Lawrence Seaway bill, adopted by the House and Senate, had the unqualified support of the President, the Cabinet members, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the National Security Council.

President Signs Selden's Bill

Early in the session I introduced a resolution designed to settle the question of the exact location of the Alabama-Florida boundary line along the Perdido River. For many years this boundary has been in question due to the shifting of the Perdido River near its mouth.

Last year the governors of Alabama and Florida appointed a special commission to study the problem. Recommendations for a fixed boundary line, described by longitude and latitude, were made by the commission to the two state legislatures. Both state governing bodies accepted the commission's recommendations and passed acts which defined a positive boundary.

My resolution, adopted by the House in March and by the Senate a month later, gave the consent of Congress to the establishment of the boundary that had been agreed upon by the states of Alabama and Florida. Signed by President Eisenhower last Thursday, this resolution has now become a law.

.63 per cent think Eisenhower administration doing a good job of Red - Cleaning in Federal Government.

Princeton, New Jersey—How do rank and file voters across the nation feel about the Red-Cleaning job the Eisenhower Administration is doing in the Federal Government?

A public opinion survey just completed throws light on how American citizens feel on the matter.

Survey results show that more than 3 out of every 5 (63%) of all those questioned are of the opinion that the Eisenhower Administration is doing a good job of getting rid of Communists in the Federal Government."

Only about 1 in 7 (14%) says the GOP Administration is doing a poor job.

In other words, U. S. voters who say that the present Administration is doing a good job of getting rid of Communists in the Federal Government outnumber by a margin of better than 4 to 1 those who say it's doing a poor job.

The above facts were brought to light when the matter of Red-Cleaning in the Federal Government was recently placed before the American adult [illegible]

When [illegible] Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section [illegible] nation's voters:

"Do you think the Eisenhower Administration is doing a good job or a poor job of getting rid of Communists in the Federal Government?"

[illegible] nationwide results:

RED-CLEANING IN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT?

Good job	63%
Fair job	19
Poor job	14
No Opinion	4

Highlight of today's survey findings is that among rank and file Democratic Party members, those who say good job outnumber those who say poor job by better than 2 to 1 margin.

And that among Independent voters, those who say good job outnumber those who say poor job by a margin of 5 to 1.

Among GOP voters, those saying good outnumber those saying poor by a margin of exactly 20 to 1.

The vote by political party affiliation:

JOB OF RED CLEANING IN FEDERAL GOVERNMENT?

	Dem	Repub	Ind.
Good job	50%	80	64
Fair job	22%	14	20
Poor job	22%	4	12
No opinion	6%	2	4

Worthy of mention, too, is that in every other population group examined, the majority opinion is that the Eisenhower Administration is doing a good job of getting rid of Communists in the Federal Government.

These groups include men and women, as well as all age groups, educational levels, city sizes, occupations, and sections of the country.

my Pet Peeve by Mike Bennett

ONLY a few days ago, I found myself smoté directly between the eyes by a heavy weapon often referred to as "The Awful Truth." It dawned upon me, suddenly and unequivocally, springs and summers are slipping by and I, tho far from the age of withering on the vine, begin to feel the mellowness that each new ray of morning sunshine can but meliorate the more.

I guess that I crossed over the hill without bothering to watch the scenery, because the destination was reached effortlessly, without any serious struggles on my part.

Of course, it had to come day, as I always knew it would. But I had expected it to be a slow process, "gradual stages, like climbing a tall ladder where each rung is an individual challenge. One must conquer each step. That's the way I expected it to be. But it wasn't that way at all. It was sudden, with such dynamic force that I knew instantly I had either "crossed over the bridge" or ventured out so far that to attempt to return would be sheer folly.

It was just an across-the coffee-cup discussion. One of those present, an elder noted for strong opinions, said with an adamant air: "The younger generation is totally incapable of shouldering their share of the world's responsibilities."

Indignation welled within me. I poised the words I had wielded in numerous battles of the past. "Indeed we are," echoed the words within me. But, from without, I said with the same adamant air, "You are right. They are not."

There can be no doubt. I am growing old (er).

YOUR Health

"Health" is presented by [illegible] physicians of the State Medical Society of Alabama.

THE SKIN

The skin not only is a vital organ of the body but it is the largest, and it is essential to life. In an adult the skin, normally weighs about six pounds. It varies in texture in individuals and in different parts of the body. Skin on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet, for example, varies in thickness from that on the face.

A protective organ, the skin serves as a covering for the underlying tissues. It also acts as a barrier, when unbroken, against bacteria. As an organ of secretion, the skin also removes poisonous wastes from the blood through perspiration. While perspiration helps to eliminate water from the body, it also serves to regulate the body temperature and keeps the tough outer layer of the skin, called the epidermus, soft and pliable.

One third of all of the blood that circulates in the body is received by the skin for nourishment. When the flow of the blood to the skin is too little, the skin hardens, thickens and loses its normal appearance.

Heredity is a factor in the color of the skin. Some persons have more pigment or coloring matter. The color of the skin in some persons is affected by inadequate circulation of the blood.

The skin is fed and nurtured by the blood circulating within the body and cannot be nourished from the outside with creams. Some persons have sensitive skins. An allergy may not be a factor, but the skin is susceptible to easy chapping or chafing. These people usually have dry skins and can be helped by the application of creams and oils for surface protection.

Many disorders affecting the general health are shown in changes of the skin. However, when no disease condition exists, everyday cleansing and attention to the details of good grooming will give you that "clean look" desired by everyone.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE Republican Party, as the majority party is supposed to lose ground in the November elections, if modern tradition is to be served.

The Democrats, during their long term as the majority party were able only once, in 1934, to score a mid-term gain in House membership. During the rest of their two decades of political control they consistently lost ground in mid-term elections.

Usually, however, the Democrats enjoyed a greater majority than that presently held by the Republican Party. Not since 1918 has a majority party gone into a general election with a margin of House control as slim as that the GOP now holds. Republicans control the house by a bare majority [illegible] one. House membership is 219 Republicans, 215 Democrats and one independent, so a new loss of two seats would mean loss of control.

With President Eisenhower as lead-off man on the 1952 ballot, the Republicans picked up 19 House seats. Ike carried 297 Congressional districts, but Republicans carried only 221, and subsequently lost two in special elections. Only three Republicans, Charles A. Wolverton (N. J.), John P. Saylor (Pa.) and Allan Oakley Hunter (Calif.), won House districts where the President failed, and he carried 79 districts which Republican Congressional nominees did not win.

The above figures indicate that having Eisenhower at the top of the slate helped put Republicans across in widespread elections. The Republican Party, in mapping its campaign plans is facing up to the fact that Ike's name isn't going to be on the 1954 ticket. There are indications that he will not campaign for individual candidates but will ask the voters to support the Republican ticket and his "dynamic and progressive" program.

The Democrats, on the other hand, think the November contest will be a "pocketbook election" based on a softening economy. They expect not only to take over the House, but to do so by a handsome margin. They believe that, as in 1948, the Republicans are riding on "peace and prosperity," that they can capitalize on unemployment in Republican suburban areas and on the farmer's "discontent" over the farm program to take the [illegible]. They are definitely counting on unemployment in several GOP strongholds in such politically powerful states as Washington, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Michigan, Indiana, and California.

Republicans believe that individual candidates will be the most important single factor in the Congressional races, and the majority of the GOP House membership has been elected in the past largely on local, rather than national, issues.

In areas where President Eisenhower carried a large number of Democratic and Independent votes in 1952, the National Citizens for Eisenhower Congressional committee will be active in 1954. The group seeks non-Republican and young voter support for GOP Congressional nominees who back the President and his program.

The Rev. William R. Boyd, student of New Orleans Seminary has been called by the Baptist Church for full time. This call is history making. 91 persons in wheel chairs from all over Alabama enjoyed 4 hours of entertainment in Birmingham last Sunday, even one from Georgia. 3000 spectators in the balcony, attending the first wheel chair convention ever known, held at the Municipal Auditorium. Talented wheel chair patients put on a real program. They square danced, played a game of basketball and did the bunny hop. The meeting did not end there. Those in wheel chairs congregated and organized the Alabama Wheelchair Society, with Luther Patrick of Birmingham as president. In listing the names and cities and town from where they came your reporter in looking for familiar names ran across the name of C. E. Cagle Staton. Mr. Cagle didn't mispell his home town—he had no idea it would be spelled that way and neither did a former resident of Stanton, Mrs. Harry E. Smith, president of the Birmingham VFW Auxiliary. Mrs. Smith's organization sponsored the convention. This convention will be an annual affair to be held the first Sunday in May at the Municipal auditorium in Birmingham. It was pointed out at the convention that Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. Ida Belle Estock, general chairman worked night and day for six weeks. PAYS TO USE ROTARY HOE SAYS COTTON SPECIALIST

Proper use of rotary hoes, weeders, or light harrows will control young grass and weeds in young cotton—any may save expensive hoeing later.

Many growers, says O. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton specialist for the rotary hoe over their cotton three times before it is chopped. For best results this tool should be operated at a speed of from four to five miles per hour.

Don't use the rotary hoe unless you have a good stand," explains Andrews, "because the number of plants is reduced about seven per cent each time this implement is used. Also, don't destroy your stand by careless hoeing or plowing. Leave enough plants to have two to three stalks 12 to 18 inches apart when cultivation is completed. If cotton is to be harvested mechanically, leave a thick stand—about three or four stalks per foot."

GREEN GRAZING CROPS CAN LOWER FEED COST

AUBURN, Ala.—Economy is the key to producing a profitable ... ing flock.

And, says API Extension Poultryman John Weeks, green grazing crops are of the surest roads to low cost production and to ... birds.

"So put growing pullets on a clean range covered with succulent green feed," advises the farm expert. "Alfalfa, white clover, and soybeans are particularly good. You'll be able to cut your bought feed by 20 per cent or more, and at the same time you'll be protecting the birds from parasites spread by adult chickens."

Weeks suggests that growers consult their county agents about crop and management methods adapted to their individual farms.
